Dear Collector:

Welcome to Hollywood Auction 56.

We have spent the good part of the year assembling this incredible selection of material, spanning the silent era to modern film, which we proudly present to you.

Here is just a glimpse of what awaits you within these pages:

• Extraordinary vintage contact prints produced by Richard Avedon for Marilyn Monroe.
• Charlie Chaplin’s personal “The Tramp” bamboo cane used in Modern Times.
• Important selection of material from Gone With the Wind, including the screen-used matte painting of “Tara” used in the opening sequence of the film.
• Judy Garland early “Dorothy” dress from The Wizard of Oz.
• The world’s largest collection of signature costumes of Julie Andrews and the “Von Trapp” Children from The Sound of Music.
• Original “Nautilus” crewmember dive helmet from Disney’s 1954 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea.
• Unprecedented offering of United Artists poster artwork, including Moby Dick and The Great Escape.
• Steve McQueen’s iconic screen-used tweed sports jacket worn during “the best car chase in film history” in Bullitt.
• James Bond’s documented Walther pistol used by Sean Connery in publicity shots for four James Bond films.
• James Bond 007 BD-5J Acrostar jet screen-used in the incredible opening sequences of Octopussy.
• Mid-grade Type-2 Phaser pistol from Star Trek: The Original Series.
• Sylvester Stallone’s “John Rambo” survival knife and sheath screen-used in First Blood.
• Hero working “V.I.N.CENT” robot from Disney’s The Black Hole.
• Henry Thomas’ personal script and key “Elliott” wardrobe pieces worn in E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial.
• Wonderful selection of Star Wars creatures, weapons and puppets.
• Harrison Ford “Indiana Jones” signature whip and fedora hat from Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade.
• Paul Reubens’s “Pee-wee” bicycle from Pee-wee’s Big Adventure.
• Julia Roberts’ hero pearl earrings worn in seven scenes in Pretty Woman.
• Al Pacino’s “little friend” grenade launcher from Scarface.
• Bernard Hill “Capt. Smith” uniform from Titanic (1997).
• Key set pieces, puppets and artwork from The Nightmare Before Christmas.
• An amazing assemblage of over 50 costumes and props from the Warner Bros. Corporate Archive Collection.

These examples represent a mere fraction of the pieces offered in this sale. We are certain there is something here for everyone, and we hope you enjoy perusing the catalog. Our staff is available to answer any questions you may have. Also keep in mind that we are happy to assist those who are interested in consigning. Please contact us anytime via phone and email, and don’t forget to visit our website, Facebook and Twitter pages for regular updates.

Thank you for participating, and good luck!

AGREEMENT BETWEEN PROFILES IN HISTORY & BIDDER

The following terms and conditions constitute the sole terms and conditions under which Profiles in History ("Profiles") will offer for sale and sell certain personal property ("the Property") to Bidders at its auctions in Los Angeles County, California. All transactions between Profiles and Bidders constitute a binding agreement between the Bidder and Profiles with respect to the auction. By bidding at an auction, whether in person, through a representative, by phone, facsimile, on-line, absentee bid, or by any other form of bid or by any other means, the Bidder acknowledges the thorough reading and understanding of all of the Conditions of Sale, all matters incorporated herein by reference, and agrees to be fully bound thereby.

Profile and Pro and Profiles agree that any agreements between the Bidder and Profiles issued in the catalog,图文, or on any website maintained by Profiles that contain any material different from the Conditions of Sale are entered into in Los Angeles County, California, which is where the agreements are to be performed and the auction to take place, no matter where the Bidder or any matter or facts hereunder or where Bidder was informed of the auction and regardless of whether catalogs, materials, or descriptions of the auction were issued by Bid- der in another location. Both Profiles and the Bidder agree that any disputes under these Conditions of Sale, the subject matter hereof, the entering into, or any aspect of the auction, shall be exclusively governed by the laws of California, and that any and all actions shall be brought and maintained only in Los Angeles County, California, in a State or Federal Court of California, which is where Profiles has its principal place of business, venue, local or jurisdiction. All parties submit to such jurisdiction. Both Bidder and Profiles agree that these provisions are intended to be binding on each party and that they shall solely control choice-of-law, venue and jurisdiction in the event of any dispute specifically including third party claims and cross-claims brought by either Profiles or the Bidder or a third party claiming by, through or under the Bidder and not permitted Bidder to bid hereunder. Any violation of the terms of this Paragraph shall entitle the affected party to reasonable attorneys fees and litigation costs and damages to which the prevailing party or any party, in whose behalf or on whose account amounts shall be brought and maintained in accordance with all of which remain reserved. The parties agree that Profiles shall be entitled to present these Conditions of Sale to a court in any juris- diction other than the State of California, as the胜者的 agreement, and the parties further agree that the court shall immediately order any action filed in such jurisdiction. Not- withstanding anything to the contrary in the preceding provisions or in any other provision of the Conditions of Sale, all disputes or claims, dispute or litigation between the parties shall be entitled to an award of reasonable attorneys fees and costs of litigation.

Unless otherwise set forth in the catalog, all property will be offered for sale to the highest bidder in accordance with all regulations of Profiles ("Consignor") and not on its own behalf.

Profiles is in compliance, to the fullest extent possible, with California procedures regarding the binding of auctioners.

1. Final Bid Price, Purchase Price and Payment. The term, "Final Bid Price" means the price (“High Bid”) at which a lot is sold to the successful Bidder (also referred to throughout these Conditions of Sale as "Buyer") equal to twenty-three percent (23%) of the Final Bid Price if paid or due to Profiles in the following manner, as determined in its sole discretion, deems necessary or appropriate to preserve the value of investment or opportunity cost.

14. Proles’ Additional Services: For Buyers who do not remove purchased property from Proles’ premises, Proles, in its sole discretion and solely as a service and accommodation to Buyers, may arrange for the removal, loading, insurance and freight on your behalf, and will bill you for such services. The charges for such services will be added to the purchase price of the property and may be paid by the Buyer directly. Proles reserves the right to require additional security deposit or to refuse to deliver the sole request, expense, and risk of Buyer. Proles assumes no liability for any losses in such handling or for damages, loss, or theft of or to property in such handling.

15. Headings: Headings are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret the substantive sections to which they refer.

16.  Entire Agreement: These Conditions of Sale constitute the entire agreement between the parties together with the terms and conditions specified in the Registration Form. They may not be amended, modified or superseded except in a signed writing executed by all parties. No oral or written statement by anyone employed by or acting as agent or representative of Proles may amend, modify, waive or supersede the terms herein unless such amendment, waiver or modification is contained in a writing signed by a member of Proles’ management or his designee. Unless for any reason deemed invalid or enforceable, the remaining portions shall remain fully enforceable without regard to the invalid or unenforceable provision.

AUCTION GENERAL GUIDELINES

Conditions of Sale: Before you bid, you must read the Conditions of Sale, immediately preceding these pages. They represent a contract between Proles and you, and contain important terms and conditions of jurisdiction, payment terms, warranties and remedies. The Conditions of Sale are controlling over these general guidelines and the event of any conflicts between their respective terms.

Estimate Prices: In addition to descriptive information, each entry in the catalog includes a price range, which reflects opinion as to the probable selling price at auction. Proles reserves the right to adjust these prices. Price ranges, including prices recently paid at auction for comparable property, condition, rarity, quality, history, and provenance. Estimates are prepared by Proles. You are advised to obtain an independent appraisal. Estimates do not include the buyer's premium or sales tax (see below under separate heading). See Paragraph 10 of the Conditions of Sale for important restrictions as to reliance on estimates.

Reserves: The reserve is the minimum price the seller is willing to accept and below which a lot will not be sold. This amount is confidential and will not exceed the low pre-sale estimate.

Owner’s or Guaranteed Property: If you purchase property at auction, you must have a guarantee from the consignor that a reserve was set.

Buyer’s Premium and Sales Tax: The actual purchase price will be the sum of the final bid price plus the buyer’s premium of 23% of the final bid price. No items are sold at less than 20% when full payment is made in cash or by valid check, or twenty-three percent (23%) if bid on and won through the Internet bidding. California sales tax shall automatically be added to the purchase price unless exempt.

Before the Auction: You may attend pre-sale viewing for all of our auctions at no charge. All property to be auctioned is usually on view before the sale. You are encouraged to view as many lots as you can, and to check the catalog and other auction promotions is purely for informational and marketing purposes. For all categories, we do not claim any copyright, warranty concerning the sale. Proles cannot and does not represent or warrant that the items depicted in the photograph, illustration, or screen shot is the very same item auctioned. Under no circumstances will the auctioneer place any bid on behalf of the consignor or at any above the reserve. The auctioneer will not specifically identify bids placed on behalf of the consignor to protect the consignor.

Bidder Increments: See registration page.

Absentee Bids: If you cannot attend an auction, it is possible to bid on your own behalf or to authorize Proles to bid on your behalf. You will be informed when Proles is bid up to and including the reserve price.

Telephone Bids: It is also possible to bid by telephone if you cannot attend the auction. You can request an absentee bid by completing a form available at least one day in advance of the sale in which Proles will specify the conditions of Sale and Registration Form for absentee bid details.

Internet Bids: Proles is pleased to offer live Internet bidding both at the auction and in the catalog. Before the auction registration, those Bidders intending to bid via the Internet must visit this site and register accordingly at least one full day prior to the actual auction. Please be aware that there is a minimum 3-second delay after the close of the Internet live bidding (typically not but always because a floor bid or a telephone bid was missed), and your bid may be rejected even if you were shown to be the winning bidder. By bidding online, you acknowledge and agree that Proles in History may award the lot to another bidder at its sole and final discretion under the circumstances.

Unsold Lots: If a lot does not reach the reserve, it is bought-in. In other words, it remains unsold and is returned to the consignor. Proles reserves the right to resell any lot bought-in. If you are a new client, you are strongly urged the bidder to resolve any questions about these policies and conditions such as jurisdiction, payment terms, warranties and responsibilities that you have mutually understood. Due to the fragile nature of the items includ

Introduction to Camera Negatives

Until 1935 or 1936, all 35mm negative stock was on nitrate of cellulose, which was discarded by the studios whenever there was a sign of decomposition. Of the two primary artifacts from film production — the nitrate master print of the film and the camera negative from the still photographs — the camera negative remains the only image source that can be appreciated by individual collectors who wish to conserve the original artistic process. After 1936, still camera negatives were on safety film of cellulose acetate, which is far less unstable than nitrate stock, though it also requires storage conditions of low heat and humidity. This collection was archived in studio files and survives in nearly ideal state of preservation. This collection of camera negatives represents many celebrated subjects and genres.

John Florea (1916-2000)

The following five lots (203-207) are from the estate of John Florea (1916-2000). Born in Ohio of Romanian origin, and a longtime resident of Los Angeles, by 1941 Florea was working in Hollywood as a staff photographer for Life magazine. He was in a darkroom, developing pictures of actress Jane Russell, when he heard the news that Japan had bombed Pearl Harbor. Florea headed for San Diego’s military camps, creating a photo essay, “A Day in the Life of the Marine Corps Raiders.” The results were impressive, and Florea became one of America’s first photographic war correspondents. He covered marine battles in the Pacific; the liberation of the Belsen death camp in Germany; and was on the frontline for both V-E Day and V-J Day. “I busted a lot of lenses,” he recalled in 1995. “It’s hard to run with cameras, and you have to hit the deck when the bombs whistle by.” After World War II, Florea returned to Hollywood and continued working for Life and was appointed photo editor at Collier’s magazine. His images of screen legends became legends themselves. Marilyn Monroe, his most famous subject, was first photographed by Florea in early 1951. At 24, she had played supporting roles in two acclaimed movies, The Asphalt Jungle and All About Eve. She had recently signed a seven-year contract with 20th Century-Fox. Monroe was already a gifted model, but she had yet to find the great portrait photographers who would transform her from starlet to goddess. Given his familiarity with the entertainment business, Florea later moved into the roles of producer, director and writer. He directed more than 500 television shows and seven feature films, receiving an Emmy for a television special. His photographs have been exhibited in several museums, including the Museum of Modern Art in New York. These images are a part of John Florea’s personal collection and are being sold by his estate and come with full copyrights.

203. JOHN FLOREA LARGE ARCHIVE OF WWII AND GENERAL MILITARY PHOTOS, NEGATIVES AND TRANSPARENCIES. A remarkable collection of hundreds of mostly black-and-white photographic prints, negatives, contact sheet prints and transparencies of various sizes from the personal collection of John Florea, one of WWII’s most prolific war photographers. The set includes images from the frost-covered battlefields of France and massive destruction of European cities from bombing raids to soldiers passing the time on base and being entertained by USO shows. The collection also features graphic images of both survivors and casualties of a German concentration camp during its dramatic liberation as well as military executions, fallen soldiers in the snow and other tragic and poignant consequences of war. In addition to many photos of officers and enlisted men, there are also stoic portraits of General Douglas MacArthur as well as a candid photo of General George Patton defiantly relieving himself into the Rhine River. A most rare and monumental collection of imagery and various ephemera of the era. Both published and unpublished images. Some duplicates. We encourage interested bidders to view this lot in person. Comes with full copyrights. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $3,000 - $5,000
204. John Florea star-studded Hollywood and entertainment photo archive. A massive collection of hundreds of color and black-and-white photographic prints, negatives and transparencies in a range of sizes from the personal archive of legendary photographer John Florea, one of the most iconic and prolific Hollywood photographers of the 1940s-1960s, before he traded in his camera for a Director’s chair. The set includes behind-the-scenes and candid stills of Alfred Hitchcock, Marilyn Monroe, Bob Hope, Clark Gable, Rita Hayworth, Gary Cooper and many more. There are many large portraits of stars as well as action shots of stars like Lucille Ball, Joan Crawford, Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly dancing. The collection also includes a photo set of Abbott and Costello mugging as well as oversized prints of Gary Cooper, Jimmy Durante and Doris Day. Entertainment royalty is well represented from the golden age of Hollywood to the ‘60s. There are even some rare, color transparencies of the classic Universal monster makeup lab featuring the “Metaluna Mutant” from This Island Earth and the “Gill Man” from The Creature from the Black Lagoon. General production photos and behind the scenes shots. Many of the prints are large artist’s proofs on heavy photo paper stock. Some vintage and some more modern prints. Both published and unpublished images. Duplicate prints included. We encourage interested bidders to view this lot in person. Comes with full copyrights. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,000 – $3,000

205. John Florea large archive of Hawaii and South Sea photos, negatives and film footage. A massive collection of hundreds of color and black-and-white photographic prints, negatives, stereo slides, transparencies and color 16mm film reels from the personal archive of legendary photographer John Florea. In the 1950s, Florea was commissioned to do commercial print and motion picture photography for the Matson Cruise Lines. The photographer spent a large amount of time on the SS Lurline luxury ocean liner, which transported passengers from California to Hawaii and other exotic South Sea destinations. There’s also evidence that Florea sometimes served as ship’s photographer while onboard. Included in the collection are hundreds of images of fanfare and streamers at ship’s departure and arrival at ports, ship’s staterooms, crowded decks and activities, 1950s Hawaii coastline and hotels, black-sand beaches, hula shows and luaus, long-board surfers and outrigger canoes, vintage tiki restaurants, lush tropical landscapes, landmarks and local folk of the islands. Also included are a variety of images taken in Fiji, Samoa and other Asian Pacific locales where the ship dropped anchor. The various film reels of edited and raw documentary footage cans are marked “Hawaii” and the films appear well preserved and in good condition. Film remains unexamined for content. This incredible assembly of media represents a stunning visual time capsule of 1950s luxury travel, fashion, culture, the developing Hawaiian Islands and surrounding South Sea tropical locales. We encourage interested bidders to view this lot in person. Comes with full copyrights. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $600 – $800
206. John Florea Massive Photojournalism Archive of Personal Materials and Large Life Magazine Collection. A massive collection of hundreds of color and black-and-white photographic prints, negatives, stereo slides, transparencies and 16mm film reels from the professional archive of legendary photographer John Florea during his time as a photographer for Collier's and Life magazines, as a staffer for the San Francisco Examiner and as a field military photographer. The set includes shots from crime scenes, sports photography, candid images of then-President Roosevelt, the Indonesian fight for independence, life in Japan in the 1940s and riveting historical images from many other dramatic photo assignments during his prolific career. Included in the lot is a large collection of Florea's Life magazines featuring the artist's work. We encourage interested bidders to view this enormous lot in person. Comes with full copyrights. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $800 - $1,200

207. Photographer John Florea Massive Personal Archive Materials. A massive collection of hundreds of color and black-and-white photographic prints, negatives, stereo slides, transparencies and 16mm film reels from the personal archive of legendary photographer John Florea. The set includes shots from Florea's personal life and travels, as well as a variety of images from his time as a photographer for Collier's and Life magazines, as a staffer for the San Francisco Examiner and as a field military photographer. In addition to photo images the lot includes a large collection of personal effects, notes, letters, awards and various ephemera from the well-known photographer's life and travels. Effects include his personal field typewriter, shots of the photographer and his family, Florea-written television and film scripts from his time spent in Hollywood as a writer and director, photo assignments, war souvenirs, a large stock of 16mm and 8mm color and black-and-white film footage and reel-to-reel magnetic audio tapes (all content unexamined), his military decorations and more. We encourage interested bidders to view this enormous lot in person. Comes with full copyrights. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $800 - $1,200
208. Harry Cohn vintage signed photo. 11 x 14 in. Harry Cohn inscribed photographic portrait. Cohn, sometimes referred to as “His Crudeness” or “White Fang” ruled Columbia Pictures, from the 1920s-1950s, with an iron fist. But he ruled successfully, making Columbia one of the most profitable studios in history - even during the depression. One of the most despised men in Hollywood, Cohn is extremely scarce in any form of autographed material and the large format makes this an even more desirable item. Inscribed in upper right, “To Mr. Penotti Sincerely Harry Cohn”. Mild staining and chipping on borders. Otherwise, in very good condition. $800 - $1,200

209. Jean Harlow signed photograph by Hurrell from the Arthur Landau estate. This beautiful gelatin silver photograph of Jean Harlow by the legendary Hurrell, comes from the estate of the man credited with discovering the blonde bombshell, Arthur Landau. The 11 x 14 in. black and white photograph features the iconic screen star in repose with her famous platinum locks cascading over a pillow. The photograph is inscribed in ink over the lower right half of the image, in full: “To - the two dearest ones I have - I love you more than my life – Jean”. The Hurrell embossed blind stamp is located in the lower right corner. Minor edge toning and slightly bumped corners. Overall, in very good vintage condition. $2,000 - $3,000

210. Collection of (5) oversize photographs of Jean Harlow signed by “Mama Jean”. Gelatin silver matte double-weight 10.5 x 13.5 in. custom prints (5) of Jean Harlow by Ted Allen and George Hurrell; all signed in white ink by “Mama Jean”, Harlow’s mother who acted as her secretary. Very good to very fine. $600 - $800

211. Jean Harlow signed oversize photograph. Gelatin silver matte double-weight 10.5 x 13.75 in. custom print of Jean Harlow by Pach Bros.; inscribed by Harlow in white ink: “To George Wielb With Appreciation and Sincere Best Wishes – Cordially Jean Harlow.” Very good; with pinhole and chipping at corners. $1,500 - $2,000

Gelatin silver matte double-weight 11 x 14 in. custom print of Jean Harlow from Riffraff (MGM, 1936) by George Hurrell; inscribed by Harlow in ink “To G.D., Sincerely Jean.” Fine; with crease at corner. $1,200 - $1,000

213. Eddie Mannix signed photograph to Jean Harlow from the Landau estate. Vintage 8 x 10 in. gelatin silver photograph featuring Louis B. Mayer, Jean Harlow, and Eddie Mannix; inscribed by Mannix in the lower right in green ink, “Jean - / Affectionately / Eddie”. Handwritten on the verso in black ink is “Louis B. Mayer / Jean Harlow / Eddie Mannix / note: Jean’s hobby sax - this is not glamor!” Mannix was an important executive at MGM known as “The Fixer” for his ability, through a network of reporters, doctors, corrupt police and lawyers, to “fix” a movie star’s scandalous problems. Beginning as a bouncer and working his way into MGM and up the ladder, Mannix was rumored to have had gangster ties and a criminal past alleged to include the murders of his first wife, MGM executive Paul Bern (Jean Harlow’s husband at the time of his death), and TV “Superman” George Reeves who was having an affair with Mannix’s wife. This photograph was reproduced in the 1964 Jean Harlow biography titled “Harlow”. In vintage good condition. Originally from the collection of Arthur M. Landau, Harlow’s agent and the man who discovered her. $200 - $300

214. Jean Harlow signed oversize photograph from Hell’s Angels. Gelatin silver matte borderless double-weight 10.5 x 10.5 in. custom print (mounted to 8-ply rag archival manila board) of Jean Harlow from Hell’s Angels (Howard Hughes, 1929) by Arthur F. Kales; inscribed by Harlow in felt pen: “To my Ruthie + Johnny I love you both more than you will ever, ever know – Your Jean”. Fine; with crease at corner. $1,200 - $2,500
215. Jean Harlow signed nude portrait by Edwin Bower Hesser. Gelatin silver glossy double-weight 8 x 10 in. file prints of Jean Harlow for nude sitting in Griffith Park by Edwin Bower Hesser; signed by Harlow, “Jean Harlow” and “These lovely art studies cannot be used without credit line ‘Created Especially by Edwin Bower Hesser’ Do see to it! Thanks!” An unknown hand writes below Harlow’s signature, “NINON DELYS name she used who is to appear in a series of Grecian Mythological Stories – short “art” subjects – in color, with sound” in pencil on verso (c. 1929). Print was made for Harlow as a “proof” which she returned to Hesser with her instructions, resulting in set of deckled-edge matte 7 x 9 in. custom prints for her: both the proof set and custom set likely unique. Very good; with emulsion bubbling and creases. $2,000 - $3,000

216. Jean Harlow signed nude portrait by Edwin Bower Hesser. Gelatin silver glossy double-weight 8 x 10 in. file prints of Jean Harlow for nude sitting in Griffith Park by Edwin Bower Hesser; signed by Harlow, “Jean Harlow” and written in an unknown hand “NINON DELYS name she used” in pencil on verso (c. 1929). Print was made for Harlow as a “proof” which she returned to Hesser with her instructions, resulting in set of deckled-edge matte 7 x 9 in. custom prints for her: both the proof set and custom set likely unique. Very good; with emulsion loss and soiling. $2,000 - $3,000

(Double Secret, 1997-2007) The “TER” was developed by the “Go’auld” to detect beings 180 degrees out of phase from our “spacetime.” Once a foe is sighted, the TER releases a form of energy similar to the zat gun but far more destructive, ripping a target into pieces. This detailed 17 x 8 in. prop is constructed of solid cast resin components with internal electronics. Consisting of two large barrels connected by a handle at the back and a strut piece at the front. The surface of the prop features the exotic “Go’auld” conglomeration of hieroglyphs and machinery so popular in the Sci-Fi franchise. A small switch on the bottom panel activates an LED, which illuminates a clear 1 in. dome at the front of the lower barrel of the prop. A slot at the top of the upper barrel accommodates a removable red and gold-flecked power module. The weapon is painted gun-metal gray with copper greening accents. A turtle shell-shaped panel at the bottom of the prop removes to give access to the 9V battery that powers the working red LED. The removable power module opens and contains circuitry and two flat 3V batteries (power module untested). In production-used very good condition. $2,000 – $3,000

370. Kiefer Sutherland as “Jack Bauer” screen-worn sunglasses from 24 (TCF TV, 2001-2010) Pair of black framed, Serengeti brand sunglasses with amber-tinted lenses, worn by Kiefer Sutherland as “Jack Bauer” in the TV series 24. The sunglasses are first worn at the beginning of “Day 5: 7:00am – 8:00am” (Season 5, Episode 1) in the scene where “Bauer” learns “President Palmer” (Dennis Haysbert) has been assassinated and comes out of hiding after faking his own death. “Jack” takes his gun, straps on his signature wristwatch, and dons a pair of these sunglasses, signaling that “Jack” is back in action. “Bauer” later appears wearing these glasses at different times throughout the entire series. A very limited number of these sunglasses were screen-used during the latter half of the series. Many were destroyed, damaged or lost in production, making this an extremely rare piece of surviving “Jack Bauer” memorabilia. Glasses like these can also be seen in promotional images and in the book 24: Behind The Scenes. The glasses originally come from the show’s property master, are in good screen used condition and accompanied by an LOA. $1,200 – $1,500

383. 1922 DeVry Motion Picture 35 mm Portable Movie Projector. In the spring of 1915 DeVry began advertising to a skeptical public, that movies were now possible to show outside of a theatre. In fact, they could now be shown at home and at school as easily as slides were shown using a magic lantern. DeVry “Type E” portable 35mm models became tremendously popular and over 50,000 of the silent, portable projectors were sold. This 1922 DeVry “EU Type” suitcase-style projector features a vintage 35 mm projector housed in a 22 x 9 x 19.5 in. black cabinet suitcase. The case is outfitted with portals for viewing projector operation as well as multiple vents for fans and exhaust to cool the internal mechanism. Framing knob and another adjustment pin accessible from outside the case. Lenses and mechanisms appear complete. Film reels are present with the projector and printed operating instructions are still affixed to the inner lid. Braided leather carrying handle and three snap clasps to secure the suitcase-style lid. Electronics untested. Expected exterior wear and age. In vintage good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $400 - $600

Content includes ornate tissue guard and a title page depicting, in black, orange and blue (Truckee, CA) the Sierra town where the film was shot. Each page contains blue backgrounds with black-and-white photographic portraits of silent film luminaries Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Marion Davies, Cecil B. DeMille, William S. Hart, Francis X. Bushman, Ramon Novarro, and others. Other Hollywood figures and companies contribute printed congratulations for the film. This program, handed out to VIPs at the movies’ premiere. A fine example of the artistic high point of the silent film era as represented by Charlie Chaplin’s first major movie. The program is in vintage very good condition. $1,500 - $2,000
391. Original Charlie Chaplin “Tramp” cane from Modern Times. (Chaplin Prod., 1936) Vintage, screen-used Charlie Chaplin “Tramp” curved bamboo cane 34.5 in. long, originally signed and dated by Chaplin (signature now barely visible) and given directly by Chaplin to French journalist and Chaplin historian Maurice Bessy. Bessy was a Chaplin biographer and the former Managing Director of the Cannes Film Festival. The Bessy Award for Film Criticism is named after him. The cane is composed of a single stalk of bent bamboo with pronounced nodes, or knuckles, curved top piece as handle and unfinished tip and was retired after the release of Chaplin’s Modern Times in 1936. Modern Times is widely considered one of Chaplin’s finest films and greatest achievements and was the last to use his iconic “Tramp” character. The film was written and directed by Chaplin, who also wrote the score. While the film was made in 1936, it is effectively a silent film with sound effects and depicts the struggles of the “Little Tramp” to survive in the industrialized world, mirroring the plight of Chaplin himself, who refused to make the film a “talkie”, even in 1936. The world famous image of Chaplin as “The Tramp” with his characteristic penguin waddle, spinning his cane, is one that permeates cinematic history and culture. In the true spirit of Hollywood lore, Charlie Chaplin’s iconic character is said to have been a spontaneous silent film invention quickly assembled in a dressing room at Mack Sennett’s Keystone Studio in 1914. Chaplin states in his book Charlie Chaplin: My Autobiography, “A hotel set was built for (fellow Keystone comic) Mabel Normand’s picture ‘Mabel’s Strange Predicament’ and I was hurriedly told to put on funny make-up. This time I went to the wardrobe and got a pair of baggy pants, a tight coat, a small derby hat and a large pair of shoes. I wanted the clothes to be a mass of contradictions, knowing pictorially the figure would be vividly outlined on the screen. To add a comic touch, I wore a small mustache which would not hide my expression. My appearance got an enthusiastic response from everyone, including Mr. Sennett. The clothes seemed to imbue me with the spirit of the character. He actually became a man with a soul—a point of view. I defined to Mr. Sennett the type of person he was. He wears an air of romantic hunger, forever seeking death, but his feet won’t let him.” This simple, bent bamboo cane was an essential accessory to that costume, making it quite possibly the most famous walking stick of all time. According to Bessy in his book Charlie Chaplin (published 1983, by Editions Pygmalion), in 1938, he met with Chaplin who was feeling disenchanted by the political climate in the world, as well as being frustrated by the expectation of modern audiences that his previous film, Modern Times, be a “talkie.” Bessy writes, “He [Chaplin] went on to discuss the international situation, the wars that were brewing. But clearly something was very wrong. It seems cruel that genius is so invariably a prey to those harrowing affictions of the spirit. He toyed with his cane and suddenly held it out to me. ‘Here you are, take my stick, Charlie the Tramp is dead and I don’t need it anymore’.” While Chaplin used many canes in his films, most were damaged and destroyed in the process of production, and this one is singularly important as it came directly from Chaplin and symbolically signified the “death” of the Tramp character. Exhibiting signs of age and patina but remaining sturdy and in vintage fine condition. The cane is housed in an elaborate lighted, antique, museum-quality display case (c. 1880s) 65 x 15.5 x 27 of brass colored wood, plaster and metal with beveled glass viewing panels on the side panels and oval pane on the front and a key-locking door. Interior back features a life-size photographic image of Chaplin in old age holding this exact cane (photo matched) with Bessy at his side (as can be seen in the mirror in the room) with his poignant quote to Bessy, “Here you are, take my stick, Charlie the Tramp is dead and I don’t need it anymore” emblazoned across the photographic image. The interior of the case has been outfitted with two clear plexiglass rings on stems that hold the cane in place, as if Chaplin were actually holding it himself, mirroring the photo in the case. This historic cane comes with a copy of Maurice Bessy’s book Charlie Chaplin, containing the passages describing Chaplin’s gifting of the cane as well as a picture of Bessy receiving the cane from Chaplin. Additionally, both a DVD and VHS are provided in which Bessy discusses, in French, his meeting with Chaplin in which he receives this cane from Modern Times. Accompanied by three black and white photographs by photographer Patrice Hasans of Chaplin at the Ritz Hotel in 1971 showing Chaplin revisiting this cane with Bessy and (1) black-and-white photograph of Maurice Bessy (c. 1980s - printed later) holding this cane surrounded by other pieces from his collection. Special shipping arrangements will apply. Certainly an item of extreme historical importance and the best documented Chaplin cane extant. $120,000 - $150,000
“Take my stick, Charlie the Tramp is dead and I don’t need it anymore.”
392. VINTAGE METAL PARAMOUNT PICTURES PRIVATE PROPERTY SIGN. Circa 1920's metal movie studio sign. On the upper and lower border of the sign are holes punched for mounting the sign to a wall or other surface with nails or screws. The sign exhibits few edge chips. Overall, in very good condition. $300 - $500

400. MGM’s “Leo the Lion” archive collection with (2) Volney Phifer photo albums, Phifer hat, and plaques from Leo’s country wide touring. In 1924 studio publicist Howard Dietz designed the “Leo the Lion” logo for Goldwyn Picture Corporation. He based his design on his alma mater, Columbia University’s athletic team, the Lions. Leo was retained when the studio became MGM. The original Leo was born in 1915 on a New Jersey farm and raised by animal lover and professional trainer Volney Phifer. “Cheetah”, the famous chimp from Tarzan was also one of Phifer’s animals, but Leo was his favorite. While Leo died in 1938, the image he created still appears today on each MGM film, statues, logo-wear and signage. This is a collection of Volney Phifer materials including (2) personal 11 x 14 in. hand-assembled photo albums (1938-1939), (1) captain’s animal training hat with crest badge with “Phifer’s Animal Farm” business card inside and (13) various engraved plaques commemorating Leo as a member in good standing in a variety of Lion’s Clubs, received while touring across the country. All in vintage good condition. $400 - $600

Paperweight features text, “Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Lion / Your Lucky Star” embossed on both sides of the base with felt bottom to prevent surface scratching (1) vintage 5.5 x 5.5 x 2 in. MGM hand-crank pencil sharpener. The metal sharpener features an aperture opening for pencil and a wood-knobbed crank for sharpening. A metal pullout drawer for shavings and a 1.5 in. porthole-window on the top of the device for viewing the internal mechanism. “Metro Goldwyn Mayer” and the Lion logo is imprinted on the front of the device. Both pieces are in vintage good condition. A fantastic desk set from the offices of one of the greatest American movie studios in history. $300 - $500

402. 1935 Les Miserables Set Key Book. (TCF, 1935) A scrapbook bound collection of (80+) black and white, gelatin silver, 8 x 10 in. production photographs from the sets of the 1938 production of Les Miserables, starring Frederic March, Charles Laughton and Cedric Hardwicke. The dramatic photos depict studio-lit reference images of interior and exterior sets, most with location slates present. Settings include: Courtroom, Road to Faverolles, an Inn, Jean’s factory, exterior of Jean’s new home, student society office, Universal Café (before and after siege), exterior of barricade, Paris sewers and many more. Photographs are all affixed to canvas leaves and bound in the bradded, black, board covered reference book. All contents are in vintage, production-used, very good condition. $600 - $800

403. John Barrymore “Mercutio” Tunic from Romeo and Juliet. (MGM, 1936) A beautiful costume designed by Adrian and Oliver Messel and worn by the great John Barrymore as “Mercutio” in Romeo and Juliet. Consisting of an ivory-colored leather tunic with a brown hand-painted abstract floral pattern overall. The center front ruffled panel and cuffs have pleated crème silk inserts with black velvet cord and gold button detail ornaments. The internal Western Costume Co. bias label reads, “Barrymore #2 Mercutio 10-2-25’. This costume was additionally worn by Barrymore in Playmates (RKO, 1941) where the costume was altered to fit the more mature Barrymore. Exhibits heavy material loss on back shoulder, displays well from the front. In overall poor condition. $800 - $1,200

405. Sergei Eisenstein Original Certificate of Honor Presented at the First International Soviet Film Festival, 1935. (Warner Bros., 1934) The certificate, printed and written in Cyrillic, was awarded to the American movie, Gentlemen are Born, directed by Alfred Green and starring Franchot Tone as “Bob Bailey”. The 9 x 12.5 in. folded document is signed in blue ink by several film figures, including the directors Sergei Eisenstein, Vsevolod Pudovkin, and Boris Shumyatsky, appointed by Stalin himself to govern the Soviet film industry and ensure agreeable political content. Ironically, after publicly calling out Eisenstein for non-conformity to the party line, Shumyatsky later fell out of favor himself and was summarily executed by Stalin. Included is the original 1935 typed letter from the Soviet film industry, congratulating Alfred Green on winning the award and advising that the honor certificate is on it’s way. An important historical document from the earliest days of Soviet filmmaking. The raw edged certificate, which shows some toning and age-wear, is tipped into a leather-bound folder with gold gilt, with “I Cine-Festival Sovietique” imprinted on cover. Overall, in good condition. Accompanied by a typed 9 x 12.5 in. vintage English translation of the content. $4,000 - $6,000
A Collection of 1,000+ Photoplay magazines from the Golden Age of Hollywood to the 1970s. A massive collection of (1,000+) vintage Photoplay magazines spanning from 1936 through the mid-1970s. Photoplay was one of the first American movie fan magazines. Founded in Chicago in 1911, Photoplay began as a magazine of short fiction based on the plots and characters of feature films of the day. The magazine's popularity grew, fueled by the public's burgeoning interest in the private lives of celebrities, and by 1918 had amassed an estimated circulation of over 200,000. Photoplay became so influential in the entertainment industry that studios began to use the magazine as a promotional tool for their films. The magazine was originally known for its painted portraits of film stars on the cover, but with the advancement of color photography, by 1937, the magazine began featuring photographs of stars rather than illustrations. Photoplay published the writings of Hedda Hopper, Walter Winchell, Cal York, Rob Wagner and other known writers of the times. The magazine also featured health and beauty advice from "Sylvia of Hollywood", fitness guru to the stars. Through the '50s and '60s, the magazine evolved from a straight ahead glamour periodical into what could be considered the origins of sensational, celebrity tabloid media. The magazine ceased publication in 1980 and its staff were moved to Us magazine. This extensive collection includes magazines featuring the biggest stars of the day with frequent cover subjects such as Marilyn Monroe, Doris Day, Rock Hudson, Ava Gardner, Alan Ladd, Greer Garson, Lana Turner, Bing Crosby, Deanna Durbin, Elvis Presley, Esther Williams, Shirley Temple, Barbra Streisand, Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner, and many, many more. As the magazine run moves into the '50s and '60s, there is a heavy presence of The Lennon Sisters, Janet Leigh, JFK and Jackie Kennedy as well as many covers and much coverage dedicated to the love triangle of Debbie Reynolds, Eddie Fisher and Elizabeth Taylor. Throughout the '60s and '70s attention is focused on Sonny & Cher, John Travolta, Mia Farrow and an almost obsessive interest in Liz Taylor and Richard Burton's steamy romance(s). These graphic issues contain a wealth of unique photographs of stars in elegant portraits, day-to-day living, exotic travels and even some paparazzi shots. Issues include a large number of duplicates and all magazines range in condition from fair to very good with few loose covers and a small handful of reading copies with writing on the covers or coupons clipped. Interested bidders should make an appointment to view this lot in person. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 – $6,000
407. Original Artwork of Katharine Hepburn on a piece of the 1923 Hollywood Sign. This stunning artwork is by world-renowned artist Bill Mack, being a mixed media, acrylic and oil depiction of Katharine Hepburn. Making this piece extraordinarily unique, in addition to its majestic beauty, is the fact that the artist used a piece of the metal facing from the original 1923 “Hollywood” sign as his canvas. The original “Hollywood” sign was taken down in 1978 and stored (a more durable sign was erected replacing the weather-worn original). In 2007, Mack bought the nearly 90-year-old sign and began infusing it with new life by transforming it into one-of-a-kind works of art. The panel was restored to carefully preserve the patina resulting from decades of exposure to the elements, including paint fade, rust and other defects. The artist underpainted the image in acrylic and finished it in oil. When completed, the paint was aged with an oil base toner and preserved with a clear urethane. The painting is mounted on a rigid backing accentuating the original holes drilled in the metal created to relieve wind resistance. Artwork measures 26 x 32 in. (outer frame dimensions are 38.5 x 44 in.) Signed by the artist in lower left. A remarkable piece of art created from one of the most recognized monuments of the 20th Century, symbolizing the best from Hollywood’s golden age. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $40,000 – $60,000
409. Gone with the Wind final shooting script presented by David O. Selznick to assistant director Eric G. Stacey (MGM, 1939) Vintage final shooting script for the epic American romance film Gone With the Wind. This 256-page script was custom bound in leather and cloth and personally presented by producer David O. Selznick to the film’s assistant director, Eric G. Stacey and inscribed in blue ink, in full: “For Eric, who kept his sanity in spite of even DOS [David O. Selznick] / with appreciation for a splendid job, Xmas, 1939”. It was Stacey’s idea to assemble the film’s existing sets into a replica of Atlanta and then burn them for the camera creating the film’s most dramatic scene. Tipped into the script pages at various places are black and white 7.5 x 9.5 black and white production photos of scenes and behind-the-scenes shots including a photo of Stacey on the frontispiece. The script, credited to writer Sidney Howard, was affected by many more writers but is known to have been primarily written by Selznick himself. The book’s red and brown cover bears gold gilt lettering of film title, “Screenplay” on front and spine and “Eric G. Stacey” in lower right corner. Exhibits a seven inch split between the front cover and spine, but cover remains attached and intact. Minor corner bumping and edge fraying. Content in very good condition. $20,000 - $30,000
410. Original Fitch Fulton screen-used matte painting of “Tara” from Gone With the Wind used in the elaborate opening title sequence. (MGM, 1939) When David O. Selznick was preparing Gone With the Wind, he gathered together some of the most talented cinematic artists in Hollywood at the time, realizing that the film would need a number of effective matte paintings to save on costs and embellish the elaborate sets. The team of artists consisted of photographic effects supervisors, Jack Cosgrove and Albert Simpson, who were skilled at blending mattes with live-action components, and Fitch Fulton, who later worked as an uncredited matte artist on Citizen Kane, and on the technical staff of Mighty Joe Young. Fulton is probably best remembered as a talented landscape painter, focusing on Southern California and Sierra Nevada, and, as the father of special effects artist John Fulton. It was Fitch Fulton and Albert Simpson who sketched the mattes for Gone With the Wind on 30 x 40 in. Masonite boards, providing Tara with walls that were never built, bringing Atlanta back from the devastating fire, and rendering the many realistic details that brought the Civil War era to life on the screen. There were more than one hundred shots in Gone With the Wind that incorporated matte paintings. When it came to the matte work for the opening credits in the film, Fitch Fulton was the artist who came up with the concept based on the research, paintings, sketches and original architectural plans supplied by Kurtz, Cosgrove, Simpson, Menzies and others on the art department team. Offered here is the original matte painting of Tara by Fulton used in the At Tara/The O’Hara Plantation in Georgia credits, executed in oils on masonite with rich, vibrant color worthy of this important subject. In this painting, the iconic Tara is presented as a sprawling estate on a working plantation in the Old South, set behind a tree with a neatly kept path angling up to the door. This is the actual screen-used matte painting of Tara used in the opening credits of the epic romantic film. At that time MGM artists were allowed to take home their paintings and Fulton later changed the bottom of the painting to make it more to his aesthetic liking by adding some bushes and removing the fence. This is the reason the lower portion of the piece does not match exactly to screen today. An incredibly important piece of original artwork from the film, this screen-used matte painting is one of the finest artifacts to have survived the 70+ years since the release of Gone With the Wind. This is the only screen-used matte painting of Tara still known to exist and measures 36 x 31.5 inches. A quarter-inch perimeter exhibits scuffing from a previous frame; otherwise, in fine condition. From the family of artist Fitch Fulton and comes with a signed letter of authenticity. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $60,000 - $80,000
412. Collection of (4) black-and-white camera negatives of The Wizard of Oz characters by Clarence Sinclair Bull (MGM, 1939)

Collection of black-and-white 8 x 10 in. camera negatives (4) on Kodak safety film of Judy Garland, Ray Bolger, Jack Haley and Bert Lahr from The Wizard of Oz (MGM, 1939) by Clarence Sinclair Bull; dated 2-25-39; with portrait numbers 1060-188, 1060-143, 1060-148 and 1060-208 in India ink. $600 - $800

413. Contributing writer Herman J. Mankiewicz’s personally annotated script for The Wizard of Oz. (MGM, 1939)

Contributing writer Herman J. Mankiewicz’s annotated, 11.5 x 9 in. incomplete hard bound script. Consisting of a 84 page (including insert and revision pages leading to page 68 of the script), 3-hole punched studio-bound partial screenplay of the enduring fantasy classic The Wizard of Oz adapted from the novel by L. Frank Baum. Green board cover bears gold gilt imprint on the spine, reading: “The Wizard of Oz (annotated) - H. Mankiewicz”. Internal blue script cover is printed with the title, Baum’s writing credit and “From: Herman J. Mankiewicz 3/7/38”. Script pages exhibit many pencil annotations with line changes, notes and edits. For example, on page 14, as the tornado lifts Dorothy’s house into the air, Mankiewicz writes in pencil: “Note: There is of course a vigorous score throughout the cyclone, starting with its first warning noise, through to Dorothy’s arrival in Munchkin-land.”

Green cover shows mild wear and soiling. Interior script cover and first page exhibit heavy water staining. In overall vintage fair condition. Herman J. Mankiewicz was one of the uncredited contributing writers for The Wizard of Oz. Mankiewicz is best known for co-writing Citizen Kane with Orson Welles which won the Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay and is regarded as one of the greatest cinematic masterpieces in film history. Incredibly rare and desirable, this manuscript material establishes the first half of the film, including Dorothy’s amazing transition to “Oz”. $30,000 - $50,000
414. JUDY GARLAND EARLY “DOROTHY” DRESS FROM THE WIZARD OF OZ. (MGM, 1939) This is Judy Garland’s “Dorothy” dress from the early Richard Thorpe-directed filming of The Wizard of Oz. Designed by legendary MGM costume designer Gilbert Adrian, the dress is a blue cotton dress with polka dot trim with blue cotton puff-sleeve blouse with matching trim. Written in the inside face of the bodice in indelible ink is “Judy Garland” along with the number “2-A.” Judy Garland wore this style dress for the first two weeks of filming in October 1938 under director Richard Thorpe when Buddy Ebsen was the “Tin Man.” Scenes filmed during this period include the “Scarecrow’s” cornfield as well as around the “Wicked Witch’s” castle in the Tower Room. Production halted and Thorpe was fired before the job finally fell on Victor Fleming’s shoulders. Wayne Martin, a well-known personal friend of Judy Garland, obtained this dress from costumer Kent Warner who was hired by the David Weisz Co. to identify costumes and organize the now-legendary MGM Auction in 1970. Martin’s intent was to create a Judy Garland museum, but due to Judy’s untimely death, it never came to fruition. However, Martin loaned the dress to The Smithsonian and it toured 26,000 miles across 48 states from 1975 to 1976 as part of the Bicentennial celebration of The Smithsonian’s “Freedom Train.” The traveling exhibit featured a different aspect of U.S. history and memorabilia in each of 12 train cars, and this dress was featured in one of those cars. The dress is accompanied by letters of provenance as well as a copy of the original Smithsonian “Freedom Train” program picturing the Judy Garland “Dorothy” dress. Another Thorpe-era “Dorothy” dress (its virtual twin) was a highlight of the Debbie Reynolds Collection and was sold at auction by Profiles in History in 2011 for an astounding sum of $1,092,000. This dress is from the collection of Hollywood historian and collector Barry Barsamian who has dedicatedly cared for this iconic costume for the past 32 years. He has had numerous exhibitions to raise money for various charities. In vintage, very good condition. $80,000 - $120,000
415. The Wizard of Oz, original press book complete with herald. (MGM, 1939) The cover features the famous window card art in bold colors, considered to be the best promotional art created for the film. The front and back covers, measuring 18.5 x 33 in. when opened, serve as a slip folder containing the 23-page book titled Exploitation, the covers feature artwork of the principal characters in color. Copiously illustrated with all types of production details, plot synopsis, cast list, sheet music, audio records, large cut-out standees and hangers, etc. It includes a record of all the movie tie-in advertisements, including lobby and window cards, 1-sheet, 3-sheet, 6-sheet and 24-sheet poster styles, banners, usher buttons and other items. The herald is detached and folds out to an 8 x 20 in. interior (exhibits some paper loss where it was removed); colors remain extremely bold. In fine condition overall for this rare promotional item. $4,000 - $6,000

416. Rare original The Wizard of Oz script. (MGM, 1939) This 113-page original script from The Wizard of Oz is studio-bound and bradded, dated October 10, 1938, including revisions, and marked “Complete” on the tattered cover. This version includes important revisions by writer Edgar Allan Woolf, the visionary who changed the famous slippers from silver to ruby, inserted the dream sequence, and is responsible for the fantasy aspects of the film – all elements not in the L. Frank Baum novel. The script exhibits heavy use and chipped pages, with separated cover. Original Wizard of Oz scripts are very rare, and this “Complete” version is even more desirable. Cover is in poor condition. While the first two pages of the script are chipped, the rest of the content remains in good condition. Accompanied by a 1949 reissue The Wizard of Oz lobby card depicting “Dorothy”, “Toto”, “The Scarecrow”, “The Cowardly Lion” and “The Tin Man” all at the entrance to the Haunted Forest. Exhibits handling and minor soiling with two pin holes on margins. $15,000 - $20,000
417. Historic collection of (7) vintage The Wizard of Oz cast-signed photographs. (MGM, 1939) This fantastic archive consists of signed photographs of seven of the starring actors/actresses from this beloved film, including Judy Garland, Bert Lahr, Ray Bolger, Billie Burke, Frank Morgan, Charley Grapewin and Charley Becker. Including: “Dorothy” Judy Garland photograph inscribed to a “Munchkin,” 8 x 10 in., a superb head-and-shoulders portrait of Judy, (c. 1938) at the time of filming The Wizard of Oz (MGM, 1939). Boldly inscribed (on the image, in the lower right-hand corner): “for Grace – Love from Judy”. Judy, who captured the hearts of young and old alike with her portrayal of Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz, inscribes this fantastic youthful portrait to Gracie Doll (a.k.a. Frieda Schneider). Grace was one of four little people in the Doll family – all of whom appeared in the film: Kurt, Frieda, Hilda and Elly. A wonderful Wizard momento signed by Judy to Gracie Doll at the time of the filming of the Munchkin scenes; fine. “Cowardly Lion” Bert Lahr signed photograph, 8 x 10 in., sepia-tone, showing Lahr glancing with that famous “surprised” look over his right shoulder, inscribed in white ink on the image, “Sincerely Bert Lahr”. Very fine. “The Scarecrow” Ray Bolger signed photograph, 8 x 10 in. (with deckled edges), sepia-tone, a formal publicity portrait by James Frances Connelly depicting Bolger casting a forlorn look into the camera. Boldly inscribed in blue ink at the center left, “To: Paul Cox Best Always Ray Bolger”. Fine. “Glinda” Billie Burke inscribed to a “Munchkin,” approx. 7.25 x 9 in., a half-figure portrait of Burke wearing a lace-embroidered dress with hat and veil. Boldly inscribed on the image in the lower right corner, “To Harry – With all good wishes Billie Burke 1938”. Burke has inscribed her portrait to 3.5-foot tall Harry Doll (d. 1985) (a.k.a. Kurt Schneider, Harry Earles), one of the members of “The Lollipop Guild”. Fine. Frank Morgan “The Wizard” signed photograph, 8 x 10 in., sepia-tone, a head-and-shoulders publicity photo featuring Morgan in a striped suit and tie. Inscribed at the center left in black ink, “To Martha with kindest regards – Frank Morgan”. Fine. “Uncle Henry” Charley Grapewin signed photograph, 8 x 10 in., black-and-white, a nice portrait of the seasoned actor with his wife, on the occasion of their 37th wedding anniversary. Inscribed in bold black ink on the image, “To a Perfect host and hostess, M & M Daubachens from Charley and Nancy Grapewin, Taken on their 37th anniversary Aug 1 – 1933”. Fine. “The Mayor of Oz” Charley Becker printed photograph signed, 5.75 x 3.5 in., black-and-white, a postcard photograph of the “Singer Midgets”, including Charley and his wife Jessie. Signed at the upper left corner of the image, “Hello Marie – Charley Becker”. The verso features a full handwritten letter from Jessie to Marie Billingsley of Tyler Texas, in which she describes their appearance at Coney Island. The postcard is postmarked July 30, 1941 – just two years following Becker’s memorable role as “The Mayor of Oz” in the film. Some mounting remnants on verso, and tape residue at the head (not affecting the signature). A wonderful collection of Wizard of Oz signed photographs, many with important film associations! $2,000 – $3,000

419. “Over the Rainbow” sheet music signed by lyricist E. Y. Harburg. Sheet music for “Over the Rainbow,” music by Harold Arlen and lyric by E.Y. Harburg. Signed by Harburg, the 9 x 11.75 in. commercial sheet music includes five pages of music with piano, vocal and guitar chords. The front cover features a smiling Judy Garland as “Dorothy Gale” from the beloved classic fantasy film The Wizard of Oz. Published by Alfred Publishing Co., Inc. Copyright 1938 with a renewed copyright in 1966. The sheet music is signed “E.Y. Harburg” boldly in black pen in the upper left hand corner. In good condition. $200 - $300

The 12.25 x 11.25 in. mat shows minor toning, some staining and chipping. Artwork is in fine condition. Unexamined out of frame. $1,000 - $1,500
470. Charlton Heston “Moses” prop Ten Commandments tablets from The Ten Commandments. (Paramount, 1956) DeMille’s greatest film, and his last, has joined the pantheon of epic films revered from generation to generation. These prop Ten Commandments tablets, “written with the finger of God,” measure 23.5 x 12 x 1.25 in. and are constructed of richly hewn fiberglass over a wooden core. The “engraving” is accomplished in an early Canaanite script practiced in the late Bronze Age (c. 13th century B.C.) – Moses’ era. Paramount Studios scenic artist A.J. Ciraolo made them to appear slightly irregular with molded chips and dings and then hand-applied paint speckling to resemble the red granite of Mount Sinai – one of DeMille’s key requirements. This set of tablets was acquired from a studio secretary by the prop department during the making of The Ten Commandments. At the time of production, the secretary wandered through the prop shop, fell in love with the tablets and asked if she might have a pair. The prop master told her she could, but only after they’d been shot in their scene. After the scene was completed, the secretary returned and claimed this set of tablets and asked if a hook of some sort could be added for hanging; the prop master obliged by affixing wire hoops in the back of the tablets with fiberglass. These pieces retain the beautiful red and black-speckled patina of the Sinai-inspired granite, with engraved letters and nearly pristine edges. Overall, the tablets remain in exceptional condition. Comes with a letter of provenance. $20,000 - $30,000
471. Yvonne De Carlo “Sephora” headpiece from The Ten Commandments. (Paramount, 1956)

Valley of the Dolls

A Novel by

Jacqueline Susann

489. Jacqueline Susann original manuscript extensively hand-corrected for Valley of the Dolls. This is the original, unbound 598-page manuscript submitted by Jacqueline Susann to her legendary literary agents Annie Laurie Williams and Maurice Crain (who represented the likes of John Steinbeck, Margaret Mitchell and Harper Lee, to name a few). The novel was rejected by many publishers before finally being picked up by Bernard Geiss, Assoc. and published in 1966. Typed on 8.5 x 11 in. onionskin paper, the pages are heavily annotated with editorial proofing marks and notes in pen and ink. The title page is typed, “Valley of the Dolls by Jacqueline Susann”. Written in pen beneath the author’s name is, “Original, uncorrected first draft of Valley of the Dolls submitted to Annie Laurie Williams and Maurice Crain.” The bottom of the page bears the “Maurice Crain Agency” ink stamp with agency address. Some pages bear folds and edge wear. Top page has minimal fraying. Comes in original 11 x 12 x 3 in. black marble cardboard clamshell box with clasp fastener featuring a printed cover label with the publisher’s Gallic Rooster logo stating, “Compliments of Bantam Books and The Author”, with “Original MMS. Valley of the Dolls!” handwritten in ink. Overall, in very good condition. Valley of the Dolls was a hit when released in 1966 and has since sold over 30,000,000 copies. Susann began her early days as an actress of limited success on stage and screen as well as being considered a “party girl” in her private life, before venturing into novel writing. Her own free-thinking behavior and social experience, as well as the people she encountered, are credited with greatly informing and populating her work. Valley of the Dolls lead the way for other authors such as Jackie Collins to write about the behind-the-scenes lives of the real-life rich and famous beneath a veneer of fiction. The popular book was quickly adapted for the silver screen and the film, starring Barbara Parkins, Patty Duke and Sharon Tate, was released in 1967. $30,000 - $50,000

490. Historic collection of costumes worn by Julie Andrews “Maria” and the “Von Trapp children” from The Sound of Music. (TCF, 1965) The most successful movie musical in history, The Sound of Music earned five Oscars, including Best Picture in 1965, and displaced Gone With the Wind as the highest grossing film of all time. Its first release lasted more than four and one half years, and its landmark score includes some of the most beloved songs in the American songbook, including “Edelweiss”, “Do-Re-Mi”, “Sixteen Going on 17”, “My Favorite Things” and the title song. Beautifully filmed in the Austrian mountains and Salzburg, the film follows the experience of the Von Trapp family who leave their homeland to escape Nazi occupation. Included with the following costumes is a 4-page typewritten story of the Von Trapp family signed by Maria Von Trapp, explaining the origins of singing family and events leading to their eventual escape from Third Reich-controlled Austria. (From the collection of Chris Christiansen)
Also included is (1) rust-colored cotton vest with interior Western Costume label typewritten, “Duane Chase 3rd Do-Re-Me” (not visible). Color faded on front panels. All from Western Costume “Star Collection” Part III held by Butterfield & Butterfield December 3 & 4, 1994.

Von Trapp to Maria. Interior Western Costume bias label handwritten “Angela Cartwright” with “SOM” marked in ink on inner front collar. Slight staining at bottom hem. Both from the Western Costume “Star Collection” Part III held by Butterfield & Butterfield December 3 & 4, 1994.

Set of (3) Charmian Carr “Liesel” costumes worn in “Edelweiss,” “So Long, Farewell” and “Sixteen Going on Seventeen” sequences. Including: (1) Green dress with purple flower bib collar and tiered sleeves. Internal Western Costume label handwritten, “Charmian Farnon” with “Liesl” written over actors’ name. Worn during the famous “Edelweiss” number where Capt. Von Trapp (Christopher Plummer) finally softens and sings with his children; also worn in “The Lonely Goatherd” puppet show scene (1) Hand-embroidered creme colored dress with hand-embroidered floral motif and fine white beads. Worn while dancing alone on the veranda during the Von Trapp ball before singing the spirited “So Long, Farewell” with the other children. Internal Western Costume bias label handwritten, “Charmian Farnon” (birth name) and (1) Champagne chiffon gown with ribbon on bodice. Repair to the delicate chiffon. Worn in the “Sixteen Going on Seventeen” number, which ends in the rain. Studio distressed from water during the theatrical rainstorm. Some distress and overall discoloration. All from the Western Costume “Star Collection” Part III held by Butterfield & Butterfield December 3 & 4, 1994. Without question, the most comprehensive collection of signature costumes from The Sound of Music any institution or collector could ever hope to obtain. The importance of this collection cannot be overstated. $800,000 – $1,200,000
491. VINTAGE LIBERACE PERFORMANCE COSTUME. This flamboyant and sparkling ensemble was worn by master pianist and showman Liberace, and is attributed to the disco era (c. 1970s). These elaborate, over-the-top costumes includes a blue-feathered, black velvet cape with a stylized, mod “phoenix rising” design appliqued on the back, a white Oscar de la Renta jacket laden with rhinestone epaulettes and covered in heavy beading with the “phoenix rising” motif echoed on its back, black polyester pants with black rhinestone stripes and “Liberace” typed on the interior label, with a pair of shoes covered with gold foil applique and finished with strings of beaded rhinestones cascading over the tops. A staggeringly bold and outrageous costume of the sort that was the signature of this one-of-a-kind entertainer. In good condition. $4,000 - $6,000

492. FRANK SINATRA’S DRESS SHOES FROM HIS PERSONAL WARDROBE. A pair of Frank Sinatra’s size 8, black, patent-leather, slip-on dress shoes embellished with grosgrain bow and foam inserts. The shoes were custom made for Mr. Sinatra by “Carroll & Company” and have the company logo and “Mr. Sinatra” embossed in the foot bed. These highly polished shoes were a part of Sinatra’s suave and fashionable personal wardrobe. The shoes are in fine condition and display beautifully, with old-school glamour synonymous with “The Chairman of the Board”. Accompanied by a letter of authenticity from Sinatra’s personal costumer, Mr. Castellano. $1,500 - $2,500
493. Frank Sinatra’s personal Pierre Cardin bow-tie. Frank Sinatra’s personal, black silk, Pierre Cardin bow-tie. This oversized, tie-up, butterfly bow-tie was part of Sinatra’s fashionable formal wardrobe. The classic black bowtie, in a crisp knot or hanging untied, became one of “Old Blue Eyes” signature accessories in his life and professional appearances. In fine condition. Accompanied by a letter of authenticity from Sinatra’s personal costumer, Mr. Castellano. $800 - $1,200

494. Frank Sinatra designed gift jacket for his personal costumer. This windbreaker was custom-made by order of Frank Sinatra for his personal costumer and longtime friend, Michael Castellano. The jacket is constructed of brown satin material with orange and white striped elastic cuffs, matching waistband, orange button snaps, and a custom patch on the left breast. The back of the jacket features the quote, “Living Well is the Best Revenge, F.T.A.” embroidered in orange. This windbreaker was part of a limited edition designed by the entertainer for his closest friends and entourage. The phrase on the back was one of Sinatra’s personal sayings, and the “F.T.A.” at the bottom was an abbreviation for “F--- Them All”, an indication of the performer’s no-nonsense personality and brash sense of humor. Sinatra had a limited series of custom lapel pins made based on the patch design, which were also given to members of his entourage. Wearing the jacket or one of the pins provided Frank’s friends with “all access passes” at casinos and hotels he frequented, and guaranteed VIP treatment in the city of Palm Springs where Sinatra’s “Twin Palms” estate was located. Mr. Castellano received this garment as a personal gift from Sinatra prior to leaving his service in 1981. The interior of the jacket has Castellano’s initials “M.C.” handwritten and the jacket is in very good condition with minor evidence of age. Accompanied by a letter of authenticity from Mr. Castellano. $3,000 – $5,000

495. Dean Martin’s screen-worn “Capt. Vernon Demerest” gray pilot jacket from Airport. (Universal, 1970) Gray captain’s jacket screen-worn by Dean Martin as “Capt. Vernon Demerest” in the action film Airport, also starring Burt Lancaster and Jacqueline Bisset. Martin is seen wearing this jacket throughout the film. The jacket is complete with original sleeve braids and is in very good screen-worn condition. Custom tailored for Dean Martin by Sy Devore, the jacket retains the original, internal tailor’s tag with the actor’s name and the production date, “2-6-69” clearly typed. The jacket is accompanied by a letter of authenticity from the costume house. $2,000 - $3,000

KENNETH STRICKFADEN

The following three lots are from the collection of Kenneth Strickfaden (1896-1984), innovative genius of illusionary special effects who created some of the most unforgettable images in the fantasy genre of motion pictures. It was Strickfaden who created Dr. Frankenstein’s laboratory with his flaming Tesla coils, reflectors, spinning rotary discs and wooden insulators, setting the standard for all mad-scientist labs to come. Following Strickfaden’s great success in Frankenstein (1931), he created the science fiction apparatus in more than 100 motion picture films and television programs, including The Mask of Fu Manchu, The Bride of Frankenstein, The Phantom Empire, Flash Gordon, Son of Frankenstein, The Wizard of Oz, and television’s The Munsters. The skilled technician, known around Hollywood’s back lots as “Mr. Electric,” once doubled for Boris Karloff in a dangerous scene and was nearly electrocuted. A science teacher at heart, Strickfaden started making personal appearances in the 1930s featuring his beloved creations. “Kenstrick’s Space Age Science Show” was both informative and entertaining and proved a tremendous hit with audiences. Despite his age and failing health, Strickfaden enthusiastically continued his one-man shows until his death at the age of 87.

524. KENNETH STRICKFADEN HANGING TRAVELING ARC FROM THE MUNSTERS AND DRACULA VS. FRANKENSTEIN. This one-of-a-kind, vintage Kenneth Strickfaden invention was used in various configurations and in various mad laboratories in movies dating as far back as the 1930s. Consisting of (5) heavy steel rings connected horizontally by three 12 in. glass insulators between each tier. Designed to be hung with the rings suspended, the (2) top and bottom rings measure 27 in. diameter; the (3) center rings measure 37 in. diameter. Overall height when hanging is approx. 60 in. tall. Attributed as used in different configurations in: House of Frankenstein (1944), The Munsters season 2 episode: “Just Another Pretty Face” and Dracula vs. Frankenstein (1971), among others. In vintage good condition. Special arrangements will apply. $6,000 - $8,000

525. KENNETH STRICKFADEN COPPER SPHERICAL ELECTRODE FROM FRANKENSTEIN AND BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN. This copper spherical electrode was used in Dr. Frankenstein’s laboratory in Frankenstein (1931) and repurposed and mounted close to “The Bride’s” head (in front of the parabolic “Nebularium” mirror) in the sequel The Bride of Frankenstein (1935). The piece was also used, in different configurations, in numerous subsequent productions. The device measures 21 in. long with the diameter of the hollow copper electrode measuring 4.75 in. The wooden insulator is not the same as seen in Bride of Frankenstein, yet is a vintage Strickfaden part used throughout his storied career. The copper has oxidized over the years, but remains in fine condition. Untested. $15,000 - $20,000
526. Kenneth Strickfaden

Small Traveling Arc from Young Frankenstein. (TCE, 1974) This elaborate device was called the “Variable Traveling Arc” by Strickfaden, and is composed of a round plastic cylinder mounted on an 8 x 14 in. wooden base with two interior metal rods topped by a pair of electrodes. Standing 42 in., this device appears in Young Frankenstein, and almost certainly was used in some configuration in films dating back to the 1930’s. In addition, this piece was used in Strickfaden’s traveling science shows. Untested. Very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $8,000 - $12,000

Disney Studio bound and bradded “Final Shooting Script” for the Sci-Fi/Fantasy film 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. The script cover bears the Disney label with typed title, draft and screenplay by Earl Felton. Consisting of a 141-page blue and green revision script. The script was won from Walt Disney himself, in a card game, as stated in the consignor’s accompanying LOA, his grandfather and his buddies were “real squares” and didn’t gamble for money - only for “cool objects”. This script was wagered, won and passed to the consignor by his grandmother. It has remained in the consigner’s possession until now. The blue cover shows some water staining and chipping to the edges. Content is complete and in very good condition. $3,000 - $5,000
Lot 538
538. Hero “Nautilus” crewman dive helmet from 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. (Disney, 1954) Few films have captured the imagination of viewers like Disney’s 1954 epic science fiction adventure 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea, adapted from Jules Verne’s book of the same name. The film’s production designer was the legendary Harper Goff—one of the primary designers of Disneyland. The interior / exterior design of Capt. Nemo’s fantastic Nautilus and its futuristic (for the 19th Century) equipment fused the elegance of the Victorian-era with the Industrial Age. This is an incredibly rare Nautilus crewman underwater dive helmet. Based on a vintage brass sponge diver helmet, Goff’s design team modified the look by hand-crafting a copper cowling in the front, “gills” on the sides and “crown” piece topped with tubules set around the perimeter. A “breathing cylinder” with flanking hoses completed the look. The helmet comes with the original brass breastplate which attaches by a screw mechanism. The crownpiece has been sympathetically hand-crafted in copper, using original production photographs for reference, as well as the breathing cylinder, rubber hoses and pressure release valve, bringing the helmet back to its former screen glory. Measures 17.5 in. tall x 13.5 in. wide (mounted on breastplate). 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea was Disney’s first science fiction film, and the only film of the genre personally produced by Walt Disney. Items from this underwater epic are exceedingly rare, this being the first Nautilus dive helmet we have ever handled. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $20,000 - $30,000

539. Hero “Nautilus” crewman weighted dive boots from 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. (Disney, 1954) Few films have captured the imagination of viewers like Disney’s 1954 epic science fiction adventure 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea, adapted from Jules Verne’s book of the same name. This is an incredibly rare pair of Nautilus crewman underwater weighted diving boots. Heavy canvas uppers are bolted to a wooden insole, upon which the heavy brass “soles” and toe caps are bolted for steady walking on the sea floor. Features leather heel reinforcement with leather strap and laced rope to secure the boots in place. Boots stand 16 in. and weigh a substantial 11 pounds each. This is the first pair of Nautilus dive boots we have ever encountered. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 - $6,000

540. Original “Nautilus” pipe organ stanchion from 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. (Disney, 1954) The “Nautilus” was decorated to standards of luxury unequalled in a sea-going vessel at the time. This ornate stanchion protected Captain Nemo’s pipe organ. Measuring 29 inches in length, it is crafted of molded resin over steel rebar for reinforcement, painted to detail with gold-leaf motif on either end of the black column. The top has a steel bracket protruding from two sides to hold the “S” hooks to attach the rope barriers. Exhibits minor cracks, but in overall very good condition. This is the only Nautilus” set piece we have ever encountered. $1,000 - $1,500
541. NAUTILUS MINIATURE
FILMING SUB FROM THE RETURN OF CAPTAIN NEMO. (Irwin
Allen Prod., 1978) A miniature 15 x 22
x 94 in. detailed model of “Captain Nemo’s” submarine “The Nautilus” from the TV movie The Return of Captain Nemo produced by the legendary Irwin
Allen, aka: “Master of Disaster”. The sub is featured in the scene where “Professor Waldo Cunningham” (Burgess Meredith) launches a nuclear missile at Washington, D.C. But the Nautilus intervenes firing a laser and destroying the warhead. Consisting of expertly gold-painted fiberglass with side fins as well as a unique arrow-shaped tail fin. There are two red lights on each side of the turret and two propellers at the rear. Bay doors on the bottom of the vessel open. There are tiny square plastic portholes dotting the hull, the turret and the nose of the ship. Mounted at the front of the sub’s turret is the posable miniature ray gun used to thwart the nuclear attack. Internal wiring and gears are present, used to facilitate lighting the ship’s portholes, turning of propellers, etc. Irwin Allen props and models are rare to the collector’s market. This sub exhibits production-wear, light paint chipping and some rubbing. Overall, in very good condition. Electronics untested. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 - $6,000

542. ORIGINAL FANTASTIC VOYAGE SCRIPT. (TFE, 1966) An original vintage
Fantastic Voyage studio bound and bradded script dated

McDowall writes in white ink, in full: “Dear Art and Vi Mother has caused such a heartache that I have gone ape and I am forced to flee Newton. Please forward all mail to Fontainbleu Hotel, Boise, Idaho. Gratefully, Homer Box, P.S. It’s pretty racey in Boise!” The photo exhibits minor edge chipping. Accompanied by an elaborate one-page typed letter from Roddy McDowall in character as “Homer Box” as well as a two-page photocopy of a list of Hollywood celebrities and their fictitious names and occupations for this made up Newton community including: Rock Hudson aka “Russell ‘Moose’ Burgess” – Farmer, Julie Andrews aka “Laverne Karnes” – Sales, Peter Sellers and Brit Eckland aka “Lambert & Monica Cox” – Optometrist, and many more. In very good overall condition. $300 - $500
561. Original screen-used Chimp, Gorilla and Orangutan background masks from Planet of the Apes. (TCF, 1968) Planet of the Apes makeup master John Chambers and his Oscar-winning team of artists realized they did not have the manpower to transform hundreds of actors into apes using their innovative and elaborate prosthetics on a daily basis. So, they created these background masks for actors and extras furthest from camera. This is a set of three (3) background masks including: (1) chimp mask, (1) gorilla mask and (1) orangutan mask. Each mask is made of slip cast latex, hand painted and finished with life-like fake fur; a velcro flap closure neatly secures the back of the mask concealed under a lace hairpiece. While Chimp and Gorilla background masks have appeared at auction before, only three orangutan masks are known to have survived. This represents the only set of all three Planet of the Apes background masks to be offered. In vintage good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 - $6,000

560. Charlton Heston “Taylor” screen-worn astronaut pants from Planet of the Apes. (TCF, 1968) These studio-distressed astronaut pants were screen-worn by Charlton Heston as astronaut “Taylor” in one of the most famous scenes committed to film: the “Hunt” sequence from the sci-fi classic, Planet of the Apes. Heston wears these pants when a regiment of gorilla soldiers first attacks him and a group of docile humans. “Taylor” is flushed into the open, where he is wounded, captured and taken to a human kennel overseen by “Dr. Zira” (Kim Hunter). Heston wears these pants throughout the kennel scene. They are custom-made down to the ribbed cuff on the left leg – a unique detail not seen in any other astronaut wardrobe but screen-matched to the Hunt pants. Interior Western Costume label typewritten “Charlton Heston”. The garment is displayed on a realistic, full-body, 79 in. tall by 27 in. wide silicone figure of Charlton Heston featuring hand-punched human hair and prosthetic grade glass eyes, holding a black gorilla rifle pulled from an original mold. A truly one-of-a-kind piece from an absolute classic of science fiction cinema. In very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $12,000 - $15,000
562. 20th Century-Fox first-unit motion picture camera used to film Planet of the Apes, (TCF 1968) This 20th Century–Fox camera AKA “Fox” camera is the seventh of only seventeen made. Rarely seen outside the studio that built it. The Fox camera dominated the studios output for almost 36 years. Its last film was the 1968 science fiction epic Planet of the Apes. When sound took the industry by storm in the late 1920s, studios and their existing noisy cameras were caught flat-footed. The solution for most was to put the camera in a big heavy soundproof box or “blimp”. The prime example was the popular 120lb. Mitchell BNC (1936). 20th Century–Fox took a far more modern approach in 1932. Each individual component was designed to eliminate noise and vibration at its source. The result was the first “un-blimped” 35mm motion picture camera. It weighed in at 86 lbs. ready-to-shoot. This technological achievement was unrivaled until the introduction of the Panaflex forty years later in 1972. Planet of the Apes and TC-7 also mark the capitulation of Fox's own Cinemascope process to Panavision. Cinemascope and its massive lenses of the 1950s cut deeply into the functionality of the camera's original design. The coup de grace came in the late ’60s when the studio gave up the ghost and decided to embrace more modern Panavision lenses. This meant the camera had to be adapted to function like the bulky and popular Mitchell BNC (367 were made). TC-7 runs smooth and quiet with film. The focal plane shutter has been removed due to oxidation and swelling of the lead balance weight. A new “old” stock shutter is included. It was made for an 18th but not completed camera and is in vintage fine condition. It requires balancing before installation. This can be done at cost upon buyer’s request. Special shipping instructions will apply. $25,000 - $35,000
563. Steve McQueen’s signature screen-used “Frank Bullitt” hero tweed sports jacket worn in Bullitt. (Warner Bros., 1968) This brown herringbone tweed jacket, with suede elbow patches, was custom made for Hollywood legend Steve McQueen and worn in arguably his greatest film role — as all guts, no glory, San Francisco Police Lieutenant “Frank Bullitt”. Not only was this jacket worn in what is consistently voted as the best car chase sequence in film history — pitting “Bullitt’s” “Highland Green” 1968 Mustang GT 390 against the bad guy’s ’68 Dodge Charger — McQueen wore this jacket throughout the second half of the film. McQueen wears this distinctive jacket while on the hitman’s trail, the iconic car chase, while riding with Jacqueline Bisset in her yellow Porsche cabriolet in San Mateo, the police station, Coroner’s office and the climactic chase on foot at San Francisco International Airport where “Bullitt” finally kills the mobster and places this jacket over the dead body. The jacket was designed specifically without the charcoal-gray satin lining in the back, below the shoulder blades, to be cooler for McQueen to wear while filming in the car. In close-ups, the distinct herringbone patterns on the seams and edges of the lapels precisely screen match, serving as a fingerprint. In fine production used condition. This sports jacket is, without question, the premier 20th century male cinematic wardrobe piece, worn by star and “King of Cool” pop culture icon Steve McQueen in his best-remembered role. The motorsport tie-in and appeal is undeniable. This historic costume piece was exhibited at the Warner Bros. Studio Museum. This item is fully authenticated by the seller and a letter of authenticity will be included with the lot. Cooler than a fridge loaded with ice cubes at the North Pole. $600,000 - $800,000
564. VINTAGE ORIGINAL OVERSIZED ADVANCE BULLITT MOVIE POSTER. (Warner Bros., 1968)
130 x 40 in. 1-sheet poster for Bullitt. The poster features an image of Steve McQueen as “Frank Bullitt”, doing what he does best; looking cool. A text column at right reads, in part: “BULLITT comes to this theater soon. That ought to shake up the place pretty good. Not many freaky cops like BULLITT around…” The poster exhibits some edge wear and small tears. Remains in original rolled, good condition. $400 - $600

565. STEVE McQUEEN’S SIGNED GULF TRAVEL CARD ALLOWING THE STAR FREE FUEL. Steve McQueen’s signed personal Gulf Oil Travel Card. Gulf Oil Corporation custom “Travel Card” issued to and used by Steve McQueen. Traditional plastic credit card with embossed numbers and McQueen name. This card is actually the Steve McQueen-branded version of the card with the actor’s name printed in red over the left side of a checkered racing border along the lower edge. The card’s expiration date is 12/99. Front of card features a colorful illustration of a Gulf gas station and logo central in a setting of vacation and leisure time images including cars, boat, resort and jet plane. The signature strip on the flipside features Steve McQueen’s signature faded and worn from use. Gulf Oil was famous for its association with auto racing, as it sponsored the John Wyer Automotive team in the 1960s and early ’70s. The signature light blue and orange color scheme associated with its Ford GT-40 and Porsche 917 is arguably the most famous in racing history. Much of its popularity is attributed to the fact that in the 1971 film Le Mans, Steve McQueen’s character drives for the Gulf team. Due to this corporate sponsorship arrangement, McQueen received “free Gulf gas for life anywhere in the U.S.” This item is fully authenticated by the seller and a letter of authenticity will be included with the lot. $4,000 - $6,000

566. STEVE McQUEEN “HENRI ’PAPILLON’ CHARRIERE” SIGNATURE PRISON COSTUME FROM PAPILLON. (Allied Artists, 1973) Steve McQueen’s “Henri ‘Papillon’ Charriere” signature prison costume consisting of rough hewn grey wool tunic with three-button collar and matching pants. Both tunic and pants feature interior Western Costume labels typewritten “Steve McQueen”. Based on the true story of Henri Charriere, also known as “Papillon”, a petty criminal who was wrongly convicted of murder and sentenced to life in a French penal colony in ‘Guiane’ (French Guiana, South America). En route to Devil’s Island, Papillon befriends fellow criminal Louis Dega, played by Dustin Hoffman, and the two develop a deep friendship in the midst of their hardships. Now considered a classic, McQueen’s performance in Papillon is regarded by critics to be his best work and he was nominated for Best Motion Picture Actor, Drama, for the Golden Globe Awards. A signature costume piece from one of McQueen’s most memorable roles, personifying the power of the human will. In fine production used condition. This item is fully authenticated by the seller and a letter of authenticity will be included with the lot. $15,000 - $20,000
567. Steve McQueen's personal Solar Productions bicycle used on the 20th Century-Fox lot. This vintage Schwinn Sting-Ray model bicycle was ridden by Steve McQueen during the filming of the 20th Century-Fox film The Towering Inferno. McQueen rode this bike to shuttle between sets and locations on the lot. The blue bike with elevated seat and “ape-hanger” handle bars features knobby wheels and a hanging plexiglass plaque attached beneath the seat reading “Solar” in faded gold-leaf lettering surrounded by gold stars. The bike exhibits overall rust patches, age and wear. All vintage parts present as used by Steve McQueen and can be easily restored. This item is fully authenticated by the seller and a letter of authenticity will be included with the lot. $4,000 - $6,000

Both suit jackets feature breast pocket and two flap hip pockets and retain the “Brioni” maker’s label and “Made in Italy” collar label. Personal garments from the “King of Cool”. In very good condition. This item is fully authenticated by the seller and a letter of authenticity will be included with the lot. $1,500 - $2,500
570. Original poster art for The Great Escape. (United Artists, 1963) Original full-color poster art for the classic war movie The Great Escape. Accomplished in acrylic on 22 x 30.5 in. illustration board. The artwork features striking likenesses of Steve McQueen as “Hilts” and James Garner as “The Scrounger” with other POWs making a bold escape from a prison camp. Some age, wear, soiling and tape remnants on edges. In overall, good condition. $3,000 - $5,000

571. Original poster art of Steve McQueen for The Great Escape. (United Artists, 1963) Original black-and-white poster art for the POW escape film The Great Escape. This art as featured on a 1-sheet, Australian re-release poster. Accomplished in gouache on 28 x 19 in. illustration board. The artwork depicts Steve McQueen as “Hilts” jumping a barbed wire barricade with a motorcycle. Minor soiling and some tape remnants on edges. In overall, very good condition. $4,000 - $6,000
572. Original “number 7” poster art for The Magnificent Seven. (United Artists, 1960) Original black-and-white poster art for the classic western The Magnificent 7. The iconic poster art is accomplished in pencil and pastels on 25.5 x 30.5 in. illustration board. The artwork features vivid likenesses of Steve McQueen as “Vin Tanner”, Yul Brynner as “Chris Larabee Adams” and Eli Wallach as “Calvera” contained within a bold number seven along with action scenes and bandits on horseback. Some age, soiling and tape remnants on edges. Minor professional repair to lower right corner. Overall artwork, in very good condition. $2,000 - $3,000

573. Original poster art for The Magnificent Seven. (United Artists, 1960) Original black-and-white poster art for the classic western The Magnificent 7. The art is accomplished in pencil, gouache and pastels on 18 x 25 in. illustration board. The artwork features Yul Brynner as “Chris Larabee Adams” backed up by the rough looking other six of his Magnificent 7. Some age, wear, soiling, tape and adhesive remnants on edges. Water damage and staining to upper right hand corner area. Overall artwork, in good condition. $1,000 - $1,500
574. Collection of (150+) key stills of Angela Lansbury and cast from Bedknobs and Broomsticks. (Walt Disney, 1971) Massive studio key-set of (150+) approx. 8 x 10 in. color and gelatin-silver prints from this beloved Disney live-action film, starring Angela Lansbury and Roddy McDowall. Minimal duplication of images within the lot, and this is likely the most comprehensive image archive extant for this memorable film. Fine throughout. $200 - $300

575. Roy Snart “Paul” custom-made shirt from Bedknobs and Broomsticks. (Walt Disney, 1971) As “Paul Rawlins” one of the three kids in this Disney live-action feature, young Roy Snart makes his movie debut. Bedknobs and Broomsticks would turn out to be one of only two films Snart would appear in. This is a Roy Snart as “Paul” costume piece consisting of a custom made kid-sized, multi-colored striped, button-down shirt. Internal bias label is typed with “Roy Snart” and stamped with “WDR” on label and lower back inside hem. In production-used, fine condition. $200 - $300

576. Hero screen-used illuminating bedknob from Bedknobs and Broomsticks. (Walt Disney, 1971) During the 1940s blitz in WWII England, three “Rawlings” children are evacuated to a small village called Pepperinge Eye. There they meet “Miss Price” (Angela Lansbury), an apprentice witch hoping to use her magic to assist in the war effort. As a reward for keeping her secret, Miss Price casts a spell on a bedknob that young “Paul Rawlings” has removed from a brass bed in the children’s room. When re-attached, the bed will travel anywhere that Paul asks. This is the actual bedknob that is the very key to the entire story and even the film’s Bedknobs and Broomsticks title. Consisting of solid, translucent red cast resin, the 3 in. round knob has a fluted foot where the knob would connect to a bedpost. The knob has been lightly plated in metallic gold with spots created to allow a strong light source, introduced through the 2.25 in. long hole from the base of the knob, make it appear to “magically” illuminate/glow from within. In the film, the bedknob’s glow is subsidized through special effects, but this practical knob enhanced the glowing appearance. Exhibits age, production-wear and some metallic surface scratching and pitting. Overall in very good condition. The bedknob is an icon of screen FX magic, within a beloved example of Disney story-telling magic. Originally obtained from special effects coordinator Danny Lee and comes with letter of provenance. $12,000 - $15,000
577. Original dancing nightgown puppet from Bedknobs and Broomsticks. (Walt Disney, 1971) In a magical (and somewhat creepy) scene in the classic, live-action fantasy Bedknobs and Broomsticks, “Miss Price’s” (Angela Lansbury) nightgown animates and dances. This is the original, screen-used marionette nightgown puppet from the film. The puppet measures 50 x 23 in. and consists of a soft sculpture of foam stuffed and with wire jointed muslin torso arms, dressed in a ruffled, cotton nightgown. The puppet is manipulated by marionette filament strings attached to a 48 in. long wooden puppeteer’s rig with a series of four 10 in. handling dowels protruding from the main rod. The foam armature is deteriorating, but the piece still maintains its shape and flexibility. The gown has mildly yellowed with age. Overall, in good condition. $500 - $1,000

578. Prop German helmet from Kelly’s Heroes. (MGM, 1970) In the WW II comedy, Kelly’s Heroes, a group of American soldiers go AWOL to rob a bank behind enemy lines. This is an actual German helmet consisting of a metal shell with leather liner and leather buckled chinstrap. The helmet has been comically defaced with graffiti including cartoons and names of American cities like “Las Vegas”, “New Orleans”, “Chicago”, etc. and the inscription, “Benjy Chulay was here”. The helmet shows some production wear and surface paint flaking. Overall, in vintage fair condition. $400 - $600

579. Clint Eastwood personal racing jacket. This was a personal racing jacket of mega-star Clint Eastwood. Consisting of blue cotton, yellow and white striped “Goodyear” brand racing jacket with red fleece lining. 591. Close Encounters of the Third Kind alien effects prop. (Columbia, 1977) Stephen Spielberg made his first foray into sci-fi filmmaking with his dazzling Close Encounters of the Third Kind. The movie was a revelation to audience members and a leap forward in motion picture special effects. Making UFO and alien visitation believable was no small feat. This miniature rig is composed of a 10 x 4 in. tooled aluminum plate with dozens of tiny cast resin Alien torsos, heads and arms painted black. The figures are attached to rods below, adjoining one control bar that caused them all to show movement at once. There is a bank of (9) small lights affixed behind the figures. The effect of the rig was for bright lights to cast the tiny moving aliens into silhouette and create the illusion of a large group of space visitors amassing. A clever piece of moviemaking craft and ingenuity from a landmark in Sci-Fi film. This prop is production used, good condition. $1,000 - $1,500

592. Paris Themmen’s “Mike Teevee” personal script for Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory (Paramount, 1971) Original 8.5 x 11 in., third-draft screenplay for the enduring children’s classic movie Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory. (9) sketches feature native costume sketches in great detail with notes, including turbans, sashes, vests and trousers and detailed illustrations of characters wearing the garments. (1) Order for these costumes to be made “as soon as possible” from Alex Tavoularis on Apocalypse Now / Hemisphere Pictures stationery dated June 19, 1976. All in very good condition. $800 - $1,200
602. James Bond concept art (3) thought to be for *Live and Let Die. (Eon Prod., 1973) Collection of (3) Ivor Beddoes concept sketches believed attributed to the 8th installment in the James Bond franchise, Live and Let Die. Collection includes (1) 20 x 25 in. graveyard ritual scene, unsigned (1) 19 x 8 in. detail of a foreground Gargoyle over a ritual altar scene and (1) 14.5 x 22.5 in. panel labeled “Interior Manas Chapel” signed and dated, “Ivor Beddoes ‘71” at lower right. All sketches are accomplished in pencil, watercolor and gouache on artist board. The “Temple” and “Gargoyle” panels are tipped to 20 x 25 in. boards. These early concepts would have been generated before the production was committed to the New Orleans location and voodoo themes. All pieces exhibit bumped corners and some chipping to edges. Overall in good condition. $3,000 - $5,000

603. Vintage clapperboard from Octopussy. (Eon Prod., 1983) Vintage original wooden clapperboard from the 13th installment in the blockbuster “James Bond” franchise: Octopussy. The hinged clapstick is present on top with signature black-and-white interleaved diagonal lines. Measuring approx. 13.5 x 15 in. Imprinted with “Eon Prods Ltd Octopussy” and “Director: J. Glen / Cameraman A. Hume”. Below is the chalkboard “slate” used for designating and marking particular scenes and takes. Exhibiting signs of age, wear and production use. In overall good condition. $2,000 - $3,000
“James Bond’s” Walther gun, as used by Sean Connery in publicity shots for four “James Bond” films. This 4.5 mm Walther air pistol, LP Model 53, serial number 054159, was first used by Sean Connery for the promotion of his second “James Bond” film, From Russia with Love. Publicist Tom Carlile arranged a series of poses with photographer David Hurn to shoot an iconic portrait of Connery as “James Bond 007” with his Walther pistol which was to be used as the primary image for the film’s poster art and advertising/marketing campaign. When Connery arrived at the photo studio, together with Tom Carlile and representatives from United Artists, it was discovered that no one had brought “007’s” Walther semi-automatic pistol. By chance, photographer Hurn practiced air pistol target shooting as a hobby and he used a Walther.

It was decided between Carlile and Hurn, without telling Connery or the other representatives from United Artists, that they would use his air pistol for the photographs and if anyone were to bring it up that the Walther name on the gun would reassure them. In theory, the long barrel of the air pistol should have been removed by airbrushing during the design of the actual poster, but, for reasons unknown, it was never done. What became of this shoot was one of the most iconic photographic images of the 20th century. The picture of Sean Connery holding the long-barreled gun across his chest or alongside his face became the most famous of all “Bond” images. So effective were the shots from this From Russia with Love photo shoot, that the series of publicity shots were used for the following three Bond films: Goldfinger (1964), Thunderball (1965) and You Only Live Twice (1967). The gun features a 24 cm. barrel and blackened finish; comes with its original close-fitted Walther presentation case as well as a signed letter of provenance from photographer David Hurn. This gun sold at Christie’s London in 2010 for a world record $437,000. $200,000 - $300,000
605. Original N70CF Acrostar BD-5J micro jet used in all of the flying sequences from Octopussy as flown by stunt pilot Corkey Fornof. Comes with signed letter of provenance. (Eon Prod., 1983) Original N70CF Acrostar BD-5J micro jet used in all of the flying sequences from Octopussy. In perhaps the most famous of all opening sequences in the 50 years of “James Bond” in films, Roger Moore backs a small jet out of a horse trailer, takes off from the road, flies over military troops, under a bridge, rolls in canyons and flies through an airplane hangar. This is the jet that was used in all the aerial sequences of the film. The BD-5J has a 17 ft. wingspan and a small, streamlined fuselage holding its semi-reclined pilot under a large canopy. It holds the record for the world’s lightest jet aircraft, weighing only 358.8 lbs. (162.7 kg) and was capable of reaching 300 mph (480 km/h). The jet is so compact that it can fit in a rental truck with a 12 ft. cargo area with the wings detached. These world famous Octopussy flying sequences were performed by stunt pilot John W. “Corkey” Fornof. In addition to its most famous use in Octopussy, Fornof flew this jet in scores of television programs and commercials, such as “The Spectacular World of Guinness Records” (world’s smallest jet), “Good Morning America”, “25 Years of James Bond 007”, “That’s Incredible”, “ABC’s Wide World of Sports” and countless airshows. In addition, this jet has appeared in virtually every aviation publication in the free world. BD-5J’s were popular at air shows throughout the 1980s and many were involved in crashes due to the demanding high performance nature of the plane. The engine has been removed for exhibition purposes and the aircraft’s current air-worthiness is untested. Comes with signed letter of provenance by Corkey Fornof who has owned the jet since it was built. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $200,000 - $300,000
606. SYLVESTER STALLONE “JOHN RAMBO” HERO SCREEN-USED SURVIVAL KNIFE WITH SHEATH FROM FIRST BLOOD. (Anabasis N.V., 1982) This “John Rambo” hero knife was used by Sylvester Stallone in the classic action thriller First Blood—the first film in the Rambo franchise. Crafted by legendary Arkansas knifesmith Jimmy Lile, the knife features a 9-inch D2 steel blade with 14 sawteeth (measures 13.88 in. overall length) and is one of six used in the production. The hollow stainless steel handle is wrapped in non-slip nylon cord and the stainless steel screw-in butt cap features a built-in compass. The guard features both “flat” and “Phillips”-head screwdrivers on either side. The ricasso is stamped “FIRST BLOOD” on one side, and “5 OF 13 / LILE” (the film production received knives 1 through 6) on the reverse. A length of leather cord runs through a machined hole in the guard. The guard shows very light surface tarnishing and the bead blast finish exhibits minor scuffing along the sides of the blade. The leather sheath with snap-closure whetstone pouch is stamped on the backside, “Jimmy Lile / The Arkansas Knifesmith / Russellville, Ark. / 501-968-2011”. Sheath exhibits general scuffing with minor scratches from production use. Obtained from Tom Bronson, costume designer for First Blood, and comes with a signed LOA. Exceedingly rare, this is the only known screen-used “Rambo” knife from First Blood to reach auction. A collector could not hope to find a better and more symbolic piece from this incredibly iconic film character. $20,000 - $30,000
607. DAVID WARNER’S “EVIL GENIUS” PERSONAL SCRIPT FROM TIME BANDITS. (Handmade Films, 1981) Time Bandits, directed by Terry Gilliam, has emerged as one of the great fantasy films of the 1980s. It follows the travails of a young boy who becomes entangled with an inter-dimensional group of thieves traveling through time. The “Supreme Being” and the “Devil” himself, played by David Warner, are chasing them. This is Warner’s personal 8.5 x 11 in., studio bound and bradded script used during the production (when the film was called “The Time Bandits”). Dated April 1, 1980, the 135-page script exhibits minor handling wear to the cover edge. The shooting script is accompanied by the commercially published, illustrated paperback version. Very little from this classic film has ever come to market. $300 - $500

608. ORIGINAL ANIMAL HOUSE REVISED FINAL DRAFT. (Universal, 1978) An 8.5 x 11 in., 126-page, Revised Final Draft Screenplay for the groundbreaking comedy, Animal House. The studio bound and bradded script features a Universal Studios yellow paper cover also imprinted with film title, numbered 00432, and dated October 12, 1977. Written by Harold Ramis, Douglas Kenney and Chris Miller and starring the late legend John Belushi, this irreverent frat house comedy was a huge success and put director John Landis on the map. Cover exhibits corner bumping and soiling. Otherwise, in good condition. $400 - $600

609. FABER COLLEGE PENNANT FROM ANIMAL HOUSE. (Universal, 1978) Heavy paper 27 x 11.5 in. Faber College pennant from the irreverent comedy Animal House. The pennant consists of blue heavy stock (cardboard-like) paper with yellow screened “Faber” accompanied by the image of the school’s mascot, Attila the Hun. Faber College was the fictitious school around which John Landis’ misfit crew from Omega Theta Pi fraternity commits havoc. The pennant shows minimal paper loss at the tip of its point and mild curling. Otherwise, in good condition. $600 - $800

610. VINTAGE JOHN BELUSHI SIGNED CONTINENTAL DIVIDE SCRIPT. (Universal, 1981) Original studio bound and bradded copy of a 220-page Continental Divide script dated September 8, 1970. Written by Lawrence Kasdan. John Belushi plays “Ernie Souchak” in this romantic comedy. Belushi has boldly signed, “John Belushi” on inside title page. The cover marked “Final Draft” and featuring the Universal City Studios logo is in very good condition and the content is fine. $300 - $500

611. DAN AYKROYD SCREEN-USED “Sgt. JOE FRIDAY” POLICE BADGE IN WALLET WITH BUSINESS CARD FROM DRAGNET. (Universal, 1989) Dan Aykroyd screen-used “Sgt. Joe Friday” 3.5 x 2.5 in. LAPD prop badge from Dragnet. The impressive badge, stamped “714”, is mounted in a black leather 3.5 x 5.5 in. flip-wallet. Inside are (2) LAPD business cards - one for “Joe Friday”, the other for “Pep Strebeck” (Tom Hanks). On the reverse of the badge is a detective calling card. The wallet is equipped with a belt clip. “Joe Friday’s” badge is a central element in advertising and poster images as well. This highly visible prop is in fine, production-used condition. $1,000 - $1,500
612. Yaphet Kotto “Parker”

Nostromo leather flight jacket from Alien (TCF, 1979) In the groundbreaking sci-fi horror movie Alien, Yaphet Kotto plays “Parker,” a burly engineer aboard the Nostromo commercial towing spaceship. This is the screen-worn “Parker” crew jacket highly visible in scenes below the decks in the bowels of the gargantuan ship. Consisting of a brown leather flight jacket with elastic wool sleeve cuffs and waist, two hip flap pockets, an embroidered, Egyptian inspired wing patch on the left breast and “USCSS NOSTROMO” embroidered patches on right and left shoulder. Bold yellow “Nostromo” in lettering across the back. Front zipper closure. Internal “Berman and Nathan’s” bias label handwritten with “Yaphet Kotto”. The jacket is studio-distressed with worn patches and scuffs. In production-used very good condition. $10,000 - $15,000

613. Screen-used Nostromo Gun from Alien (TCF, 1979) From Ridley Scott’s sci-fi masterpiece Alien comes this small-scale prop Nostromo Gun made for use by child actors. To give the impression that the “Space Jockey” set was much larger than it actually was, child actors dressed in smaller-scale costumes and guns were attached to space suits in holsters. This prop weapon consists of a commercial Webley metal air gun with various production modifications, additional dressing including a metal tube with threaded plug in the gun barrel, an added arm, possible laser guide below the barrel and a sightscope accessory on top, etc. The prop exhibits some production distress and age. In very good condition. $8,000 - $12,000
615. NOSTROMO SURVEY BUGGY FROM ALIEN. (20th Century-Fox, 1979). Alien was groundbreaking in terms of creature and set design. The realistic design of the space ship Nostromo and its interior elements fell upon the shoulders of Ron Cobb and Chris Foss. While searching aboard the Nostromo for the small creature that had just burst through “Kane’s” chest, “Ripley” (played by Sigourney Weaver) passes by this survey vehicle in a cargo hold. Designed as a static vehicle, it measures 9 ft. long x 4.5 ft. wide x 7 ft. tall (from the top of the satellite dish), and is constructed of wood on a welded steel frame which is dressed and intricately detailed with parts fashioned of steel, fiberglass, resin, vacuum-formed plastic, electrical components and camera parts. Painted in gold with studio-distressed detailing to appear like a well-used piece of industrial equipment. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $15,000 - $20,000
616. (3) Pieces from the crashed iconic Drop Ship from Aliens. (TCF, 1979) The 1/12th scale Drop-ship filming miniature was constructed at Pinewood Studios in 1985 for James Cameron’s Aliens. A number of “shell” versions were made and completely destroyed for the dramatic crash sequence. These (3) highly visible elements are the remains of a crashed Colonial Marine drop ship from the James Cameron epic. Included are (1) tail fragment measuring 17 x 4.5 in., (1) wing fragment 26 x 21 in., and large 10 x 9.5 x 5.5 in. armament (missile) pod, loaded with several unfired missiles, individually handmade of styrene. All of the pieces are painted and finished by Academy Award-winning FX artists, and the armament pod in particular shows all the best of the industry’s craft with detailed paint and stencil work. The tail segment is broken and exhibits the fiberglass interior. Overall, in production used good condition. $2,000 - $3,000

617. Aliens original pencil storyboard panel sketch of APC vehicle. (TCF, 1986) This is an original storyboard sketch of the rugged APC (Armored Personnel Carrier) seen in the Sci-Fi action classic Aliens, starring Sigourney Weaver. The APC, carrying space marines, is delivered via a drop-ship to the alien-infested planet, LV-426, to investigate a loss of communication with a human colony. The sketch, by artist Bill Dear, shows the APC driving down the exit ramp of the drop-ship, and is accomplished in pencil on white storyboard paper, with handwritten production notes below. In fine condition. $300 - $500

618. Aliens drop ship nuke missile prop. (TCF, 1986) This is one of the two “nuke-style” missiles from the underside of the lower wing on the drop-ship that brought “Ripley” and the space marines down to the surface of the alien planet, LV-426. It’s constructed of painted resin and black gaffer tape, and features a valve-like back piece. It measures approx. 7.75 in. long. Exhibits some signs of wear in the paint and back section. Comes mounted to a custom display. $300 – $500

619. Carl Aldana original concept art for “Maximillian” in The Black Hole. (Disney, 1979) Vintage original sketch of the sinister robot “Maximillian” by Carl Aldana for The Black Hole. Accomplished in pencil, ink and artist markers on 10.5 x 16 in. artist leaf. Depicting the “Maximillian” robot character with appendages and panel lights. Notations in margins. The piece is signed at right center, “C. Aldana”. With pinholes in corners from display during production. In very good condition. $400 – $600
620. Full-size, screen-used V.I.N.CENT the robot hero from The Black Hole. (Disney, 1979) This is the hero “working” V.I.N.CENT (Vital Information Necessary CENTralized) robot who was the main protagonist in Disney’s 1979 science fiction epic The Black Hole. Voiced by actor Roddy McDowell, the optimistic robot is essentially a fusion between R2-D2 and C-3PO in the Star Wars universe. Very “intelligent” it is able to accomplish a wide variety of tasks, and its means of locomotion is hovering. Measuring 35.5 in. tall (on metal stand) x 26 in. diameter, its outer surface is created of fiberglass with metal and plastic internal components consisting of electric motor with chain drive to turn V.I.N.CENT’s “head”. The robot is fully functional with outer incandescent color lights, green sequential “wave light” on the chest and head movement (both clockwise and counter-clockwise) being operated with the provided control panel fitted with toggle switches. Power is provided by a 6-volt motorcycle battery. Exhibits minor cracks and scuffs in areas from production, and some of the perimeter lights are nonoperational (the vast majority work) and can be easily repaired. This amazing robot character was acquired 20 years ago directly from Disney and comes with a signed letter of authenticity from the Walt Disney World Company on Disney/MGM letterhead stationery. One of V.I.N.CENT’s most memorable quotes: “There are three basic types, Mr. Pizer: the Wills, the Won’ts and the Can’ts. The Wills accomplish everything, the Won’ts oppose everything, and the Can’ts won’t try anything.” A rare and highly desirable science fiction artifact with full documentation. The Black Hole received an Academy Award-nomination for Best Visual Effects. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $40,000 - $60,000
621. Henry Thomas’ “Elliott” personal shooting script for “A Boy’s Life”: working title for E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial shooting script. Before E.T. became a household name, Steven Spielberg’s ground-breaking project had the working title: “A Boy’s Life”. Central to this beloved film was a boy named “Elliott” played with heartbreaking conviction by Henry Thomas. This is Thomas’ personal, production-used shooting script. Consisting of a red 11.5 x 9.75 in. 3-ring binder holding 113-page multi-colored revision script. Cover page dated Aug. 21, 1981, with child-like stenciled “Top Secret / Henry Thomas / Confidential” across the page. Subsequent pages are all production stamped with “BOYS00061”. In the back of the script are several loose pages of call sheets and production materials including one personal note from Drew Barrymore’s mom. Two images of a Scottish Terrier are taped to the inside front cover. Pages are worm-eaten on edges throughout, but without affect to content. Exhibits heavy cover soiling and some water damage. Legible and intact but in poor condition. Includes a spare cover page with the ultimate E.T. title printed. Accompanied by a COA from Henry Thomas. $2,000 - $3,000

Stored flat, in fine condition (1) 40 x 30 in. Star Wars British quad poster. In folded, very good condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. $200 - $300

637. Star Wars “Happy Birthday” style one-sheet poster. (TCF 1977) 27 x 41 in. “Birthday Cake” 1978 reissue poster. A year after its original release, Star Wars was still running strong in theaters across the United States. To celebrate this milestone, these theaters were presented with this special “Happy Birthday” one-sheet poster. Given the normal attrition rate, and with fewer than 1,500 of these printed, they have always been extremely difficult to obtain in a decent grade. This unrestored example is rolled and virtually unhandled except for mounting tape present at upper margin on verso. Rolled. Fine. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. $1,200 - $1,500

639. Star Wars Concert Poster. (TCE, 1977) This 37 x 24 in. Star Wars Concert Poster was produced in 1978 for a concert that never happened. Art directed by Suzy Rice and illustrated by John Alvin, the poster features “R2-D2” and “C-3PO” lugging orchestral instruments. It isn’t clear that these posters were ever available to the public, therefore they are rare and highly desirable. Posters are rolled and in fine condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. $1,000 – $1,500

642. Ralph McQuarrie Star Wars artwork print of a Star Wars space battle formerly hanging on the production department wall. (TCF, 1977) 20 x 16 in. photographic print of Ralph McQuarrie concept art of Death Star and X-wing fighters seen from the cockpit of a “Tie” fighter and over the shoulder of a sinister pilot in the heat of battle. Print features an early, triangular “The Star Wars” sticker affixed to lower left corner with pinholes in all four corners from hanging in the actual production offices. In fine condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. 200 - $300

643. Ralph McQuarrie Star Wars artwork print of the “Millennium Falcon” formerly displayed on the production department wall. (TCF, 1977) 20 x 16 in. photographic print of Ralph McQuarrie concept art of the famous “Millennium Falcon” parked in a hangar. Print features an early, triangular “The Star Wars” sticker affixed to lower left corner. Pinholes in all four corners from hanging in the actual production offices. In fine condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. 200 - $300

644. Collection of (4) Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back posters from the collection of Bunny Alsup. (TCF, 1980) Collection of (4) Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back posters from the collection of Bunny Alsup. Including: (1) 27.5 x 19 in. advertising poster for The Empire Strikes Back novel. With small tear at bottom right with no paper loss (1) 11 x 17 in. black- and-white “Sphere” window card “The Star Wars saga continues...” (1) 8.25 x 11.75 in. magazine ad for The Empire Strikes Back novel and (1) 11 x 14 in. The Empire Strikes Back/ILM thank you ad for a Hollywood trade paper. All in fine condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. 200 - $300

645. Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back advance 1-sheet poster. (TCF, 1980) 27 x 41 in. Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back advance 1-sheet poster with “The Star Wars Saga Continues” above a central Darth Vader helmet and “Coming to your Galaxy this Summer” at the bottom. Rolled, never folded. In fine condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. 200 - $300
646. “Empire Day is May 20th” Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back poster. (TCF, 1980) 30 x 20 in. unique red and black on white poster featuring “Darth Vader’s” iconic helmet and the banner text “Empire Day is May 20th”. The London premiere was held on May 20, 1980 for The Empire Strikes Back. The Odeon Leicester Square theatre was decorated and there were numerous “Storm Troopers” and other characters in costume at the event, and, “Happy Empire Day” badges were distributed to promote the film around the streets of London’s West End. With mild toning to upper and lower edge. Rolled, never folded. In overall, good condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. $200 - $300

647. (2) Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back Japanese Boy’s Photo News posters. (TCF, 1980) (2) 28.5 x 20.75 in. newspaper style Japanese advertising posters for Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back. Nos. 850 and 853. For “Japanese Boys Photo News”. Both posters printed with photographic images from the film and a filmstrip style column on the left side. All in very good condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. $200 - $300

648. (3) Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back Japanese posters. (TCF, 1980) (3) Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back Japanese posters (2) 28.75 x 20.75 in. movie advertising posters in Japanese and (1) 20.25 x 14.25 in. poster in Japanese. All in very good condition. Comes with a LOA from Bunny Alsup, George Lucas & Gary Kurtz’ assistant. $200 - $300

649. George Lucas hand-drawn self portrait. A hand-drawn, matted self-portrait by George Lucas. The 4.25 x 6.75 sketch (visible in 8 x 9.5 mat) is accomplished in pen on 8.5 x 11 in. white copier paper folded in half for display. The freehand sketch was reluctantly drawn at the request of the paper editor and then featured in an article on celebrity self portraits in the “Nob Hill Gazette” newspaper in 1997 (original newspaper included). The paper shows some toning while the sketch remains clear and bold. Overall, in good condition. Unexamined out of mat. $600 - $800
650. Ellorris Madak screen-used cantina creature mask and hands from Star Wars: Episode IV - A New Hope, (TCF, 1977) Ellorris Madak’s creature mask and pair of hands, sculpted and worn by legendary visual effects pioneer, Phil Tippett, during the Cantina sequence in Star Wars: Episode IV - A New Hope. The head is painted latex, backed with foam and velcro closure at the rear. Exhibits separations along the lateral “wrinkles” on each side of the face and neck; overall, in good condition for its age. The hands are pure latex and are still in perfect condition. Measures 20 x 20 x 12 in. From the collection of Phil Tippett. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $80,000 - $120,000
651. Trash compactor screen-used creature puppet from Star Wars: Episode IV - A New Hope (TCF, 1977) This iconic puppet, the monster lurking in the trash compactor, is seen in one of the most memorable scenes of Star Wars: Episode IV - A New Hope when “Hans Solo”, “Luke”, “Leia”, “Chewie” and “C-3PO” are trapped in a trash-filled room. The eye is visible briefly before “Luke” is suddenly snatched and pulled beneath the water, later re-surfacing with its tentacles wrapped around him. The puppet, built by Jon Berg, is constructed of a plexiglass-sphere painted and built up with urethane foam over an aluminum tube. The puppet was set in a 20 ft. x 20 ft. tank of water and a gasket was placed in the bottom. Phil Tippett and Jon Berg would take turns pushing the puppet up out of the water, look around, and plop back down, operating from beneath the set. Measures 20 x 12 x 7 in. Exhibits some deterioration in the latex consistent with its age. From the collection of multiple Academy Award-winning visual effects pioneer, Phil Tippett. $80,000 - $120,000
652. DH-17 Rebel Blaster from *Star Wars: Episode IV - A New Hope. (TCF, 1977) This is a stunt (non-firing) blaster used by the Rebel Alliance in the first Star Wars film. Made by the Props Department at Leavesden Studios, the prop weapon measures 16.25 in. in length and is crafted of solid resin, incorporating metal components on the targeting scope mounted atop the weapon. Exhibits minor scuffing from production use on the black and silver paint finish; otherwise, in fine condition. The prop was originally obtained from a senior crewmember that worked on the first three Star Wars films (Episodes IV, V & VI) from 1976–1983 and comes with a letter of provenance. Compared to Imperial Blasters, far fewer Rebel Blasters were created for the production, making this a true rarity in the Star Wars prop universe. $20,000 - $30,000

653. "Emperor Palpatine" Head Appliance from *Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back. (TCF, 1980) Distinctive latex face appliance designed to cover the actor’s forehead and eyes. Measures 10 in. wide x 7 in. tall. Exhibits minor deterioration but remains supple. From the collection of multiple Academy Award-winning visual effects pioneer, Phil Tippett. $8,000 - $12,000
654. Joe Johnson leg design for creation of “AT-AT” from Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back. (TCF, 1980) Pair of Joe Johnston original “AT-AT” legs which were used to scale and mock up the stop-motion “AT-AT”. Constructed of heavy-stock board and measuring 14 x 12 in. From the collection of multiple Academy Award-winning visual effects pioneer, Phil Tippett. $15,000 - $20,000

655. Bespin Wing Guard Relby-K23 Blaster Pistol from Star Wars: Episode V - The Empire Strikes Back. (TCF, 1980) This Relby-K23 prop blaster pistol was used by the “Bespin Wing” Guard on Cloud City in Star Wars V - The Empire Strikes Back. Made by the Props Department at Leavesden Studios, the prop weapon measures 16.5 in. in length and is crafted of hollow fiberglass, painted silver with grey accents. Exhibits minor scuffing and a small 0.25 in. chip on one side of the rearmost tip (can be easily repaired); otherwise, in fine condition. The prop was originally obtained from a senior crew member who worked on the first three Star Wars films (Episodes IV, V & VI) from 1976-1983 and comes with a letter of provenance. This is the first “Bespin Wing” Guard Blaster we have encountered. $8,000 - $12,000
656. Original screen-used stop-motion ball and socket articulated “Scout Trooper” armature from Star Wars: Episode VI – Return of the Jedi. (TCF, 1984) This ball and socket armature was built at Industrial Light & Magic and stands approximately 18 in. tall (1:4 scale to a 6-foot tall human). The head, chest, pelvis and knees are machined out of 2024 aluminum; all of the ball and socket joints used to articulate the puppet are machined from tool steel and chrome plated. These include the neck, shoulders, arms, torso, legs and feet; all the joints have Allen set screws to allow for adjusting and posing. This armature was screen-used on the Forest Moon of Endor sequence and was inside the “Scout Trooper” puppet during the Imperial Speeder Bike chase with rod-puppeted by Tom St. Amand, among others. The unique identifying factor differentiating this armature from those used for “Luke” and “Leia” is the added hand-shaped aluminum face-plate that was screwed on to accommodate the shape of the “Scout Trooper” helmet. Also, this puppet is larger than those of “Luke and Leia”. An added bonus is the fact that this puppet was screen-used only one other time: it was originally built and animated by Tom St. Amand for E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial (1982) in the iconic bicycle flying sequences. This puppet was used only for the tallest boy (“Michael”), who was Elliot’s older brother. In excellent condition and is a one-of-a-kind. Comes with a signed letter of authenticity by Tom St. Amand who fabricated and animated this armature in both Return of the Jedi and E.T. A fantastic relic, providing a fascinating behind-the-scenes peek at the magic of movie making. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $30,000 - $40,000
657. Anthony Daniels “C-3PO” foot from Star Wars: Episode VI - Return of the Jedi. This is an original “C-3PO” foot from the Sci-Fi epic Star Wars Episode VI: Return of the Jedi. This particular foot was worn by a stunt performer in the shot where “C-3PO” falls off the deck of “Jabba’s” barge. The foot is made from dense urethane-painted gold and features a ribbed design throughout. The foot’s bottom is fashioned as a shoe sole with treads. The foot has been specifically modified to fit a smaller stunt performer, as evidenced by the custom modifications to the end of the foot. A single section of the foot has been removed from the toe, and the toe has been closed over with a custom-sculpted modeling compound. This unique modification was clearly made to this piece alone, and was not a feature of the mold. Inside the foot is a small folded piece of honeycomb foam from the production which modified the toe to be smaller, to fit the stunt performer. The foot resembles a standard Anthony Daniels costume piece, which was later modified specifically for the stunt shot where “C-3PO” goes over the side of the barge. The foot measures approximately 4 in. high x 4.5 in. wide, and 10.5 in. in length. The piece features some production-wear throughout, but remains in overall good condition. $8,000 - $10,000

658. Short-range Assassin’s Blaster from Star Wars: Episode VI - Return of the Jedi. (TCF, 1984) This weapon is listed in Star Wars: The Visual Dictionary as a “Short-Range Assassin’s Blaster” and was used in the scene in “Jabba’s” palace when “Jabba’s” henchmen draw their weapons at “Luke” before it is thrown into the Rancor pit in Return of the Jedi, although it is not visible on screen. Hasbro used this blaster for their “Bib Fortuna” (“Jabba’s” right-hand man) action figure. Made by the Props Department at Leavesden Studios, the prop weapon measures 12 inches in length and is crafted of hollow fiberglass, painted black with silver accents. Exhibits minor scuffing with a half-inch long gap beneath the grip and a portion of the knob alongside it missing with some glue residue; not detracting from the overall appearance of the weapon. The prop was originally obtained from a senior crew member who worked on the first three Star Wars films (Episodes IV, V & VI) from 1976-1983 and comes with a letter of provenance. $4,000 - $6,000

659. Liam Neeson “Qui Gon” lightsaber from Star Wars: Episode I - The Phantom Menace. (TCF, 1999) This screen-used “Qui-Gon Jinn” (Liam Neeson) stunt lightsaber was produced for Star Wars: Episode I - The Phantom Menace, specifically for the spectacular, climactic fight scene with “Darth Maul” when “Qui-Gon Jinn” is killed by the “Phantom Menace”. The beautifully-crafted 11 in. resin lightsaber hilt is hand-painted in black with silver accents, and has a central red “static” switch. The top of the saber retains the 5 in. screw bolt fitting onto which the 37.5 in. long green painted aluminum rod is attached, as configured for the filming of the fight sequences (saber “illumination” added post-production). The hilt measures 11 in. long (overall length with blade is 48.5 in.) In production-used, very good condition. Comes displayed in a 55 x 13 x 4 in. wooden shadow box cabinet. With a letter of authenticity from stuntman Mark Newman who obtained it following the production. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $15,000 - $25,000
660. HARRISON FORD’S SIGNATURE “INDIANA JONES” FEDORA HAT FROM INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE. (Paramount, 1989) This iconic fur felt fedora was worn by Harrison Ford in his first scene of Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade, in which “Indy” is on the deck of the boat, wrestling for the Cross of Coronado, before walking across the screen and being hit by a surge of water. The water is seen to flatten the top of the hat he is wearing. It’s in this “flattened” state that this particular hat was left to dry, after having been washed off Harrison’s head during one of the takes. It was retained by a stunt-double who salvaged it from the water tank. The hat’s still supple and can be adjusted from the water flattened pose back into the ‘hero’ pose. The hat is marked in black pen number “7” and has the initials “T.N.” handwritten on the inside. It has the blue stamped Herbert Johnson liner (Herbert Johnson is the famed British company that custom-made “Indy’s” iconic headwear), but the liner shows evidence of the brown color having run into the white from having been in the water. The liner glue has also come off in a number of areas, again, most likely caused by the effect of the water. The hat is size 7 1/8 U.S. (58 U.K.), and measures approx. 14 in diameter (back to front) and 4 in. from top to bottom. In overall very good condition. $40,000 - $60,000
661. "Indiana Jones" Whip Used in 1981, 1984 and 1989 Indiana Jones Movies. (Paramount, 1981-1989) One of the most iconic tools in any action-hero's arsenal, this bullwhip is instantly recognizable as that of archeologist, professor, treasure-savior "Indiana Jones" (Harrison Ford). This hero whip was used in each of the original three films in the franchise in foreground and close-up shots. The whip was gifted to Sotheby's UNICEF auction in 2001 by director Steven Spielberg. Constructed of hand-woven strands of kangaroo hide wrapped to a solid handle and pommel, the whip measures approx. 8 ft. 4 in. in total length, including the 6 in. leather loop affixed to the back of the handle. Displays beautifully, and is a rare treasure from one of the most beloved action-adventure franchises of all time. In very good condition.

$40,000 - $60,000
662. Vintage original script and wrap party invitation from Indiana Jones: Raiders of the Lost Ark. (Warner Bros., 1982) Vintage original “Revised Fourth Draft” Raiders Of The Lost Ark script dated February 1980. Screenplay written by Lawrence Kasdan with story by George Lucas. Lucasfilm bound and bradded. Title page handwritten, “Bill Welch” with insert pages attached to notepad paper with handwritten, “Dave Middleton”. Script exhibits light toning and slight soiling. Includes vintage wrap party invitation and materials as well as (12) 3.5 x 5 in. snapshots of an FX pyrotechnics sequence being shot in the desert. All in very good condition. $1,000 - $1,500

664. Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom clapperboard. (Paramount, 1984) This production-used clapperboard was used by the second unit during filming of Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom. It’s constructed of a metal-hinged wooden clapper, black-painted wood with white lettering for second-unit director “Micky Moore” (Michael D. Moore) and cameraman Paul Beeson, as well as titles for slate and take. The slate/take included numbers are held in with velcro. The final production date is written on masking tape as March 5, 1983. Measures approx. 10 x 8 x .5 in. In overall very good production-used condition. $4,000 - $6,000

663. (2) Polish 1-sheet posters for Raiders of the Lost Ark. (Paramount, 1981) Set of (2) Polish 1-sheet posters for Raiders of the Lost Ark. (1) 38 x 28 in. black, white and red poster with “Indy’s” famous whip snaking its way through the eye sockets of a strange skull (1) 38 x 28 in. full-color poster with images from the movie including “Indy’s” hat, Nazi flag, etc. Both mildly toned, folded and in very good condition. $300 - $500
665. (22) Blade Runner 4 x 5 in. Transparencies from 65mm Final Composites. (Warner Bros., 1982) Ridley Scott’s Sci-Fi masterpiece Blade Runner, was as celebrated for its futuristic dystopian imagery as its brilliant story by Phillip K. Dick and performances. These are (22) 1st generation Ektachrome duplicate transparencies. The transparency “dupes” were final comp blow-ups made from 65mm film. The full color, transparencies feature frames from stunning scenes in the classic movie, which include familiar settings and craft as well as images of actors Harrison Ford and Edward James Olmos. 12 of the images were featured in a Blade Runner article in the industry magazine Cinefex #9, as well as the cover for the French version of the magazine. All transparencies are in protective sleeves (some with notes on additional wax sleeves), and in fine condition. $300 - $500

666. Joanna Cassidy “Zhora” clear raincoat from Blade Runner. (Warner Bros., 1982) In the groundbreaking Ridley Scott, Sci-Fi thriller, Blade Runner, there is no more iconic costume than the clear plastic hip-length raincoat, worn by the replicant “Zhora” (Joanna Cassidy) during her desperate flight from “Deckard” (Harrison Ford) through the dystopian, rainy city, where she is ultimately gunned-down. Consisting of a custom-made, clear plastic, thread-sewn and paneled, early stage (prior to squib-blown versions) raincoat with right breast flap pocket and two pouch-like hip pockets. Costumer’s tag in pocket is handwritten, “Zhora – Joanna Cassidy Bullet Hit #1”, although there is no production damage visible to the garment. Plastic is mildly yellowed from age, but the supple integrity of the garment is very strong. In overall, production-used, very good condition. $4,000 - $6,000

668. Mid-grade Type 2 Phaser pistol from Star Trek: The Original Series. This exceptional fiberglass mid-grade Pistol Phaser from Star Trek: The Original Series is one of only two such examples known to have survived from the 1960s. It spent over 30 years in the possession of a California owner to whom it was gifted in 1974 by a former Paramount employee before it was then acquired by noted Star Trek collector and TOS expert Gerald Gurian, who was a key member of the authentication team on the William Shatner First Season “Captain Kirk” tunic that sold in our July 2012 Hollywood Auction 49. This fiberglass mid-grade pistol phaser is perhaps the most extensively researched TOS prop that we have ever auctioned, with all of its major features and numerous subtle contours in its design painstakingly screen-matched to several late 2nd and 3rd season The Original Series episodes including “Assignment: Earth”, “Spock’s Brain”, “Plato’s Stepchildren” and “The Cloud Minders”. In particular, a tiny mold flaw/ridge line deviation in the rear fin appearance was matched on-screen in “Spock’s Brain”; the integrated “one piece” handle and main body construction of the pistol component of this prop was matched on-screen in “The Cloud Minders”; and the design of the hand-grip section with an elongated central groove extending along the entire length of the handle was matched on-screen in “Plato’s Stepchildren”. The uniquely patterned silver foil material on top of the permanently affixed hand phaser unit has been photo matched to the foil on the Greg Jein TOS Hero Type 2 Phaser and is another key element of authentication. And most significantly, the presence of both a uniquely contoured scratch line and a small blemish formed by excess paint on the front face of the pistol body slightly above the silver nozzle, as well as the relative locations of the grooved regions on the silver nozzle ring, precisely match those evident on a screen capture from “Assignment: Earth” (first airdate: Mar. 29, 1968), which directly establishes the on-screen use of this prop in that highly memorable The Original Series time-travel episode. Additionally, high resolution photography of the velcro on the hand phaser reveals some red, blue and gold TOS velour tunic fabric traces still trapped in the velcro – exciting remnants from production on the Desilu soundstage 47 years ago. This extremely rare The Original Series hand prop bears the to-be-anticipated paint wear, surface scratches and some cracks/scar separation in its fiberglass pistol body; and it is missing the semi-circular acrylic dial and metal faux thumbwheel control that were once attached to the top of its hand phaser — yet, it remains an impressively sturdy and very highly presentable prop. The only movable part on this weapon is the tiny circular silver control knob inset on the front left side of the pistol body, which still smoothly rotates a full 360 degrees. The TOS Pistol Phaser is perhaps the most desirable and iconic hand prop from The Original Series - instantly recognizable and seen in virtually all episodes across all three seasons of this historic show. To many people around the world, a The Original Series pistol phaser transcends its mere association with an outstanding television series; it represents one of the defining icons of American pop culture! This extremely rare, screen-matched, fiberglass mid-grade Pistol Phaser is one of the most exciting The Original Series hand props that we have ever auctioned and could easily serve as the centerpiece in the finest of Star Trek collections. $80,000 - $120,000
669. PAIR OF STAR TREK: THE ORIGINAL SERIES SCRIPTS. “THE LIGHTS OF ZETAR” AND “ELAAN OF TROYIUS” (Paramount, 1966-1969) A pair of Star Trek TOS scripts, both from season three, for “The Lights of Zetar” — about a mysterious and debilitating storm in space — and “Elaan of Troyius” — about the mission for the crew of the USS Enterprise to help aid an intergalactic marriage that would bring about peace between the two worlds. Both scripts are 8.5 x 11 in., 70 pages, studio bound and bradded with yellow covers. Both exhibit minor fading, but are in overall good condition. $300 - $500

670. CAPTAIN KIRK’S WALKING TRIBBLE FROM STAR TREK: THE ORIGINAL SERIES. (NBC-TV, 1966-1969) Designed by Wah Chang, this rare TOS walking “Tribble” is one of only six walking models created for the 2nd Season episode “The Trouble With Tribbles” (original airdate: Dec. 29, 1967) — frequently described as the most popular episode of The Original Series. It is constructed of faux reddish-brown fur mounted over an altered battery-powered animated dog toy, and measures 6 x 11 in. The distinctive fur coloration patterns on this example, featuring a dark brown cigar-shaped section at right rear surrounded by a beige region with a lighter reddish-brown upper left corner patch and darker brown bottom left rear highlights; as well as the darker brown patterns in the front right side quadrant of the Tribble, present a near identical appearance — given that patterns are not rigid on the prop but can be shifted slightly by brushing/combing the fur — to the color patterns evident on a screen capture of the walking “Tribble” seen slowly moving along the handrail surrounding the Captain’s Chair in “The Trouble With Tribbles” — thus linking this hero prop to that memorable scene on the bridge of the Enterprise where it is snatched up by “Captain Kirk” in an attempt to clean his command post. Remarkably, this animated hero “Tribble” not only retains its vibrant screen used visual appeal, but its toy legs promptly commence their walking motion gyrations when its “on” switch is toggled. This is certainly one of the most endearing and precious artifacts from The Original Series to pass through our hands — and only the second walking tribble that we have ever auctioned. An exceptionally rare prop from the collection of noted Star Trek TOS expert Gerald Gurian, publisher of the highly respected website startrekpropauthority.com. $6,000 - $8,000

671. WILLIAM SHATNER “CAPTAIN KIRK” WIG FROM “THE PARADISE SYNDROME” EPISODE OF STAR TREK: THE ORIGINAL SERIES. (Paramount, 1966-1969) One of the most personalized Star Trek/William Shatner artifacts to surface from the original series. This blond human hair wig was worn by William Shatner as “Captain James T. Kirk” in the third season episode “The Paradise Syndrome.” In the episode, Kirk loses his memory and is left stranded on a planet of primitive yet contented Native American Indian-like people. To illustrate the passage of time on the planet, Kirk’s hair becomes longer and fuller. This hand-knotted lace-front wig comes complete with the original “Wig Stock Record” document from the MGM studios hair department showing the wig was rented on June 7, 1968 to famed Star Trek makeup wizard Fred Phillips at Paramount Studios for use by William Shatner. The wig was returned ten days later on June 17th. Filming records indicate “The Paradise Syndrome” was shot in mid-June of ’68 corroborating the MGM rental card. A truly unique collectible from this iconic series. In very good condition. $2,000 - $3,000
673. Michael Dunn "Alexander" Costume from Star Trek: The Original Series Episode "Plato's Stepchildren". (NBC-TV, 1966-1969) Michael Dunn's highly recognizable "Alexander" costume, consisting of a brown and orange jumpsuit with multi-colored fabric accents along the outside edges, that was seen extensively throughout the memorable TOS 3rd season episode "Plato's Stepchildren" (original airdate: Nov. 22, 1968). This historic episode featured the first inter-racial kiss on American network television; between William Shatner and Nichelle Nichols. The "Alexander" jumpsuit has a rear zipper closure and exhibits some slight fading at the shoulders; but is in otherwise excellent condition. It is truly an outstanding piece of The Original Series and television history. From the collection of noted Star Trek TOS expert Gerald Gurian. $2,000 - $3,000

674. Gene Roddenberry signed note concerning the script of Star Trek: The Motion Picture with production notes and memos. (Paramount, 1979) Gene Roddenberry signed note for Star Trek: The Motion Picture and other production materials. The creative disputes of the first film are as legendary as the film itself. These documents offer a rare glimpse into the behind the scenes chaos. Includes a note, with script pages, signed by Gene Roddenberry on 5 x 8 in. Star Trek notepad paper, which reads, in part: "Dear Tom: Please, this is not to be shown around. I finished it at 1:00 AM, after having done it in two days. I really have become tired of having my two-day or two-week efforts compared to other writer's two-week or two-month efforts. Working in this kind of haste, one drops a lot of shit..." Also includes hourly revised script pages, interpersonal memos, 15+ pieces of Star Trek III stationery and envelopes, a proposed contract for William Shatner and various official press kit items. All in very good condition. $400 - $600
675. Star Trek: The Motion Picture

V'Ger/"Klingon" Battle Cruiser Concept Art.

(Paramount, 1979) This is a concept art sketch for the V'Ger craft encountering a “Klingon” force-field from 1979's Star Trek: The Motion Picture. It’s accomplished in green, white and yellow pastel on black artist board. It’s signed by production artist Martin Kline, and noted “Whiplash bolt from V’Ger hits "Klingon" force-field.” It measures approx. 18 x 7.25 in., and is mounted to a 2.75 in. mat border. In fine condition. $400 - $600

676. (4) Large Cibachrome Prints from Star Trek: The Motion Picture.

(Paramount Pictures, 1979) This series of (4) Cibachrome prints featuring the Starship Enterprise dramatically lit and shot against a background of black, starless space. These images were shot by still photographer Virgil Mirano using a 2.25 in. format camera and printed onto the highest quality paper available. These are among the images that served as the core of the movie’s PR campaign on posters and in Starlog magazine, etc. The quality and detail of these photos is incredible. Due to the high cost of making Cibachrome prints, fewer than four of each was ever printed. The photos capture the Enterprise in all of its glory. All are in fine condition. $600 - $800

---

677. Assortment of (33) Photos and Transparencies from Star Trek: The Motion Picture.

(Paramount, 1979) Assortment of (33) Star Trek: The Motion Picture-related photos and transparencies including (18) 4 x 5 in. color transparencies of scenes from the film, the Starship Enterprise, Bay viewing screen, Klingon costume study and Stephen Collins as “Decker” and Persis Khambatta as “Ilia” standing toe to toe. (4) 8 x 10 in. color transparencies including the Enterprise bridge, “Spock’s” shocked face through a space helmet. (11) 8 x 10 in. color photographs including shots of settings and cast members Stephen Collins as “Decker” and Persis Khambatta as “Ilia”. All items in good condition. $300 - $500

---

678. (2) Panoramic Cibachrome Test Photographs for Star Trek: The Motion Picture.

(Paramount Pictures, 1979) (2) panoramic Cibachrome prints featuring: (1) 40 x 21.5 in. photo of the Starship Enterprise dramatically lit and shot against a background of black, starless space and (1) 41 x 19.25 in. reverse image photo of a painting of the Starship Enterprise racing through space accompanied by other spacecraft. These images were printed onto the highest quality paper available. These are among test prints made for promotion of the film. The quality and detail of these photos is incredible. Due to the high cost of making Cibachrome prints, few were made of each. The photos capture the Enterprise in all of its iconic majesty. Prints come rolled and in very good condition. $300 - $500
Robert Sallin  The following 8 lots are from the collection of Robert Sallin, producer of Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. Sallin had directed nearly 2,000 commercials and knew what it took to tell a great story and to get unique visual effects on the screen. Sallin was responsible for all the pre-production planning, the selection of the crew, musical score and the entire visual style of the film, in addition to operating the production on a daily basis. He was deeply involved in the development of the script and selected director, Nicholas Meyer to helm the picture. Among his most memorable plot contributions was the “Ceti Eel”, which caused considerable audience reaction everywhere the film was shown. Sallin was highly praised by Paramount for delivering the finished film within a few dollars of his original budget. The special effects budget he developed was about 10% of that of Star Trek: The Motion Picture, which had soared out of control. Through careful, hands-on design and supervision of every shot and every sequence, Sallin delivered the final visual effects costs below budget. To this day, Star Trek II remains the quintessential film in the series largely because of the vision and professionalism of producer Robert Sallin.

679. Producer Robert Sallin’s script, notes, blueprints and production materials from Star Trek II: Wrath of Khan. (Paramount, 1982) Producer Robert Sallin’s large production archive of vintage materials from Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, including multi-colored 117-page revision shooting script with Sallin’s handwritten notes and changes, separate handwritten script notes with content such as: “Delay Spock’s Death until end? Put him in sickbay - hold him until McCoy decides best to beam him out for future”. Assorted staff/crew lists, set and scene descriptions, a manila folder of call sheets, various production reports, four blueprints: (1) of the exterior of the USS Reliant, (1) of the USS Enterprise exterior and (1) of the Enterprise bridge with character names attributed to their appointed stations. An incredible wealth of detail and insight into the making of the 2nd installment in the Star Trek motion picture franchise. From the personal collection of Star Trek II producer Robert Sallin and comes with a signed LOA. $400 - $600

680. (7) Original concept sketches and (100+) printed storyboards for Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. (Paramount, 1982) An extensive archive of original concepts and printed production storyboards for Star Trek II: Wrath of Khan. Including (7) full color original storyboards accomplished in color pastels on 8.75 x 11 in. boards depicting fiery phaser disintegration sequences on unfortunate crewmembers. Also included are (6) studio bound storyboard sets featuring over (300) panels of art. One of the sets marked “Star Trek II Exhibit ‘D’” was actually sent to ILM for use in affecting the film’s ultimate special FX. This remarkably rich collection of production images is from the personal collection of Robert Sallin, producer of Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan and comes with a signed LOA. $300 - $500

681. “Spock” ears from Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. (Paramount, 1982) “Mr. Spock” is one of the most famous and beloved aliens in all of pop-culture and his pointed ears are his most distinguishing characteristic. This is a pair of 2 x 2 in. production-made foam latex prosthetic ear tips made for Leonard Nimoy in his role as “Spock” in Star Trek: The Wrath of Khan. Created by Trek makeup master Werner Keppler and presented to Star Trek II producer Robert Sallin, the appliances come in a plastic display box affixed to a fabric base with an engraved plaque reading, “Mr. Spock Original Ears Star Trek II 1981”. The display also includes a resin federation badge affixed (upside down) within the display. Keppler’s business card on the verso. In very good condition. From the personal collection of producer Robert Sallin and accompanied with a signed LOA. $1,000 - $1,500
682. ARCHIVE OF KEN RALSTON “CETI EEL” CONCEPT SKETCHES AND RELATED PRODUCTION MATERIALS FROM STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KHAN.
(Paramount, 1982) A comprehensive 22-piece collection of concept art and correspondence related to the “Ceti Eel” from Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, including: a series of (15) Ken Ralston (5 time Academy Award-winner for visual FX) full color concept sketches in artist pen and ink on 6 x 14 in. paper for a variety of “Ceti Eels” (1) typed letter signed by Ken Ralston, on Lucasfilm stationery, accompanied by (2) hand-drawn illustrations of the “Ceti Eel” practical effect mechanics. (1) copied inter-communication memo from producer Robert Sallin to crew with (1) Xeroxed copy of an illustration showing a “Ceti Eel” dropping out of “Chekov’s” ear, and, (2) polaroid photos of the practical “Ceti Eel” embedded in a latex ear. All materials in production-used good condition. From the collection of Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan producer Robert Sallin who created the concept of the “Ceti Eel”, directed the creation of these sketches and ultimately chose the final version of the Eel that appears in the film. Accompanied with a signed LOA. $1,000 - $1,500

683. SCREEN-USED “CETI EEL” PUPPET FROM STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KHAN. (Paramount, 1982) “Ceti Eel” puppet from Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. In a classic, cringe-worthy scene, larvae of this creature are implanted by “Khan” (Ricardo Mantalban) in the ears of prisoners “Commander Chekov” (Walter Koenig) and “Captain Terrell” (Paul Winfield) to achieve mind control over them. This prop was one of only three screen-used “Eels” and was personally presented to producer Robert Sallin at end of production. The 11 x 4 in. “Eel” puppet is constructed of cast latex skin with foam latex interior. Animating mechanics were removed after production. Realistically painted to appear as an other-worldly insect, complete with slimy larvae emerging from its armored exoskeleton. The prop is housed in a 15 x 8 x 4 in. plexiglass display box with Star Trek: The Wrath of Khan plaque affixed to one corner and an engraved, “Star Trek II Produced By Robert Sallin” plaque on the other corner. Accompanied by two invitations to separate wrap parties. From the personal collection of producer Robert Sallin who created the concept of the “Ceti Eel” and comes with a signed LOA. In fine condition. $6,000 - $8,000

684. LOCATION SCOUTING AND PRODUCTION MATERIALS FOR STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KHAN. (Paramount, 1982) In the second installment in the Star Trek motion picture franchise, Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, unbelievably, “Mr. Spock” dies. Fortunately we know that he is subsequently resurrected on the “Genesis” planet. Here are (25) original preproduction materials related to that Genesis planet. Consisting of (12) location scouting Polaroid photos of lush areas of Golden Gate Park (1) 9.5 x 38 in. fold-out map of Golden Gate park with areas of interest marked in blue pencil (5) storyboard art panels accomplished in color marker and pen on 8.5 x 11 in. paper depicting the birth of the Genesis planet and “Spock’s” coffin at rest in lush greenery. This sequence was designed and directed by Robert Sallin and rendered by art director, Mike Minor, and, (7) color Kodachrome slides of the Genesis planet by photographer Bruce Birmelin. All items in production-used good condition. From the personal archives of Star Trek II producer Robert Sallin and comes with a signed LOA. $300 - $500
685. Starfleet insignia accessories and uniform “color dye test” swatches created for Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. (Paramount, 1982) (2) production-made U.S.S. Enterprise insignia accessories: (1) metal Enterprise insignia pin badge and (1) metal Enterprise insignia belt buckle. Also included are a collection of (6) Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan production materials. Including (4) safety pinned bundles of multi-colored, stretch fabric swatches with costumer’s tags marked, “Crewman,” “Cadet Crew,” “Saavik” and “Officers”. The tags feature handwritten garment notes such as, “Red jumpsuit”, “Black pants”, “Bright red turtleneck”, etc. These dye tests were made to determine if the Starfleet uniform costumes could be re-used, and many were after re-dyeing and re-designing. All pieces remain in fine condition. From the personal collection of Star Trek II producer Robert Sallin and come with a signed LOA. $200 - $300

686. Archive of (200+) production photo contact sheets from Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. (Paramount, 1982) Over (200+) vintage black-and-white photo contact sheets from the production of Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. With production stills and behind-the-scenes images of the working set, crew and cast primarily attributed to photographer Bruce Birmelin. The (200+) contact sheets contain an average of 10 to 12 frames each, making this a collection of over 2,000 images. Shots include: William Shatner, Leonard Nimoy, Ricardo Montalban (“Khan”), DeForest Kelley, James Doohan, Walter Koenig, George Takei, Nichelle Nichols, Bibi Besch, Merritt Butrick, Paul Winfield, Kirstie Alley and many others. Also included are: (1) color contact sheet of cast and crew portraits including an 8 x 10 in. color photo of the “Genesis” device, (2) color slides of the device and (1) black-and-white 8 x 10 in. full cast and crew photo featuring William Shatner holding up a photo of the absent Leonard Nimoy. From the personal archives of Star Trek II producer Robert Sallin and comes with a signed LOA. In very good condition. $1,000 - $1,500

687. Original hero “illuminating” Type-2 Phaser Pistol from Star Trek III: The Search for Spock. (Paramount, 1984) This highly desirable Type-2 Phaser pistol is highly reminiscent of the weapons used on Star Trek: The Original Series (the Phasers from The Motion Picture and The Wrath of Khan departed greatly from the original Matt Jefferies design). Built at Industrial Light & Magic, this Phaser measures 9.5 in. and is constructed of sturdy solid resin. The main body is detailed with a matte-finish and metallic grey paint with blue accents on the sides. The built-in Type-1 portion of the weapon is painted matte black. A switch at the top illuminates oscillating green and red lights on a small square panel; when the trigger is depressed a series of four red bars rapidly illuminate in sequence. This Phaser was built for the production but not screen-used. Comes from a former ILM employee. In very good condition. $3,000 - $5,000
688. Production-made Ressikan flute from Star Trek: Next Generation, Season 5: “episode 225”. (Paramount, 1987-1994) One of two original “Ressikan” flutes produced in March, 1992 at Prop’er Effects by master prop fabricator and partner Bear Burge for the Star Trek: The Next Generation, Season 5 episode: “Inner light”. This 10.5 in long flute was retained for use as a “master” version so that additional flutes created for use in subsequent episodes and films would be exact. Bear machined the flute from solid brass, (with only the very end hollow so that it would read correctly on film) using a lathe, with Mylar decals, aluminum detail and a tassel wrap, all to Prop Master Joe Longo’s and the productions specifications. Included is an original copy of the script provided to Bear, which includes production notations (and deleted scenes) for his use while creating the flute, in addition to the sextant for the episode, which he also created. While many replicas have been made for exhibits, etc. since then, there were only two flutes manufactured for use in “Inner Light” and this is the only master from which all original flutes were produced for the series. Comes with an LOA from Bear Burge. $3,000 - $5,000

689. Patrick Stewart “Captain Picard” hero “working” module from Star Trek: First Contact, (Paramount, 1996) In the opening scenes of Star Trek: First Contact, “Captain Picard” (Patrick Stewart) receives an important transmission on this “Optical Data Net Service Access” module. The device consists of a custom made, gun-metal gray device appearing similar to a laptop computer, measuring 11.5 x 15 in. and constructed of resin and fiberglass. The 10.25 x 7 in. plexiglass LCARS screen remains flat until the 2 x 3 in. white button on front is depressed (in addition to switching on a small toggle switch located at the back of the module), activating an internal rack and pinion mechanism lifting a tooled aluminum arm (projected through a slot cut in the back casing), thereby raising the front LCARS screen panel approximately 70 degrees as seen in the film. The illuminating screen displays a blinking message: “Incoming Transmission” and below that, static illuminated info: “To: Capt. J. L. Picard / USS Enterprise NCC-1701-E / From: Starfleet Command / Command Authorization Required”. In operating condition. Panel below allows access to a series of AA and 9v household batteries that power this impressive prop. $3,000 - $5,000

692. Alexander Siddig “Dr. Bashir” (5) items from his office - Star Trek: Deep Space 9. (Paramount TV, 1993-1999) Collection of (5) other-worldly desk items from “Dr. Bashir’s (Alexander Siddig) office on Star Trek: Deep Space 9. Including (2) 8 x 4 in. clear lucite cylinders filled with glass pebbles and with “Bio-Hazard” and “Specimen” labels affixed (1) clear instrument (made from a commercial, battery-operated pepper grinder) filled with green aquarium rock (1) 7.5 x 3 in. LCARS black panel with printed bars and numbers (1) 4 x 4 in. black plexiglass wedge box with aluminum tape design and small cobalt blue plastic tray and marble ornament. This hollow prop has an axel beneath that allows the piece to roll across a surface when pushed. All in good condition. $400 - $600

693. Atreides prop pistol and personal shield generator from Dune. (De Laurentiis, 1982) From Frank Herbert’s epic Sci-Fi world of Dune as interpreted by filmmaker/auteur David Lynch, comes two futuristic military props (1) Atreides hand weapon consists of a pistol-shaped 9 x 4 in. rectangle composed of solid cast resin, painted gold and studio-antiqued to appear aged and worn. Featuring a scored handle grip at the back and 1.5 in. round gun barrel at the front. Accompanied by (1) personal shield generator consisting of a 5 x 4 in. solid, cast resin belt buckle unit with integral gear wheel teeth on top and bottom edges, concave disc on the face and gold and silver elastic 4 in. cords attached to a 1.75 in. metal clip and embedded 26 in. brown twisted cord protruding. Metal buckle hoops attached to back of unit for affixing to a belt. In overall good condition. Comes with an LOA from a crewmember. $1,000 - $1,500
694. “HARKONNEN” PROP PISTOL FROM DUNE. (De Laurentiis, 1982) From Frank Herbert’s epic Sci-Fi world of Dune as interpreted by filmmaker/auteur David Lynch, comes this piece of fictional weaponry. This “Harkonnen” hand weapon consists of a two-piece 10 x 6 in. construction. A solid, cast resin primary body and a cast resin muzzle with double-barrels attached to aluminum, spring-loaded trigger slotted within a groove in the upper grip. When the trigger is depressed, the barrel of the weapon retracts into the body of the weapon. When released, it springs forward, then back into place. The entire prop has been painted metallic silver and is studio-distressed to appear aged and battle worn. The lower barrel of the double-barreled retractable muzzle has been broken. Exhibits previous repair but appears overall, in good condition. Comes with an LOA from a crewmember. $1,000 - $1,500

695. “FREMEN” NEEDLE GUN PROP FROM DUNE. (De Laurentiis, 1982) From Frank Herbert’s epic Sci-Fi world of Dune as interpreted by filmmaker/auteur David Lynch, comes this piece of fictional weaponry. Consisting of a solid cast resin weapon with notched handle 11 x 5 in. elaborate, otherworldly head and needle barrel giving the appearance of a sinister dental tool. Painted in browns and gunmetal grays. Studio-distressed to appear worn. Comes with an LOA from a crewmember. $600 - $800

696. (2) UNIDENTIFIED PROP WEAPONS FROM DUNE. (De Laurentiis, 1982) From Frank Herbert’s epic Sci-Fi world of Dune as interpreted by filmmaker/auteur David Lynch, comes two pieces of fictional weaponry (1) long-barreled 16 x 6.5 in. hand gun composed of solid, cast resin painted gloss-lacquer black and (1) two-piece construction, hand gun with solid cast resin lower body and attached cast resin upper component with clear resin barrel interior. Both weapons are studio-distressed to appear weathered and used. Comes with an LOA from a crewmember. $400 - $600

697. “RIGELIAN” JUMPSUIT AND HAT FROM THE LAST STARFIGHTER. (Universal, 1984). This is a vintage “Rigelian” soldier uniform, designed by award-winning costume designer Robert Fletcher for The Last Starfighter. Consisting of a heavy, off-white full-body jumpsuit with insignia pins on the chest and collar, a gray fabric ornamental applique across the chest and shoulders. A white zippered front runs to the midriff. There are carved wooden gauges on the suit sleeve cuffs painted silver and with buttons. Costumes such as this one can be seen on space crew in the film when “Alex Rogan” (Lance Guest) is brought to the Starfighter base to discover his destiny to save the galaxy. Designer Robert Fletcher also designed costumes for the Star Trek films. The costume exhibits some age and production wear. In good condition. $800 - $1,200
698. ZODIAC MINIATURE FROM COCOON. (TCE 1985) In Ron Howard’s beloved Sci-Fi classic Cocoon, a group of elderly folk are rejuvenated by underwater alien cocoons. This is a 12 x 6 in. miniature Zodiac boat from the ocean sequences in the film. Consisting of cast orange polyurethane foam boat with miniature braided safety rope rigging, back resin splashguard plate affixed with tiny metal struts for boat motor attachment (motor not included) and miniature 6.75 in. wooden paddle. In screen-used, good condition. $300 - $500

699. MINIATURE SPACE VAMPIRE SARCOPHAGUS FROM LIFEFORCE. (Golan-Globus Prod., 1985) In the cult Sci-Fi, horror film Lifeforce, space vampires descend on Earth. When we first meet these extraterrestrial parasites, they are in stasis in crystal vessels on their spacecraft. This is a miniature prop sarcophagus with alien vampire figure inside. Consisting of 23 x 9 x 7 in. clear plastic faceted coffin with resin, silver painted rim and containing an 18 in. resin nude male vampire figure. The prop vessel is permanently sealed with the realistically painted figure affixed, in repose, to a plastic panel inside. Exhibits some production wear, minor scratches and panel seam discoloration. Overall in very good condition. $2,000 - $3,000

700. ORIGINAL CONTRACT FOR OLIVER STONE TO WRITE THE SCARFACE SCREENPLAY, SIGNED BY STONE. (Universal, 1983) The original six-page contract between Universal Studios and Oliver Stone, commissioning Stone to write the screenplay for the gangster epic, Scarface. Some highlights include: Stone was given three months from the signing date - Oct. 19, 1981 - to deliver his first draft to the studio. Also, Stone was to be paid a total of $275,000 — $100,000 to write the first draft, $100,000 to deliver it, $25,000 to do a first revision and $50,000 upon completion of the first revision. Signed by Stone on the last page, along with then-Vice President of Universal Pictures. In very good overall condition. $800 - $1,200

701. SCARFACE PROPMASTER SCRIPT WITH NOTES. (Universal, 1983) Original “Final Draft” production script from Scarface. This script was acquired from the assistant property master who worked on the legendary film, starring Al Pacino as the infamous “Tony Montana”. The red covered, studio bound and bradded script belonged to the Assistant Property Master and is hand-notated with numerous entries and additions, giving fascinating insight into the processes involved in creating this classic film. The crewmember’s name is handwritten at the top of the cover. Some minor age and production wear is visible. Otherwise, in very good condition. The script is accompanied by a letter of authenticity from the Assistant Property Master. $2,000 - $3,000
This M203 grenade launcher was used by “Tony Montana” (Al Pacino) in the gangster epic, Scarface. “Montana” uses the weapon extensively throughout the climax of the film, introducing it with the now-legendary line, “Say hello to my little friend” just before he fires the grenade launcher at the door of his office, sending his attackers flying. The launcher is attached to a non-firing replica Colt AR15, identical to the live-firing gun that was used in most of the gunfire sequences. After Scarface wrapped production, the weapon was rented out for the 1987 sci-fi/action blockbuster, Predator, to be used throughout the film. It measures approx. 38.5 x 10 x 2.75 in., and shows mild signs of production wear. Comes with a COA from the weapons handler who worked on both productions. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $30,000 - $50,000
703. AL PACINO’S “TONY MONTANA” BERETTA FROM SCARFACE. (Universal, 1983) This prop Beretta pistol was screen-used by Al Pacino as the psychopathic mobster “Tony Montana” in Scarface directed by Brian De Palma. This was the gangster's sidearm of choice used throughout the film, and along with the “Little Friend” grenade launcher is one of the most iconic screen-used weapons in cinematic history. This signature weapon was integral to the character's distinctive look and style. Screen-used props from Scarface are extremely rare due to the amount of damage that occurred filming numerous stunt and action sequences as well as use on later productions, making this one of the most valuable artifacts from the film still in existence. This Beretta was one of only (3) principal “Tony Montana” Beretta pistols rented to the production. One of the guns was lost, damaged, or destroyed following its use on the production, and only one other authentic “Tony Montana” pistol is still in existence. All three guns were utilized by Pacino and appear on screen. The Beretta was used in scenes including the botched cocaine deal that initiates “Tony’s” rise to power, and during the later firefight that takes place in the Babylon Club. The Beretta was used with a custom-made silencer in the scene when “Tony” confronts and executes his former boss “Frank Lopez” (Robert Loggia) for double-crossing him. “Tony” also brandished or wore this Beretta in his waistband or shoulder holster in other important scenes. The gun last appears on screen on the desk of “Montana’s” study just before the climactic final shootout.

The left side of the gun is engraved with the serial # D87019W and the weapon is in good overall condition with minor scratches and wear caused by repeated use in action scenes. The black Pachmeyr grips have been replaced with newer identical versions as the original pair was switched out a number of years ago for another production. The gun has been modified to fire blank rounds only. Also included with the gun is the custom made silencer used with the Beretta in several other pivotal scenes of the film. Screenwriter Oliver Stone felt that the Beretta was integral to the “Montana” character’s image, and a specific reference to “Tony’s” Beretta appears on page 158 of the Assistant Property Master’s production script describing “Manny’s” death scene. The assistant circled “Baretta” (sic) in red ink to be sure that exact gun was the one to be used by Pacino in the film. A scan of the property master’s script page and a signed certificate from the film’s weapons specialist who oversaw its use during filming are included in the sale. In very good condition. Shipping arrangements via a federal licensed firearms dealer will apply. $40,000 - $60,000
704. MICHELLE PFEIFFER “Elvira Hancock” screen-used golden coke spoon from Scarface. (Universal, 1983) In Scarface, what many consider the ultimate gangster movie, doing cocaine is the No. 1 pastime, and this screen-used coke spoon is one of the tools needed to live the high life. This coke spoon was used by “Elvira Hancock” (Michelle Pfeiffer) in the scene in which “Tony” (Al Pacino) soaks in a hot tub and “Elvira” sits at her dressing table, snorting cocaine. Constructed of lightweight metal, and featuring a small dull blade on one end and a tiny spoon on the other. Measures approx. 2.5 in. long. Exhibits slight patina from age, but in otherwise fine condition. Includes a letter of authenticity from the films assistant property master. $1,500 - $2,500

705. MARY ELIZABETH MASTRANTONIO “Gina Montana” screen-used golden coke spoon from Scarface. (Universal, 1983) In Scarface, what many consider the ultimate gangster movie, doing cocaine is the No. 1 pastime, and this screen-used coke spoon is one of the tools needed to live the high life. This coke spoon was used by “Gina Montana” (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio), sister of “Tony Montana” (Al Pacino), namely in the scene in which she gets friendly with a nightclub patron in the bathroom. Constructed of lightweight metal, and featuring a small dull blade on one end and a tiny spoon on the other. Measures approx. 2.5 in. long. Exhibits slight patina from age, but in otherwise fine condition. Includes a letter of authenticity from the films assistant property master. $1,000 - $1,500

706. ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER “Conan” Atlantean F/X sword and rig from Conan the Destroyer. (Universal, 1982) As the title character in Conan The Destroyer, Arnold Schwarzenegger puts his famous Atlantean sword through more than a few opponents. One of the ways this effect was accomplished was with this 2-piece, practical special FX stabbing rig. Consisting of (1) 20.5 in. hard rubber blade with ornate resin handle attached to a metal 7 x 7 in. plate affixed to a 1 in. thick, foam rubber pad with leather cords for affixing to the body, and, (1) 5 in. resin blade point, wrapped in silver tape, protruding from an 8 x 6 in. metal plate affixed to a 1 in. foam rubber pad. Pieces are designed to be attached to the front and back of an actor, under costume, to give the effect of having been run through with a sword. Both pieces exhibit signs of wear and age. Overall, in production-used good condition. $6,000 - $8,000
707. Arnold Schwarzenegger “Conan” hero Atlantean sword from Conan The Barbarian. (Universal, 1982) In the beginning of the action film “Conan” discovers an impressive Atlantean sword in a cave and uses it throughout the rest of the film. This Ron Cobb-designed, Arnold Schwarzenegger Conan the Barbarian prop sword is made of solid cast fiberglass. The 39.5 in. sword’s 27 in. silver-painted, double-edged blade is engraved at the base with runic hieroglyphs and has a ferrule groove on each side. The gold painted ricasso guard features ornate sculpture of dragons and runs 7 in. up the blade allowing “Conan” a broader grabbing “choke point” for up-close fighting. The grip is sculpted to appear wrapped in beige cord and the gold pommel matches the guard decoration with an intricate skull relief design. The sword is meticulously painted to appear as metal and cord and studio-distressed to appear aged and worn. There is a small chip on one side of blade point. Overall, in production-used good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $12,000 - $15,000
708. Wilt Chamberlain “Bombata” double-headed ax from Conan the Destroyer. (De Laurentiis, 1984) When you cast 7 ft. 1 in. tall, 300+ lb. Wilt Chamberlain, arguably the most dominant player in NBA history, in an action film, you end up with a worthy adversary for superstar Arnold Schwarzenegger’s “Conan”. A worthy adversary requires a hefty signature weapon. This is a “Bombata” (Chamberlain) battle-axe used in the climactic duel between he and “Conan”. Consisting of a 14 x 11 in., hollow steel, double-edged axe head on a 31.5 in. handle. Blade appears rusted and sinister with leather wrapping crossing the center portion to secure it to the handle. The wooden handle features a leather cord wrapped grip with leather cord decor and a black fur cuff around the handle near the axe head. Wooden finial balls cap each end of the handle. Studio-distressed. In very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $3,000 – $5,000

709. Arnold Schwarzenegger signed “Conan” wooden handled practice sword from Conan the Barbarian. (De Laurentiis, 1982) A practice version of Conan’s father’s Sword. Measuring 39.5 in. long and consisting of 12 in. crude carved wooden grip and pommel and 28.5 in. ground aluminum blade with engraved runic-style characters running the length that spell out, “Suffer no guilt he who wields this in the name of Crom”. Arnold Schwarzenegger has signed on one side of the grip in green pen: “To Keith Arnold Schwarzenegger”. In very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 – $6,000
710. Arnold Schwarzenegger

"Kalidor" sword from Red Sonja. (De Laurentiis, 1985) Arnold Schwarzenegger, as “Kalidor” in Red Sonja, wields this impressive 42 in. solid cast fiberglass sword featuring a silver-painted, double-edged blade engraved with exotic hieroglyphs. The gold painted ricasso guard features an ornate sculpture of a dial. The grip is wrapped in beige cord and the gold pommel matches the guard decoration with another dial. The sword is painted to appear as steel and gold and studio-distressed to appear aged and worn. There is paint cracking on the blade and some rubbing of the grip and pommel. A divot has chipped off the surface on one side of the blade near the guard. The cord wrap has come loose from the grip. In overall fair condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 - $6,000

711. Arnold Schwarzenegger

"Kalidor" sword with retractable stabbing blade from Red Sonja. (De Laurentiis, 1985) Arnold Schwarzenegger, as “Kalidor” in Red Sonja, wields this impressive weapon. This is a lightweight, retractable “stabbing” version of the sword. The 42 in. sword is composed of a 26.5 in. hollow steel blade with the upper 20 in. being a sleeve which receives the retractable 6.5 in. blade tip to simulate stabbing when depressed against a foe. Features a hollow resin, gold painted ricasso guard with an ornate sculpture of a dial. The grip is wrapped in beige cord and the gold pommel matches the guard decoration with another dial. The sword handle is painted to appear as gold and the entire prop is studio-distressed to appear aged and worn. The resin guard has chipped off an inch on each side of the blade. In working, production-used fair condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $6,000 - $8,000
712. Arnold Schwarzenegger distressed biker jacket from The Terminator. (Orion, 1984) This jacket was custom made for Arnold Schwarzenegger for his role in the blockbuster, The Terminator. The studio distressed, black leather jacket has exposed aluminum zippers, three outside zippered pockets and one snap patch pocket and zippered sleeves. Lace up side panels. An integral leather belt with brass buckle threads through loops ringing the waistline of the jacket. The lapels feature black snaps at their corners. Screen-worn in the famous “I’ll be back” scene at the police station. There were a few versions of this jacket made with increasing studio-distress to reflect damage suffered in the chaotic gunfight that ensued. This jacket is in an advanced state of distress with 8 bullet holes distributed in front, back and right arm. Inner lining shows remnants of bullet hits or “Squibs” including black tape and stage blood. In production used, very good condition. Comes with an LOA from a police officer who acquired the jacket at The Retake Room in 1984. $12,000 - $15,000

713. Arnold Schwarzenegger stunt .45 caliber Longslide gun with laser-sight from Terminator. (Orion, 1984) In The Terminator, an assassin cyborg (Arnold Schwarzenegger) acquires an AMT Hardballer Longslide with a primitive laserlock sight. He first uses it to terminate two women traced from a phone book who share the name of his intended victim “Sarah Connor” (Linda Hamilton). The gun is next seen when he arrives at the real “Sarah Connor’s” apartment, and finally upon tracking Sarah to the Tech Noir nightclub where he guns down innocent club patrons before losing the gun when “Kyle Reese” (Michael Biehn) intervenes leveling a shotgun blast at the cyborg that sends him crashing through a glass window. Consisting of a solid, cast resin 10 x 7 in. prop gun with cast resin laser-sight attached with metal bracket components. The gun and sight are painted metallic silver with black handle. In production-used good condition. Obtained from the Handprop Room which provided props for the production and comes with an LOA. $3,000 - $5,000
714. Robert Patrick “T-1000” Mechanical bullet hit shirt from Terminator 2: Judgment Day. (Carolco, 1991) A “T1000” (Robert Patrick) ’final bullet hit’ mechanical shirt made by Stan Winston for the 1991 classic sci-fi film Terminator 2: Judgment Day. This instantly recognizable costume was worn by the T-1000 when he becomes a policeman, and pursues John Connor (Edward Furlong). The silver discs on the costume are from where the bullet hits have damaged his metallic structure, spreading it out like plates. Inside the shirt is an elaborate servo system attached to an elastic harness that would have been linked to a remote control box. At the optimum moment, the special effect would have been triggered giving the illusion required. This costume was used in the final steel mill scenes in the film when the final exploding grenade-hit blows him up. $3,000 - $5,000

715. Terminator 2: Judgment Day “T-1000” bullet splash. (Carolco, 1991) “T-1000” bullet impact hit from Terminator 2: Judgment Day. A metalized resin, approx. 6.5 in. irregular round bullet hit. In the film, when the murderous “T-1000 Terminator” is shot, a metallic splash blossoms from its body before settling back into shape. Cast resin and rubber pieces like this were attached to the “T-1000” costume to achieve the practical component of this memorable visual effect, which worked hand-in-hand with CGI. In good production-used condition. Comes with an LOA from a senior employee at Stan Winston Studio. $300 - $500

716. George Gaynes “Commandant Lassard” police jacket from Police Academy. (Warner Bros., 1984) In the misfit cop-comedy Police Academy, George Gaynes plays eccentric “Commandant Lassard”. This is Lassard’s screen-worn police jacket complete with gold sleeve braids, golden buttons, round “Metropolitan Police” arm patches and ranking stars on epaulette shoulder straps. The jacket dressing is finished with a gold Metropolitan Police badge pinned to the left breast. Retains internal costumer’s label with “Lassard” written by hand. A relic from a beloved American comedy franchise. In fine, production-worn condition. Accompanied by a letter of authenticity from the costume house. $600 - $800
(Warner Bros., 1984) In the misfit cop–comedy Police Academy 5, G.W. Bailey plays antagonist “T. Harris” aka “Mr. Nasty”. A series of entry and exit stamps are imprinted on subsequent pages. The passport exhibits water staining and cover cracking. In production–used fair condition. $500 - $700

(ITC, 1985) This suit was worn by screen icon Elizabeth Taylor as “Louella Parsons” in the TV movie Malice in Wonderland. Consisting of a black, tailored jacket with beaded front panels from collar to chest and mother of pearl button front closure. The jacket retains the designer’s label printed, “Barnett original”. Malice in Wonderland is based on the 1972 novel, Hedda and Louella: A Dual Biography of Hedda Hopper and Louella Parsons, by George Eells. It tells the “based–on–real–life” stories of the two powerful Hollywood gossip columnists, once friends and later bitter rivals. This production costume design was nominated for an Emmy. The suit is in vintage, screen–worn condition with signs of age. Accompanied by a certificate of authenticity from the costume house. $4,000 - $6,000
720. Paul Reubens “Pee-wee Herman” custom bicycle from Pee Wee’s Big Adventure. (Warner Bros., 1985) The entire story of Pee Wee’s Big Adventure revolves around the beloved oddball “Pee Wee Herman” (Paul Reubens) and his escapades in trying to recover his treasured stolen bike. This is one of only a few hero bikes used in the film. Consisting of a base Schwinn DX bike with both factory and customized elements including: scooped fenders, vented wheel guards, whitewall tires, rubber hand grips with streamer tassels, lidded top cargo hold, electric rocket headlight, Hypno-wheel tire hubs, tank console with secret weapon buttons, rear rocket tail lights and smoke chamber. Attached to the bike handlebars are a variety of accessories like: metal thumb bell, “escape console” with red and green buttons, ball compass, CB intercom, tiger siren, rearview mirror, a few parts, rear dorsal fin, handlebar tassels (vintage but not original) and headlight inset have been replaced with meticulous attention to authenticity. The entire bike is painted in glossy red and white with chrome components and grills. This iconic bike exhibits some scuffing and scratching to surface from production-use and mylar tape wrinkling; overall, the bike remains in instantly recognizable, very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $15,000 - $20,000
721. Paul Reubens “Pee-wee Herman” Hero “Destination Texas” Sign from Pee-wee’s Big Adventure. With hinged wooden clap stick above chalkboard surface and printed production information including: “Director: Sidney Furie” and “Cameraman: Earnest Day”. With light chalk remnants and tape with handwritten date “30th January”. In very good condition. $1,500 - $2,000

723. Skyway Lane Marker from Back to the Future II. (Universal, 1989) This is one of the Skyway lane marker devices seen floating in the sky during the futuristic flying DeLorean sequences in Back to the Future II. Created by ILM, the 7.5 in. device is constructed of red aluminum supports, printed with “HY 30,” with two white tube lights, a mini rubber model Bridgestone tire with airbrush detailing topped by a yellow plastic dome over a flashlight bulb. The device is attached to a 14 in. curved rod (covered in black velveteen to read as negative space) with a tooled aluminum cylindrical base. The entire piece measures 16 in. tall. Electronics are present for illumination but untested. In production-used, fine condition. $2,000 - $3,000

724. Chinese Wild Man/Beast suit from Big Trouble in Little China. (TCE 1986) Complete screen-used “Wild Man” creature suit from Big Trouble in Little China, the John Carpenter fantasy film. The “Wild Man”, based upon the Chinese legend of the Yeren, was one of many elaborate creatures featured. The suit measures a life-size 56 in. tall by 47 in. wide and is fabricated of auburn knotted hair on a mottled stretch mesh suit over foam latex padding. The mask head and glove hands are sculpted foam latex with the mask being built on a fiberglass shell with hinged jaw, resin teeth, punched hair and painted bright yellow/red demon eyes. The entire suit is expertly painted. The figure is displayed in a pose on a stationary body form, mounted to a 24 x 43 x 4 in. black wooden base. Shows some signs of age. In production used, good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,000 - $3,000
725. Michael J. Fox “Marty McFly” 2015 Nike “Mag” self-lacing shoes from Back to the Future II. (Universal, 1989) Pair of custom-made Nike “Mag” shoes worn by Michael J. Fox as “Marty McFly” in the second installment of the popular Back to the Future trilogy. When “Doc Brown” and “Marty” arrive in the year 2015, “Doc” asks “Marty” to put on clothes similar to “Marty, Jr”. To help him pass for a contemporary teenager, “Doc” gives “Marty” the latest in high-tech outerwear, and the first thing he puts on are these self-lacing futuristic Nikes. These represent only the second pair of Nike Mags we have encountered and are the finer of the two. Shoes exhibit minor cracking along the soles, yet remain in exceptionally clean condition. $30,000 - $50,000
726. Anthony Edwards “Goose” damaged helmet fragments from Top Gun. This is an original “Goose” (Anthony Edwards) flight helmet visor cover used in the Tony Scott film, Top Gun. This distressed 9 x 7 in. visor cover was created specifically for shots of “Goose” lying in the water after crashing into his jet’s canopy cover during ejection, in one of the film’s most memorable scenes. The visor cover was distressed by cutting several sections from the piece, and scratching and distressing the surface. As it was only needed for a single sequence, it would have been installed on one of the standard “Goose” flight helmets for this purpose only, and later removed. The visor cover features the memorable striping and insignia pattern that was created specifically for the film. Even with the “G” missing from “Goose”, the piece is immediately recognizable. The striping pattern on “Goose’s” helmet in the film is the same as “Maverick’s” helmet, with a reversed color pattern. This piece was obtained from a crewmember that worked on the film and kept it as a memento. It is labeled inside “Top Gun Goose – Red w/ 242”. The piece can also be screen-matched to shots of “Goose” in the water following the accident. The piece is presented on a custom-made display stand featuring an illuminating base with the film’s logo applied. In production-used, very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $8,000 - $10,000

All in production used, good condition. $2,000 - $3,000
754. Jennifer Connelly “Jenny” Dress from The Rocketeer.
(Disney, 1991) Satin ball dress worn by Jennifer Connelly as “Jenny” in the retro superhero film The Rocketeer. The actress is seen wearing this dress at a dinner with “Neville Sinclair” (Timothy Dalton). This dress can be screen matched to stitching lines around the shoulder areas, down the sides of the dress, the “V” cut at the front bottom of the dress and zipper line running down the left side of the dress. This dress was custom-made by the production department, and is made from a crème-colored soft satin with a zipper closure running down the left side of the dress with a small metal clasp at the top. It features three accents on the front bodice of the dress made from gathered satin fabric, and features distinctive draping material on the front, back and shoulder areas. The sultry bias cut on the skirt allows it to fan from the waist and float on air when Connelly dances with Dalton. There is no sign of measurements marked on the dress as it is custom-made, and features the letters “WDS” stamped into the inside back of the dress in black ink, as well as an internal Disney Pictures & TV bar-code label. The dress is in very good condition. $8,000 - $10,000

(Universal, 1991) This original costume was worn by Robert Redford as “Jack Weil” in Sydney Pollack’s epic Havana. The outfit includes a dark blue sport jacket, dark blue dress shirt, black belt, a pair of brown two-tone wing tip shoes and khaki pants. Redford wore this ensemble in several scenes, most notably during a rendezvous with “Roberta Duran” (Lena Olin). The outfit is also seen at a restaurant when “Jack” is preparing to depart Cuba for the United States. The suit was custom-made for Mr. Redford and bears the original Western Costume Company internal labels with “Robert Redford” and sizing information. The blue dress shirt was made by “Nat Wise of London” and includes the actor’s initials “R.R.” and the production date “January 1990.” Director Sydney Pollack’s brother Bernie Pollack designed the costumes for Havana. These garments are in very good, screen-worn condition and are accompanied by a letter of authenticity. $2,000 - $3,000

756. Bridget Fonda Stunt Gun from Point of No Return.
(Warner Bros., 1993) This is the stunt model of the .22 caliber pistol used heavily by “Maggie Hayward” (Bridget Fonda) in the crime thriller, Point of No Return. It’s a high-quality, realistic replica of a Swiss Hammerli 280 handgun with a right-hand carved grip. It’s constructed of hard rubber and painted to look like steel and is weighted in the barrel for authenticity. It measures approx. 11.5 x 5.5 x 1.75 in. In very good condition. $400 - $600

All in very good condition. $400 - $600

759. Sylvester Stallone “Gabe Walker” sweater and thermal undervest garment from Cliffhanger. (Carolco Pictures, 1993) In Cliffhanger, superstar Sylvester Stallone plays “Gabe Walker” a mountain climber who has to overcome past trauma to rescue a group stranded in the snow. This is the screen-used sweater that takes a beating right along with Stallone. The tan, cable-knit wool sweater is heavily studio-distressed with fraying, soil, bloodstains and holes throughout. Accompanied by a pair of thermal Hind brand black spandex pants. The costume is in production-used good condition. $800 - $1,200

760. Christian Slater “Clarence Worley” Elvis-style sunglasses with crew chair back from True Romance. (Morgan Creek, 1993) Plastic, Elvis-style sunglasses, screen-worn by Christian Slater as “Clarence Worley” in the sexy crime film True Romance. The glasses feature prominently throughout the film and in advertising media. Consisting of metallic painted, over-sized frames with dark amber lenses. The stems feature graduated holes leading to black plastic ear rests. The right stem is connected to the frame by a small safety pin. Accompanied by the original onset storage bag designating them ‘hero’. Also included is a printed canvas director’s chair back with the True Romance logo on one side and “Crew” on the other. The glasses in production-used condition. Chair back remains good. Includes a detailed letter of provenance from the Property Master. $1,500 - $2,500
761. LIFE SIZE HERO, DESICCATED “POD PERSON” PROP FROM BODY SNATCHERS. (Warner Bros., 1993) Having re-imagined the alien pod people for Philip Kaufman’s highly successful 1978 remake of Invasion of the Body Snatchers, husband and wife makeup wizards Tom and Bari Burman were hired to take the pods even further for Abel Ferrara’s intense Sci-Fi thriller, Body Snatchers. This startling latex-skinned and foam-filled prop depicts a “pod person” in mid-transition from seedpod to full-fledged humanoid. The life-sized, head and torso piece measures 40 x 20 x 6 in. with left arm (no hand) and is finished with an expertly punched head of hair. This is one of the few hero pieces to survive from this landmark production. This prop is in production, used fair condition. $1,500 - $2,000

762. TRIO OF FX SWISS ARMY KNIVES FROM TRUE ROMANCE. (Morgan Creek, 1993) In an unforgettable scene in True Romance, “Alabama” (Patricia Arquette) fends off “Virgil’s” (James Gandolfini) violent attack with a pocket knife corkscrew. These are (3) practical Swiss Army knife stage effect props. Including (1) dulled hero knife, locked in the open blade position, (1) one hard rubber stunt knife in the open blade position, and, (1) hero knife with the corkscrew element deployed. All props are in production-used, good condition. $800 - $1,200

763. JAMES GANDOLFINI “VIRGIL” SHOE WITH SPECIAL FX SWISS ARMY KNIFE RIG FROM TRUE ROMANCE. (Morgan Creek, 1993) In an unforgettable scene in True Romance, “Alabama” (Patricia Arquette) fends off hitman “Virgil’s” (James Gandolfini) violent attack with a pocket knife corkscrew. This is the screen-used evidence of that battle. Consisting of a white Rudolph Valentino Collection brand, size 10 shoe with a prop Swiss Army corkscrew affixed to the upper toe. A rubber dinosaur toy is chained to the loop of the pocket knife. The shoe exhibits some production wear, minor surface flaking and traces of studio blood from the scene. Otherwise, in good condition. Accompanied by a detailed letter of provenance from the Property Master. $1,200 - $1,500

764. VAL KILMER “ELVIS” PENDANT AND RING FROM TRUE ROMANCE. (Morgan Creek, 1993) Val Kilmer plays the apparition of “Elvis Presley” who materializes for a short time, but has profound impact on the story in True Romance. These are (2) pieces of Kilmer’s screen-worn “Elvis” accessories, consisting of (1) gold ring with rhinestone horseshoe and (1) golden metal “TCB” lightning bolt pendant on an 8 in. chain. 765. "Jaffa" Staff from Stargate (Film). (Carolco, 1992) This Jaffa staff is the weapon of choice for the temple guards of "Ra," the alien demi-god at the heart of the sci-fi cult classic, Stargate. It's a long, ornate staff that doubles as an energy blaster, and perfectly fits the Stargate motif by combining ancient-Egyptian aesthetics with alien technology. This staff is composed of highly textured and styled rubber on a solid core. It exhibits some slight production wear, but is in overall very good condition. It measures approx. 7 ft. in length, and the head is approx. 7 in. wide. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $3,000 - $5,000

766. Production made Death Glider from Stargate. (Carolco Pictures, 1994) Production made "Goa'uld" Death Glider from the Sci-Fi film Stargate, finished and detailed post-production, with parts cast from original production molds. A crescent-shaped alien gunship with a pair of external mounted staff cannons and miniature helmeted "Jaffa" pilot in the cockpit. The elaborate FX model measures approx. 85 x 47 x 24 in., consisting of detailed fiberglass shell with resin components. This model was sent from MGM to Vancouver to be used in the Stargate TV series, but producers decided to change the shape of the glider to accommodate two pilots and enclose the cockpit (the movie glider had an open cockpit, piloted by "Jaffa" guard). The unfinished model can be seen in the background of the studio in Stargate SG1, Season 5 episode: "Wormhole Extreme", featured as a model being moved in the background. The ship is rigged for hanging by 4 eye-hooks implanted in the top of the body of the hull. The ship is expertly painted in metallic blues, grays and shades of purple. In fine condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $12,000 - $15,000
767. (4) SCREEN-USED JURASSIC PARK LICENSE PLATES. Set of (4) screen-used Jurassic Park jeep vehicle license plates including the only screen-matched plate known to exist. The most complete collection of Jurassic Park license plates we have ever encountered, and a once-in-a-lifetime chance to obtain these instantly recognizable and important props from Steven Spielberg’s groundbreaking masterpiece. (1) Plate #10: used in the iconic scene where “Dr. Ian Malcolm” (Jeff Goldblum), “Dr. Ellie Sattler” (Laura Dern), and “Robert Muldoon” (Bob Peck) are chased by a rampaging T-Rex. The plate is studio distressed and covered in FX dirt (1) Plate #29 was used on the front of the jeep which transported “John Hammond” (Richard Attenborough) and “Donald Gennaro” (Martin Ferrero) from the helipad to the park (1) Plate #5 is from one of two Ford Explorers used in the film, each outfitted with only a single rear plate, and, (1) Plate #12 is the rear plate from “Dennis Nedry’s” (Wayne Knight) jeep. “Nedry’s” vehicle played a central part in the scenes where he flees with stolen dinosaur embryos before meeting his demise in a fateful meeting with a Dilophosaurus. $15,000 – $20,000
768. Compsognathus “Compy” screen-used puppet from The Lost World: Jurassic Park. (Universal, 1993) Ultra-realistic, non-animatronic 31 in. long Compsognathus stunt figure, life-sized dinosaur from The Lost World: Jurassic Park, consisting of foam rubber on wire and metal armature. This figure was featured in the memorable scene where the cruel “Stark” sadistically shocks one of these dinosaurs only to be descended upon and ultimately devoured by a pack of the small but deadly creatures. The figure was one of the “throwing dummies” for the swarming scene. Aluminum armature wire was added to the off-camera side to the figure to keep the neck from being too floppy. Exhibits some production wear evident, and one shoulder joint is broken. Otherwise, rubber and paint remain in good condition. Comes with an LOA from a Stan Winston Studio technician. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $1,500 - $2,500

769. Robert Englund “Freddy Krueger” screen-used organic/bio-mechanical hero bladed glove from New Nightmare. (New Line, 1994) In the 7th installment in the Nightmare on Elm Street franchise, creator and director Wes Craven opted for a more cerebral treatment of his subject matter and iconic character, “Freddy Krueger” (Robert Englund). In addition to the change in tone, the monster’s famous bladed-glove also morphed into a more organic version. Instead of the original leather and metal glove, this glove represented his real flesh-and-blood hand with blades seemingly growing out of his raw musculature and bones. Constructed of cast foam latex, tooled aluminum parts and metal blades, this is the only hero 5-bladed glove with retractable blades made for the production and worn by Robert Englund as Freddy Krueger for stabbing scenes. Measures 18 in. tall and comes displayed on a custom 8 in. round plexiglass base. Comes with a LOA from Mechanical Effects creator, Lou Carlucci. $8,000 - $12,000
770. Incredible life size “Goro” figure from Mortal Combat. (New Line, 1995) In the martial arts fantasy film Mortal Combat, inspired by the video game, hero “Liu Kang” (Robin Shou) fights his way through a throng of skillful opponents. But no enemy is more frightening than the 4-armed, gigantic Shokan warrior “Goro”. This 92 in. tall x 70 in. wide figure is an exact fiberglass duplicate of the animatronic-suited character seen in the film. It was created simultaneously from the same molds as the animatronic figure, and by the same artists, and was used in publicizing the film. The figure is dressed in the original screen-used costume of loincloth with oval buckle, leather studded gauntlets, hair tie and actual hairpiece. Free-standing with pipe and bracket mounting hardware on the lower back. In fine condition, ready for display. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $6,000 – $8,000

771. Russell Crowe “Wendell ‘Bud’ White” stunt gun and holster from L.A. Confidential. (Warner Bros., 1997) Foam rubber stunt handgun and leather holster used by “Wendell ‘Bud’ White” (Russell Crowe) in the noir crime drama L.A. Confidential. The gun is a highly-detailed replica of a .38 Colt revolver constructed of skinned foam latex and realistically painted to resemble metal and wood. The holster is tan leather with white stitching and mounts to the wearer’s belt with an attached clip; inside is handwritten “Bud #2”. The gun measures approx. 8 in. from handle to barrel tip; the holster is approx. 5 in. long. Both are in fine condition. Accompanied by a letter of authenticity from the Property Master. $800 – $1,200

772. Kirsten Dunst “Claudia” doll from Interview with The Vampire. (Warner Bros., 1994) A Victorian-style porcelain doll belonging to the vampire “Claudia” (Dunst) forever trapped in a child’s body in Interview With The Vampire. In the film, the “Claudia” character amassed a collection of dolls created in her likeness – one presented to her each year on the date of her vampiric “birth into darkness”. This doll measures 17 x 8.5 in. and consists of stuffed fabric body, porcelain head, hands and feet, applied hair and brown and creme satin and lace dress with apron, with a matching feathered hat and tiny white shoes. Glass doll eyes finish the figure, which comes on a wooden base display stand. In very good condition. Comes with a Warner Bros. certificate of authenticity. $600 – $800

Jean Rasczak” the veteran military commander in the Sci-Fi action film Starship Troopers. The costume consists of a padded gray and black M.I. jacket with ranking epaullettes (1) chest and (2) shoulder unit patches. M.I. padded pants with integral suspenders, Adidas black sneakers modified with added boot tops and velcro strapping and motorcycle gloves. Includes gun-metal gray body armor with hard rubber vest, web belt harness and integral utility belt with canteen, foam rubber ammo cartridges in snap packs and knife sheath containing tooled aluminum throwing knife attached. All pieces are marked internally with “Rasczak” and exhibit production soiling and wear. In good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,500 - $3,500

774. Lighting stand-in mask and original artwork from Entrapment. (TCF, 1999) This is the lighting stand-in of the mask prop that Catherine Zeta Jones as “Virginia Baker” and Sean Connery as “Robert MacDougal” steal in the thriller Entrapment. This 19.5 in. tall prop stood in for the hero prop, which was actually gold-plated with semi-precious stones embedded and was only ever on set when cameras were rolling. This prop was used for framing and lighting shots. Identical to the hero version other than precious metals and valuable gems, the 11 x 11 in., brass metalized mask is affixed to an 11 x 6 in. decorative black painted resin stand, identical to the one seen in the film. Included is the matted and framed original hand drawn color design for the piece accomplished in colored pencil on 14 x 11 in. (visible through mat) black paper. A beautiful artifact in fine condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,500 - $3,500

775. The “Lawgiver II” prop handgun from Judge Dredd. The primary weapon of “Judge’s” in the Sci-Fi action movie Judge Dredd is the deadly “Lawgiver II” - weapon of choice for Sylvester Stallone as the title character “Judge Dredd”. This impressive “Lawgiver II” prop handgun consists of a 10.5 x 6 in. fiberglass futuristic body with tooled aluminum muzzle embedded in the upper barrel and a plastic lens embedded in the lower barrel. The prop is painted black and silver with red accents within the slotted barrel vents. The lightweight prop is expertly distressed to appear used and there is an Eagle and Shield icon imprinted on the right side of the prop barrel. The “Lawgiver II” design used the 9mm Beretta 92FS as a base. A beautiful display piece and a fine example of Hollywood’s best weapons craft. In good condition. $2,500 - $3,500

776. Full head SFX Malkovich mask from Being John Malkovich. (Propaganda Films, 1999) Lifesized wearable mask of the actor John Malkovich who plays himself in the cult classic Being John Malkovich. Consisting of a silicone likeness mask of the actor applied to a 22 x 18 x 10 in. foam display head and shoulders bust form. The is hyper-realistically painted in detail and finished with hand-punched hair, eyebrows and fitted with plastic eyes with drilled pupils for visibility by mask wearer, and a zipper closure on the back. Created for the scene in the film where numerous Malkovich likenesses are seen in the restaurant as Malkovich enters his own brain. In production-used good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $1,000 - $1,500

780. Tom Hanks “Forrest Gump” iconic bus stop bench from Forrest Gump. (Paramount, 1994) While waiting at a bus stop, Forrest Gump begins telling his fantastic life story to various strangers sitting near him on a bench. In the film plot, after retelling each chapter in his life, a different person sits beside him on the bench and listens to his progressing story. The bus stop bench has come to symbolize “Forrest’s” loveable and simple character (the movie poster art features a shortened version of the bench). Measuring 118 in. long x 38 in. tall x 27 in. wide, the vertical pylon supports are crafted of dense fiberglass, made to look like cement. Stained wooden slats span the pylons to make a fully functional bench. As is often the case with film props, a number of benches were used on the set of Forrest Gump, one resides at The Savannah History Museum, where the bus stop scenes were filmed. A brass commemorative brass plaque is riveted on the wood at the center which reads: “Forrest Gump Bench Paramount Studios”. The consignor acquired this piece directly from Paramount Pictures in the mid-1990s. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $8,000 - $12,000

Special shipping arrangements will apply. $12,000 - $15,000
The brilliant F/X artists responsible for the unforgettable design of The Matrix franchise created models to base the stunning look and CGI counterparts of their practical designs. One of the most memorable inventions in The Matrix Reloaded universe were the squid-like, drone assassin robots called “Sentinels”. This is one of the polyfoam “Sentinel” models created for the production. With 26 x 58 x 45 in. hub body (10) 28 in. crab-like static appendages in front and (8) articulating tentacles ranging from approx. 5 ft. to 9 ft. long with a variety of static, opened and closed claws behind. Red vacuum-formed “eyes” complete the sinister “face” of the robot. Foam appendages are attached to the body by heavy wire anchored into the foam body. Finished to studio perfection. Exhibits some dented eyes and minor production wear. Four claw elements have been sympathetically replicated for display purposes. Stands 8 feet tall on a custom-matte black display stand. An impressive and realistic piece from The Matrix Reloaded. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $30,000 - $50,000
802. Russell Crowe “Maximus” stunt battle axe from Gladiator. (DreamWorks, 2000) Prop battle axe used by Russell Crowe in his Academy Award-winning role as heroic warrior “Maximus” in the epic Gladiator. Made of hard rubber with an internal metal rod for support, this realistically painted and finished stunt axe was used in the exciting sequence in the film when “Maximus” fights the “Tigris of Gaul” and tigers at the Coliseum. He wrestles this 30 in. long axe from the “Tigris” and impales his foot, then makes to kill him, but spares him instead. In very good condition. $10,000 - $15,000

803. Russell Crowe’s Maximus tunic from Gladiator. (DreamWorks, 2000) This tunic was worn by Russell Crowe as “Maximus” in Gladiator. The sleeveless, knee-length tunic is constructed from studio-distressed, unbleached cotton homespun fabric and lined with a light weight muslin reinforcement lining. A bias tag with “Max” written in black ink is sewn under the muslin lining at the back of the neck. “Max” wears this tunic when he is abducted from his destroyed home by Roman slave traders and taken to Zucchabar, a Roman city in North Africa. There, he is bought by the trader “Proximo” and forced to become a gladiator. Accompanied by a letter of authenticity from the costumer. $2,000 - $3,000
804. Joaquin Phoenix Tunic from *Gladiator. (DreamWorks, 2000) This is the instantly recognizable tunic and cape worn by the villainous “Commodus” (Joaquin Phoenix) in the action-packed epic Gladiator. This costume can be seen under leather armor (not included) in sequences when “Commodus” returns to Rome as “Caesar” and addresses the Senate while arrogantly twirling his sword. The costume consists of a crème-colored, knee-length tunic with long billowing sleeves and decorative gold thread embroidery around the neck and sleeves. A large panel of fabric was worn as a cape attached to the top shoulders of armor. This dramatically draped cape features more gold embroidery running down the edges and the hem of the garment. In very good condition. $2,500 - $3,500

805. Skeletorious’ Trident from *Gladiator. (DreamWorks, 2000) “Skeletorious” trident prop used in the Ridley Scott epic, Gladiator. The moroccan gladiator has the misfortune of facing “Maximus” (Russell Crowe) in his first arena battle under the guidance of “Proximo” (Oliver Reed). The vicious weapon features a 66 in. long wooden shaft, tipped with a rubber cap at the base and topped with the aggressive trident featuring two 13 in. outer prongs and a 5 in. central spike flanked by two shorter angular pincers, made entirely from hard rubber with an internal metal support. It creates an awesome and instantly recognizable piece measuring a full 86.5 in. tall. The prop remains in very good condition with some scuffs and knicks from extensive production-use. The trident head separates from the staff for shipping purposes. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,000 - $3,000

806. Net throwing Gladiator’s skirt and waist armor and net from Moroccan arena sequence from *Gladiator (DreamWorks, 2000) A collection of (3) pieces from the epic blockbuster Gladiator. Including (1) leather skirt (1) protective armor piece and (1) throwing net used by the deadly competitor recognized for his net throwing skills during the Moroccan arena scenes when “Maximus” (Russell Crowe) must fight or die in battle against veteran gladiators. The leather skirt has a front and back panel bridged with leather thong, consisting of layers bound together with rivets, leather straps with cingulum hanging below the waist. The armor is made from cast fiberglass with metal components to give it an incredibly realistic look and feel with distinctive embossed patterns to appear acid-etched and consists of a front and rear section joined with leather laces. The throwing net is made of strong twine netting on rope border, which has retained prop crabs, which can be seen on screen. The piece is large and roughly squared, measuring approximately 6 ft. 7 in. across and in weathered condition. In production-used good condition. $1,500 - $2,000
807. Ralf Moeller “Hagen” Battle of Carthage armor and custom display from Gladiator. (DreamWorks, 2000) “Hagen’s” (Ralf Moeller) blue cloth tunic and chainmail costume from the Ridley Scott’s Oscar winning epic film, Gladiator. The kindly giant of a gladiator “Hagen” is thrown together with “Maximus” (Russell Crowe) as one of “Proximo’s” (Oliver Reed) fearless gladiators and can be seen wearing this style of costume during the Battle of Carthage inside the gigantic Coliseum. The costume consists of a black fiberglass helmet with lightweight metal chainmail fringe hanging to the shoulders, an adjustable visor, an armored chainmail coat with reinforced brown leather front closure secured with rivets, leather straps, metal buckles, a wide brown leather belt with three ties at the back and a distinctive blue cotton, knee-length under tunic. Costume comes presented on a custom-built display stand with a brief description illuminated on the black base, standing 82.5 in. tall. The costume is in good condition with minor damage to the chainmail due to production-use. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,500 - $6,500

808. “Tigris of Gaul” stunt sword from Gladiator. (DreamWorks, 2000) “Tigris of Gaul” (Sven Ole-Thorsen) sword from Gladiator. The “Tigris” sword was designed by world famous armorer Simon Atherton. While the blade on the sword is the standard Gladius style, for close combat, with a handle unique to the “Tigris” character. This is a stunt version of the sword, used for fight sequences in the film. It features a 4 in. resin grip painted to appear as leather-wrapped and a guard and pommel painted metallic gold. The 21 in. long hard rubber, silver painted blade is designed for easy replacement from wear or damage during production. In production-used good condition. $3,500 - $5,500

809. Hero James Duval “Frank the Rabbit” mask from Donnie Darko. (Pandora Films, 2001) This is one of two Bunny masks worn by James Duval in his role as “Frank” in the cult classic film, Donnie Darko. According to Pandora Films, only two of the full, fur-hooded masks were produced for and employed in the film. The mask is made of rigid polyurethane foam with a reverse life cast of the actor’s face inside, hood not present. Virtually no props or wardrobe from this small budget film have come into the marketplace, so this represents a unique opportunity to acquire the signature prop from this cult film. Comes with a certificate of authenticity from Pandora Films. $12,000 - $15,000
810. ORLANDO BLOOM “LEGOLAS” LOTHORIEN ARROW FROM THE LORD OF THE RINGS: THE FELLOWSHIP OF THE RING. (New Line, 2001) "Legolas", son of "Thranduil", is one of the most popular characters in Tolkien’s epic The Lord of the Rings. The elegant elves’ skills as an archer were unrivaled in all of middle Earth. In Peter Jackson’s Oscar-winning movie adaptation, Orlando Bloom plays “Legolas Greenleaf”. This is one of Legolas’ Lothorien arrows made by WETA Workshop and used throughout the epic trilogy. The character is presented with arrows, a quiver and a bow at “Galadriel’s” gift giving ceremony in Fellowship of the Ring. These weapons were more powerful and more accurate than those he carried before and they were used extensively in the Fellowship’s quest to help “Frodo” destroy the One Ring at Mount Doom. The 38 in. long arrow is made from wood and colored forest green, the diamond shaped feather flights are gold and green. The arrow is tipped with a real metal, leaf shaped head with a beautiful elven carving within. The edge of the tip is soft. This prop was given to Sideshow Collectables in June 2002 and was on display in their boardroom until relocation of the business in 2006. The arrow has a WETA logo, reference number and date engraved into it. The arrow remains in very good condition. On December 16, 2012 Profiles in History sold Orlando Bloom’s “Legolas” bow for an amazing $372,000. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $5,000 - $7,000

The hat lifts off to reveal double-sided tape and some hot glue remnants at the top of the hairline. Overall, in production-used fair condition. Comes with an LOA from the FX company that made the puppet. $1,500 - $2,000
In the fantasy World War II landscape of Captain America: The First Avenger, arch villain “Red Skull’s” “Hydra” army is a sinister (and well-dressed) force to be reckoned with. This complete “Hydra” soldier uniform consists of green wool jacket and pants, faux leather details, red piping and “Hydra” patch on the left shoulder. A hard rubber harness encases the jacket, embossed with “Hydra” insignia. Accessories include black leather gloves, boots, gaiters and fabric hood. Rubber and metal helmet is constructed on a suede base with integral goggles. The gun and backpack are made of plastic, rubber, fabric, some metal and light up blue when battery operated mechanisms are switched on. Exhibits slight stains and wear from production use. Due to production use and the nature of the power pack and rifle construction, we cannot guarantee that items will illuminate, and may require some restoration/repair. Special shipping arrangements will apply.

$3,000 - $5,000
883. Stunt axe from *Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter. (Tim Burton Productions, 2012) This stunt-model axe/rifle is the weapon of choice for the most fearsome slayer of the undead ever elected to public office, our 16th president, “Abraham Lincoln” (played by Benjamin Walker) from the historical horror/action film Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter. This model, made of hard foam rubber, measures approx. 47 x 7 x 1.25 in., and is painted to look like an authentic wood handle and steel ax head. Shows minor signs of production use. Includes COA from Fox Studios and original 20th Century-Fox packaging. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $600 - $800

884. “Ghostface” costume and rubber stunt knife from *Scream 4. (Dimension films, 2011) A “Ghostface” killer robe, hooded mask and stunt buck knife used by the iconic Scream character in the 4th entry in the Scream franchise. Reputedly based on the chilling Edward Munch’s painting “The Scream”, the ghost-faced killer costume has become synonymous with the horror series since its introduction in Scream (1996). While production-used, the hooded robe and mask are commercial versions of Halloween costumes that were accessible and economic for production. The 12 x 2 in. stunt buck knife is cast from rubber, painted silver with black, tape-wrapped handle. The ensemble combines to make an instantly recognizable costume from the legendary horror franchise. All items in very good condition. Comes with a COA. $800 - $1,200

885. Prometheus Cockpit chair. (TCF, 2012) Screen-used cockpit chair from the bridge deck in the Ridley Scott epic Sci-Fi thriller, Prometheus. This type of chair can be seen during the bridge sequences including those in which “Janek” (Idris Elba) and his team are landing the huge ship “Prometheus” on the mysterious destination planet. The 52.25 x 28.75 x 23.75 in. chair is constructed of a resin and fiberglass frame, seamlessly painted gunmetal gray, which cradles a segmented, padded, upholstered green leather seat and matching headrest. An integral racing harness of silver web material with heavy metal clasps attaching it to the seat, forms a criss-cross harness with maroon enamel and metal buckle to snap across the chest of the occupant. A Weyland Corporation badge containing the company's distinct logo and tech info is affixed to the strap of the harness. The chair is decorated with unique designs, engravings and details, giving it an overall futuristic appearance. The chair is fitted with caster wheels attached beneath it for ease of movement in production. In overall, very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,500 - $3,500
886. Guy Pearce “Weyland” light-up leg rig prop from Prometheus (TCF, 2012)

A exo-skeletal walking assistance brace for the character of “Peter Weyland” (Guy Pearce) in Ridley Scott’s 2012 sci-fi thriller Prometheus. This futuristic brace is seen on the outside of “Weyland’s” spacesuit to help the old man move more easily during the expedition to the planet’s surface. Seen in the sequence when “David” (Michael Fassbender) revives the centuries-asleep “Engineer” who lashes out, killing “Weyland” and other members of the remaining crew. This brushed aluminum walking rig has a series of rubber leg straps and strong buckles to attach to the wearer. The 42 x 16 x 8 in. rig is made of three separate segments, which are linked by the large sliding plates on the back of the legs, each part is detachable. The sectional sliding points are jointed to allow movement. ‘Auto-Lock’ is printed on sections. The top section of this intricately crafted piece features a Weyland Corporation logo positioned in the wearer’s lower back. There are also four lights on the back which when activated light up in blue, giving a futuristic Effect to the piece. The uppermost section is designed for attachment to the back of a spacesuit four screw holes for mounting. In production-used, very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $2,000 – $3,000

887. Stone hieroglyphic prop of the “Star Map” from Prometheus (TCF, 2012)

In the modern Sci-Fi epic Prometheus, we learn the crux of the crew’s mission in a briefing where the origin of the “star map”, which is guiding the entire mission, is explained. A series of very similar hieroglyphics from all over the Earth are highlighted to show that the similar star maps were generated by the very same alien visitors. This 28.25 x 17 in. carved tablet prop features the characteristic ’star map’ in hieroglyphs purportedly from ancient Hawaii. It is seen on the right side end of the virtual 8-tablet display in the briefing scene. The prop tablet consists of cast resin painted in a realistic earth-stone effect, studio-distressed to give an aged, weathered appearance. It is mounted on a green screen FX rod erased later in post to give the tablet the appearance of floating in space. This tablet is in a good, production-used condition. $2,500 – $3,000

888. Prometheus pyramid chamber ampule, small size (TCF, 2012)

Small-size ampule from the 2012 sci-fi horror film, Prometheus. Found in the Ampule Chamber of the alien spacecraft, this ampule housed a terrifying and powerful biological weapon created by “The Engineers” to wipe out humanity. Measuring approx. 17.75 x 7.5 in., composed of rigid foam with a resin skin painted and distressed to appear as ancient metalized stone, and engraved with vertical alien hieroglyphs. Exhibits minor wear in the finish and is in overall very good condition. $800 – $1,000

889. Prometheus pyramid chamber ampule, medium size (TCF, 2012)

Medium-size ampule from the 2012 sci-fi horror film, Prometheus. Found in the Ampule Chamber of the alien spacecraft, this ampule housed a terrifying and powerful biological weapon created by “The Engineers” to wipe out humanity. It’s composed of rigid foam with a resin skin that is painted and distressed to look like metallic stone, and is engraved with vertical alien writing. 890. Prometheus Pyramid Chamber Ampule, Large Size.
(TCF, 2012) Large-size ampule from the 2012 sci-fi horror film, Prometheus. Found in the Ampule Chamber of the alien spacecraft, this ampule housed a terrifying and powerful biological weapon created by “The Engineers” to wipe out humanity. It’s composed of hard foam with a resin skin that is painted and distressed to look like metallic stone, and is engraved with vertical alien writing. Exhibits minor wear in the finish and is in overall very good condition. Measures approx. 30 x 11 in. $1,200 - $1,500

891. Pool Cue and (9) Billiard Balls from Prometheus. (TCF, 2012) (1) Pool cue and (9) Billiard balls from the epic Sci-Fi thriller Prometheus. This style of cue prop can be seen in the sequences with the pool table as when “Janek” (Idris Elba) is decorating the Christmas tree at the very beginning of the film and when “David” (Michael Fassbender) Infects “Holloway” (Logan Marshall-Green) with the strange dark substance from the pyramid chamber vials. The 58.25 inch cue is constructed of a lathed wood cue covered in slate gray laquer and silver metalized segments. Featuring a “SUPAGRIIP” wound thread wrap handle. The cue disassembles into 2 pieces by an integral screw in the middle. Included is a set of (9) 2 in. round metalized resin billiard balls with printed multi-colored symbols stenciled. The cue is in production-used very good condition. The balls show some signs of wear and mild fading. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $1,200 - $1,500

892. Complete Union Officer Uniform from Lincoln. (Dreamworks, 2012) This is a complete Union Officer’s uniform from the epic, historical drama Lincoln. The costume has all the attention to detail and accuracy that are hallmarks of any Steven Spielberg production. The costume consists of a dark beige, long sleeve, pullover shirt constructed of thick flannel with buttoned cuffs, no size marked. The long single-breasted frock coat consists of midnight blue wool with cotton lining and gold eagle button front closure and buttons on cuffs. Rectangular red and gold epaulettes affixed to each shoulder. Handwritten on the internal bias label is, ‘Capitan w-50’, no size stated. A matching waistcoat lined with red cotton labeled “W-50” and “938” written on bias labels with no size marked. The accompanying blue wool trousers have two front button-down pockets and back adjustable strap with buckle with “50” & “88” written on bias label. Another tag is pinned to the garment and written “839” with no size specified. Included with this fantastically detailed outfit is a faux leather, dark brown gun holster with metal eagle buckle and red lining, a pair of beige, studio-distressed gloves, black leather knee high boots, (with “34” written inside), and blue forage cap with gold stitched symbol on the front and blue piping detail, with ‘U.S. Inf. Lieut’ handwritten inside. This impressive outfit also comes with a bright red wool sash that ties around the waist. A superbly detailed costume, which will make an exciting addition to any civil war or film enthusiast’s collection. All in very good, production-used condition. $1,500 - $2,000

893. Judi Dench “Annie Hoover” Painting from J. Edgar. A beautiful portrait of the actress Judi Dench in her portrayal as “Annie Hoover” in the biopic J. Edgar. Accomplished in acrylic paint on 30 x 40 in. stretched canvas by illustrator Alex Tavolaris. In the film, the portrait is seen hanging in “J. Edgar Hoover’s” (Leonardo DiCaprio’s) living room when he’s an elderly man. Signed in the lower border by the artist. In production-used fine condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $800 - $1,200
894. Meryl Streep signature blue “Margaret Thatcher” costume from The Iron Lady. (Weinstein Co., 2011) This iconic blue suit was worn by Academy Award-winning actress Meryl Streep in her acclaimed role as Britain’s first female Prime Minister, Margaret Thatcher, in the 2011 biopic The Iron Lady. This part earned Streep yet another Oscar win and other highly regarded awards and nominations. Streep’s long-time makeup team who transformed her into the spitting image of Thatcher won an Oscar as well. The real life power-dressing Baroness and her film counterpart struck an imposing style with broad padded shoulders, handbag and coiffed blonde hair, often seen wearing her trademark skirt suits in varying shades of blue. This particular navy suit was worn in the film during her first arrival at Downing Street after the 1979 general election voted her the first female Prime Minister of Great Britain. The complete outfit consists of a pair of black leather ‘Peter Kaiser’ heels with black and silver flower (size UK 5.5), a custom white and blue floral-patterned shirt with collar neck tie, a navy blue fitted jacket made bespoke by ‘Jane Law’ and marked “Meryl Streep” inside with three buttons and faux pockets and a matching pleated full length skirt, also marked “Meryl Streep” with zippered opening at the back, satin-like underskirt and waistband. There are no sizes marked and the skirt appears to have some light unidentified stains on the front, but are barely noticeable. Otherwise, the ensemble remains in production-used, fine condition and represents the very epitome of the historical character. $8,000 - $10,000

895. Prop book from The Iron Lady featuring Meryl Streep as Margaret Thatcher on the cover. (Weinstein Co., 2011) A Life at Number 10 hardbound prop book with the image of Meryl Streep in character as “Margaret Thatcher” on the cover’s dust jacket. Academy Award-winning actress Meryl Streep plays Britain’s first female Prime Minister. This part earned Streep yet another Oscar. This prop book is seen as an elderly Thatcher works through signing copies of her autobiography in her office, which leads into a flashback of her early years. In very good condition. $300 - $500
896. Channing Tatum screen-worn “Jenko” complete bike police uniform from 21 Jump Street (Columbia, 2012) In the hilarious buddy comedy 21 Jump Street, Channing Tatum stars as “Jenko” one half of the bungling cop duo the story centers on. This is the police uniform worn by Jenko when he and his partner “Schmidt” (Jonah Hill) are assigned to park duty on bicycles. The costume includes bicycle polo shirt with official “MCDP” shoulder patches, “Jenko” name patch and police badge patch, matching shorts, under T-shirt, leather belt, police utility belt complete with walkie-talkie, prop gun in holster, pepper spray and other components. The ensemble is completed by a pair of Bates high-top tennis shoes and black socks. Ensemble has retained external wardrobe tag marked, “21 Jump Street Hold “Jenko””. 898. Suraj Sharma “Pi” signature screen-used lifeboat from The Life of Pi. (Fox 2000, 2012) This Academy Award-winning epic is transformational journey of “Pi” Patel, a Tamil boy from Podicherry, India, who explores issues of spirituality and practicality from an early age. He survives 227 days after a shipwreck while stranded aboard a lifeboat in the Pacific Ocean with a Bengal Tiger named Richard Parker. This is Pi’s lifeboat used in this landmark film. The design was based on archival drawings of steel lifeboats from the 1920s-1950s. Crafted of heavy fiberglass with internal wooden support struts, the boat measures 25 ft. in length and 102 inches wide. It comes with two wooden oars, each measuring 115 in. The port side of the bow features the hash marks where Pi numbered the sunsets with a knife. The lifeboat essentially became a character—certainly an important set piece—throughout much of the film. Exhibits studio-distressing to show aging from exposure to the sun and saltwater. Boat has some paint peeling in patches, but in overall good production-used condition. Comes with a COA from Ang Lee Productions. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $40,000 - $60,000
899. Suraj Sharma “Pi” hero costume from Life of Pi (TCE, 2012) In Ang Lee’s Academy Award-winning film of adventure and discovery, Life of Pi, Suraj Sharma plays “Pi Patel” a young boy stranded on a lifeboat with a Bengal tiger. Costume consists of (1) long sleeve gray linen henley pullover shirt with button collar and sleeves and concealed side slit pockets and (1) Pair of crème-colored linen pants with elastic waist and button closure. Handwritten in waistband is, “Sc 108/107/97/103”. In production-used good condition. Originally obtained from the studio. $6,000 - $8,000

901. Bradley Cooper “Pat” track suit from Silver Linings Playbook. (Weinstein Co., 2012) Bradley Cooper plays bipolar character “Pat Solitano Jr.” in the Academy Award-winning indie film Silver Linings Playbook. This costume is a signature ensemble which is seen in the film and publicity media. The costume consists of a grey, Russell brand size “double-extra large” sweatsuit with hooded, pullover top and matching elastic drawstring pants, size “large”, with an American Apparel t-shirt and homemade rain slicker appearing as a conventional household trash bag, but actually a garment made of plastic adhered to black fabric. The ensemble is completed with two blue arm bands. A highly visible and memorable costume from a break out film that captured the hearts of the movie going public. In production-used very good condition. $2,000 - $3,000
Frank Darabont  The following 12 lots each come from the collection of Academy Award-nominated director, screenwriter and producer, Frank Darabont. Among numerous other works, Frank has directed the films The Shawshank Redemption, The Green Mile and The Mist, all based on stories by Stephen King. In 2010 he developed, executive produced and directed the pilot episode of AMC's The Walking Dead. All items come with a signed LOA from Frank.

902. Production-used clapperboard and promo piece from The Shawshank Redemption. (Castle Rock, 1994) This is the clapper used throughout the filming of The Shawshank Redemption. The title “Rita Hayworth” on the clapper indicates the original working title of the movie, “Rita Hayworth and Shawshank Redemption,” which was the title of the Stephen King novella upon which the film is based. The names of director Frank Darabont and cinematographer Roger Deakins are inscribed on the slate per standard manufacturing custom. Remnants of cloth camera tape used by members of the camera team are still attached to the clapper, never having been removed after the last shot of the movie was completed. One tape array clearly displays the date of that final day of shooting, September 10, 1993. Another piece of tape on the verso still has “MOS” written on it, which stands for “Mit Out Sound (without sound), which is shorthand for when a shot is done without sound rolling; in such cases the clapper is turned around toward the lens so that the editor will know it is a silent take when watching dailies. This item also comes with a wooden “Shawshank State Prison” souvenir plaque, #7 of an edition of 12. The Ohio State Reformatory (OSR) in Mansfield, Ohio, where the movie was shot, made these plaques as gifts for the film’s director, producer, and cast. The OSR was the real defunct prison used in the movie to depict Stephen King's fictional Shawshank State Prison. Autographed in silver Sharpie on the back by the film’s writer/director, Frank Darabont. Clapperboard measures 11 x 9.25 in., and the promo piece measures 15 x 4.5 in. In very good condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $2,000 - $3,000

903. Screen-used hero rock hammer from The Shawshank Redemption. (Castle Rock, 1994) Rock hammer belonging to “Andy Dufresne” (Tim Robbins). One of three screen-used hero rock hammers used in the film, each of which was depicted in a different state of advancing wear. (The metal head of each hammer showed greater deterioration and diminishing size to accurately reflect the story’s 20-year span.) This rock hammer is the second stage of “wear” as used by Tim Robbins in the film. (There was a fourth “stunt” rock hammer with the head crafted from aluminum, which was given to author Stephen King as a personal gift from the film’s director, Frank Darabont.) In very good condition. Measures 7.75 in. long, with 4.25 in. steel head. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA $2,000 - $3,000
904. SCREEN-USED HERO CHESS PIECES FROM THE SHAWSHANK REDEMPTION. (Castle Rock, 1994)
A set of screen-used hero chess pieces carved out of alabaster and soapstone by the lead character in the movie, “Andy Dufresne”, played by Tim Robbins. These are not store-bought chess pieces, but were individually hand-carved for the film by a local stone artisan in Mansfield, Ohio. It is therefore a one-of-a-kind set. Pieces range in size from 1.5 to 4 in. tall. In very good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $3,000 – $5,000
905. Frank Darabont custom crew logo jacket for The Shawshank Redemption. (Castle Rock, 1994) (Castle Rock, 1994) A one-of-a-kind custom jacket that was the personal property of the film’s writer/director, Frank Darabont. This jacket (size large) is of the highest quality, with a wool shell and lambskin leather sleeves, created by the Sichel Embroidery Studio of North Hollywood, California. It was personally commissioned by Frank Darabont during production of his film, The Shawshank Redemption. The embroidery depicts the title of the movie on the back. Also embroidered on the front left breast is the name “Frank” in black thread, creating a subtle black-on-black effect. The jacket is in fine, like-new condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $800 - $1,200

906. Frank Darabont custom logo jacket for The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles. A custom jacket that was the personal property of Frank Darabont. This jacket (size XL) is of the highest quality, with a wool shell and calfskin leather sleeves, created by the Sichel Embroidery Studio of North Hollywood, California. It is one of seven jackets commissioned by producers George Lucas and Rick McCallum and given as gifts to the seven writers of The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles television series, one of whom was Darabont. The embroidery depicts the title of the show on the back. Also embroidered on the front left breast is the name “Frank” in black thread, creating a subtle black-on-black effect. Also embroidered in red on the jacket’s inner lining is the inscription: “To Frank Darabont. We’ll let the writer worry about it. Love, George and Rick.” This jacket is in fine, like-new condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $400 - $600

907. George Lucas signed promotional Bowie knife and scabbard from The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles. A commemorative Indiana Jones Khyber Bowie Knife. A rare 24-inch collectible knife manufactured in 1989, autographed by George Lucas on the leather sheath. The signature is rendered in black Sharpie and is somewhat faded, but still quite legible. In fine condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $200 - $300
908. Screen-used mouse trap and production used “King” stamp to mark additional traps from The Green Mile (Castle Rock, 1999)

A mousetrap crafted for the film, along with the multi-colored ink stamper used to apply the “King Mousetrap Company, Bangor, Maine” logo to the trap. This is the only surviving mousetrap made for the film, which was not screen-used because the scene was cut from the schedule before filming. (The excised scene had Doug Hutchison’s character “Percy Wetmore” setting out traps in an effort to defeat his mouse nemesis, “Mr. Jingles”.) The logo and ink stamper was director Frank Darabont’s obvious homage to his friend Stephen King, the author of the novel upon which the movie is based. The ink stamper is still in perfectly functioning order and freshly refilled with ink! Mousetrap measures 4.75 x 2.25 in. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $200 - $300

909. Michael Clarke Duncan “John Coffey” court transcript from The Green Mile (Castle Rock, 1999)

A screen-used hero prop handled extensively by Tom Hanks’ character, “Paul Edgecomb”. This extraordinary prop was meticulously crafted for the film by prop-maker Merdyce Maclaran for the scene in which Tom Hanks character sits on the bleachers outside “E” Block examining the trial transcripts of newly arrived prisoner “John Coffey” (Michael Clarke Duncan). The scene is interspersed with flashbacks of “Coffey’s” alleged abduction of the two little girls whose murders have sent “Coffey” to Death Row. What makes this prop amazing is the level of authenticity and detail in the writing of the transcript pages, which had to hold up to full onscreen scrutiny in even the tightest close-ups as Tom Hanks flipped through the pages, regardless of which page randomly landed on camera. Representing weeks of painstaking work and some truly creative writing by Ms. Maclaran, director Frank Darabont feels this prop is the most meticulous ever made for any of his films. In very good condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $2,000 - $3,000
910. Production-used clapperboard from *The Majestic. (Castle Rock, 2001) This is the clapper used throughout the filming of The Majestic. Crafted of acrylic with wooden clapstick mounted on top, “The Majestic” is inscribed at the center, and below are the names of director Frank Darabont and cinematographer David Tattersall per standard manufacturing custom. Above the film title are blank areas indicating “Scene” and “Take” where members of the camera team would mark accordingly using erasable pen. Clapperboard measures 11 x 9.5 in. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $400 - $600

911. Frank Darabont’s (2) custom logo jackets for The Majestic and “Raines” and (1) custom sweatshirt from “Tales from the Crypt”. Two custom jackets that were the personal property of director, Frank Darabont. Jackets (all being size “large”) are of the highest quality, with a wool shell and lambskin leather sleeves, created by the Sichel Embroidery Studio of North Hollywood, California. They were personally commissioned by Darabont during production of his films, The Majestic (Castle Rock, 2001) starring Jim Carrey and during filming of the television series “Raines”, created by Graham Yost, starring Jeff Goldblum, the pilot of which Darabont directed. The elaborate embroidery depicts The Majestic title interpreted as a postcard on the back. On the front left breast, the title is likewise embroidered. The jacket is in exceptional like-new condition (1) “Raines” custom jacket, one of three made, that is the personal property of Frank Darabont. This jacket is of the highest quality, with a wool shell and lambskin leather sleeves, created by the Sichel Embroidery Studio of North Hollywood, California. It was personally commissioned by Darabont during filming of the television series “Raines” created by Graham Yost and starring Jeff Goldblum, the pilot of which Darabont directed. The embroidery depicts the show’s title on the back. Also embroidered on the front left breast is the name “Frank” in black thread, creating a subtle black-on-black effect. The jacket is in exceptional like-new condition, and (1) Tales from The Crypt high quality sweatshirt with embroidery on both sides, this was given as a production gift to Frank Darabont, who wrote two episodes of the show; “The Ventriloquist’s Dummy” and “Showdown,” both directed by Richard Donner. In perfect, as-new condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $400 - $600
912. Frank Darabont’s signed The Walking Dead Season 1 premiere press kit along with Sheriff hat and cap. (AMC, 2010-) First season premiere press kit, autographed twice by the show’s creator Frank Darabont (once on the box, and again inside). This elaborate press kit was made for press and critics to promote the premiere of the TV series, The Walking Dead. It’s one of the best press kits we’ve seen, containing: A) a hardcover book introducing key cast and crew; B) a DVD of the first two episodes of the first season (the pilot “Days Gone Bye” and the second episode “Tell It To The Frogs”); C) a second disc containing a variety of production stills intended for use by the press in print and broadcast applications; D) a small hand-carved graphite replica of the Colt Python handgun used in the series by Andrew Lincoln as Sheriff “Rick Grimes”; E) various information and promo sheets done on high-quality paper, including one depicting the poster art created for the series by renowned movie poster artist Drew Struzan (1) Sheriff “Rick Grimes” Stetson hat. Hero wardrobe item for star Andrew Lincoln in the first season. The custom hat-badge reads “King County Sheriff’s Department” as an homage by the show’s creator Frank Darabont to his friend Stephen King. Not screen-used and in perfect condition still in its box. (1) Deputy “Shane Walsh” ball cap. Hero wardrobe item for co-star Jon Bernthal in the first season. Not screen-used never worn and in perfect condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $300 - $500

913. 1 of 3 custom-printed “Zombie Hula” The Walking Dead island shirt. (AMC, 2010-) One of only three shirts ever made, this man’s shirt (70% silk and 30% cotton, size Large) was never for sale to the public, but was custom-made as a gift for the show’s creator Frank Darabont (known for his love of tropical shirts) by a friend of Frank’s. This off-white shirt bears humorous and macabre silk-screened art on both sides of a zombie hula girl in an advancing state of undead rot, with her entrails spilling out and blood pooling beneath her feet. This art was created specifically for this shirt and appeared nowhere else. The title The Walking Dead appears as an added bit of embroidery above the hula girl on the breast pocket. The shirt is in perfect, never-worn condition. From the collection of director Frank Darabont and comes with a signed LOA. $200 - $300
Tim Burton  Lots 914-937 are from the vivid imagination of writer, director, producer and illustrator, Tim Burton. Burton’s groundbreaking work has been celebrated in exhibitions around the globe, including MoMA in New York, the Australian Centre for the Moving Image, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Cinémathèque Française and the Seoul Museum of Art.

914. Panoramic layout design for “Halloween town graveyard”. (Buena Vista, 1993) Spooky Halloween Town graveyard accomplished in pen, ink and artist felt pen on 49 x 10.5 in. paper. Depicting a panoramic perspective of a graveyard with all the quirky shadows and severe lines synonymous with Tim Burton’s personal style and The Nightmare Before Christmas design. Initialed by artist, “KA 91” in upper border. With registration holes punched at the bottom border of the sheet and pinholes in corners from display during production. In very good condition. $800 - $1,200

915. Graveyard gate concept sketch from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) Every detail in Tim Burton’s masterpiece The Nightmare Before Christmas, has the striking style and angle of the quirky artist. This is a black-and-white production concept sketch accomplished in pen, ink and artist felt pen on 17 x 12.5 in. artist paper. Depicting a atmospheric graveyard gate with filigreed arch. Through the gate, the iconic “Halloween Town” spiral mountain is seen in silhouette against a full moon. Initialed by artist, “KA 91”. With registration holes punched at the bottom border of the sheet and pinholes in corners from display during production. In very good condition. $600 - $800

Some pinholes from production display and minor soiling. In good condition. $400 - $600
918. Town Hall set from “Jack Skellington’s” Christmas Town presentation in The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) This is the full-scale, gothic set used in the sequence in Halloween Town when “Jack Skellington” makes his Christmas Town presentation to the ghoulish citizenry. Measuring approx. 90 in. tall x 72 in. wide x 96 in. deep, the set piece is constructed primarily of wood, detailed with resin snake motif light fixtures, demonic mask wall sconces, seashell-shaped stage floor lights, scary cloth banner and rug, all hand-painted to detail. The Christmas Town mural behind the stage is hand-painted on canvas. No detail was spared, including the brick-textured façade on the back stage walls, textured wooden floor planks, etc. Miniature light fixtures are wired for illumination, though untested. The veneer on some of the walls is becoming delaminated on the edges, but in overall good condition. A fantastic signature piece embodying the spirit of this modern classic film. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $30,000 - $50,000
919. Stand-in vampire puppet from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) A production-made “stand-in” for the short, rotund member of the vampire quartet citizens of Halloween Town from the stop-motion cult-classic The Nightmare Before Christmas. Constructed of foam over a wire armature, and covered in black felt. Features highly detailed hand-painted face. Measures approx. 9 in. tall, with a diameter of 8.5 in.; in very good overall condition, with minor wear on the foam and finish. $6,000 - $8,000
This set piece exhibits the distinctive “Burtonesque” shapes and outlines of Halloween Town’s skyline. Crafted of hand-painted plywood measuring 96 in. wide x 42 in. tall, showing the shadowy town in the distance. Designed with over ten cut-outs in the wood, the set piece illuminates when plugged into a standard 110v electrical socket. In good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $6,000 – $8,000
921. The Nightmare Before Christmas illuminating “witch house” set piece. (Buena Vista, 1993) This is the highly visible “Witch House” from The Nightmare Before Christmas. Standing a full 57 in. tall by 20 in. wide, this large and impressive piece is seen throughout the film in the “Halloween Town” sequences. Composed of carved foam, wire, stucco and colored gels, the set piece is designed to appear as a creepy face with windows shaped like eyes and a mouth that illuminates green, when internal lights are activated. Electronics, wires and dimmer-switch present in the back of the structure. In production-used good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $6,000 - $8,000

922. Early concept for “Lock”, “Shock”, and “Barrel” tree house from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) The terrible-trio “Lock”, “Shock” and “Barrel” are favorites in The Nightmare Before Christmas. This is an early original concept sketch of their proposed tree house. Accomplished on a base 11 x 17 in. photocopy of a tree and house and embellished with details and other elements in pen, ink and artist felt pens. Initialed by artist “KA ‘91”. With pinholes in corners from production display and some soiling. In good condition. $800 - $1,000

923. Early “Lock”, “Shock”, and “Barrel” tree house interior sketch from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) The terrible-trio “Lock”, “Shock” and “Barrel” are favorites in The Nightmare Before Christmas. This is an early original concept sketch of the proposed interior of their tree house. Accomplished on a base 11 x 17 in. photocopy of a creepy armory with a coffin-shaped door and embellished with details and other elements in pen, ink and artist felt pens. Signed “K. Asbury ’91” in lower corner. With pinholes in corners from production display. In very good condition. $600 - $800
924. Set of (9) Original The Nightmare Before Christmas Storyboard Sketches. A collection of (9) Storyboards of “Sally” and “Dr. Finkelstein” from The Nightmare Before Christmas. Accomplished in pen and ink on 10 x 5 in. artist paper. A series of hand-drawn panels illustrating the scene when “Sally” tries to poison “Dr. Finkelstein” with “Nightshade” potion. With pinholes in corners from production display. In very good condition. $1,000 - $1,500

925. Detailed Sketch of “Sally’s” Kitchen The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) An original concept sketch for “Sally’s” sinister kitchen from The Nightmare Before Christmas. Accomplished on a base 11 x 17 in. photocopy of the kitchen and embellished with details and other elements in pen, ink and artist felt pens. An 16.5 x 13.5 in. acetate overlay features a “Sally” paper cutout figure and other detail elements in artist felt pen. Initialed by artist “KA’92”. Tipped to a 17 x 13.25 in. backing paper. With pinholes in corners from production display. In good condition. $600 - $800

926. “Jack Skellington” Replacement Head and Hands from The Nightmare Before Christmas. “Jack Skellington” is the Mayor of ‘Halloween Town’ and the beloved hero of The Nightmare Before Christmas. This is a set of fully finished “Jack” replacement hands and head. Composed of cast resin and cut foam components, the head and hands were used in the filming of the stop-motion masterpiece to give ‘Jack’ different expressions and postures. Signature black bat bow tie was created, by the original artist, for display. Production-painted to perfection and displayed on a custom stand. In fine condition. $4,000 - $6,000
No image is more symbolic of The Nightmare Before Christmas than “Jack Skellington” atop Spiral Hill with the large moon looming in the background. This image was used in the film poster and countless other promotional materials. This is the half-scale Spiral Hill set piece used in the film. Spiral Hill stands in the Graveyard of Halloween Town and leads into the Hinterlands. When individuals approach seeking access to the Hinterlands, the inward curl on the crest of the hill unfolds to serve as a bridge to that area, bypassing the need to walk through the pumpkin field. Crafted of wood, carved styrofoam and polyfoam with a textured plaster finish, painted to detail, this massive set piece measures 133 x 50 x 15 in. Design features wooden fencing atop the resin rock walls, wooden crosses, resin gravestones and pumpkins in various scales to create a forced perspective. A paper tag affixed to the frame on the backside is printed “Cem+7” and “½ Scale”. Since the production, the fragile animated spiral portion of the hill had deteriorated completely. A master craftsman in the film industry has sympathetically re-created a fixed spiral making this a stunning display piece. Minor chipping along the bottom of the hill, but in very good overall condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $12,000 - $15,000
929. Jack-o-Lantern Pumpkin Puppet from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) This is a foam latex pumpkin puppet miniature. The figure is 3 in. tall and 3 in. in diameter and was used in the opening sequence of The Nightmare Before Christmas. The figure is a hollow foam shell, painted green and orange. It can be seen singing in the “This Is Halloween” song that introduces the world of Halloween Town in the film. In good condition. $1,500 - $2,000

930. Black Jack-O-Lantern gift on table from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) An original hand-drawn concept sketch of Halloween-ified Christmas elements from The Nightmare Before Christmas. Accomplished in pen, ink and artist felt pen on 16.5 x 17 in. artist paper. Depicting a table set with Christmas wrapping and decorative items given the nightmare treatment. Written, “Making Christmas” in lower right corner and signed “K. Asbury 1993” above that note. With pinholes in corners from production display and some soiling. In good condition. $400 - $600

931. The Nightmare Before Christmas screen-used illuminating missile launch scope site and miniature cannon model. (Buena Vista, 1993) In The Nightmare Before Christmas, our hero “Jack Skellington” is literally blasted out of the sky while delivering presents for the kidnapped “Santa Claus”. This is the scope or viewfinder of the big bad cannon that does the blasting. Constructed of foam core, wood, glass, resin and electronic components. Consisting of a 24.25 x 16 x 7 in. weapon scope site with riveted viewershield, glass screen with printed crosshairs, wheel counters and illuminating “Armed” and “Fire” panels. Electronics and wires present but untested. Accompanied by a screen used 9 x 6 in. resin miniature model of the full cannon, painted gold. Scope site in good condition. Cannon model in fine condition. $2,000 - $3,000
932. Oogie Boogie snake puppet from *The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) Small stop-motion snake puppet, seen slithering through “Oogie Boogie’s” red skull-decorated die in the cult classic The Nightmare Before Christmas. In the closing of his introduction song, “Oogie Boogie” throws down a pair of red dice, and, during a close-up shot, this small black-and-white snake slithers out the top and back through the holes in one of the die. Constructed of soft foam coated with a painted vinyl layer covering a wire armature, and features orange eyes and yellow teeth. Measures approx. 11 in. long, and is in very good condition, exhibiting minor cracking in the finish. $6,000 - $8,000
933. (4) Jack Skellington as "Santa" falling from sky from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) In The Nightmare Before Christmas, our hero "Jack Skellington" is literally blasted out of the sky while delivering presents for the kidnapped "Santa Claus". These are (4) concept sketches for that sequence, all tipped to 38 x 24 in. backing paper. Including (3) 9.5 x 9 x 7 in. photocopied storyboard panels embellished with ink and artist felt pen and (1) vertical 22.5 x 8.5 in. panoramic background panel of a moonlit cityscape with an acetate overlay with 3-progressive paintings of "Jack" falling from the sky, accomplished in pen, ink, artist felt pen and acrylic. With pinholes in corners for production display and minor soiling. In good condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $1,000 - $1,500

934. "Sally’s" sewing tent from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) An original concept sketch for "Sally’s" sewing tent from The Nightmare Before Christmas. Accomplished in pen, ink, artist felt pens and gouache on 12 x 13.25 in. artist paper. Featuring a tent awning over a stylized sewing machine and dressmaking mannequin. The text, “Funeral Parlor” has been crossed out on the side of the awning and an arrow and direction “No Words” written in the margin. Artist has signed “K Asbury ’93” in lower right corner. With pinholes in corners from production display and some soiling. In good condition. $400 - $600

935. Original concept painting of “Oogie Boogie” from The Nightmare Before Christmas. (Buena Vista, 1993) An atmospheric and colorful concept painting of the delightfully repulsive “Oogie Boogie” from The Nightmare Before Christmas. Accomplished on 14 x 18.5 in. artist board with added details painted on 13.5 x 11 in. acetate overlay. Removable black mat tacked to the art to frame out paint tests in border. Depicting “Oogie Boogie” swinging from the claw of his crane. Signed by artist “B. Boes 93’” in lower right corner. In fine condition. $600 - $800
936. Captain "Jack Skellington's" pirate ship from James and the Giant Peach. (Disney, 1996) "Jack Skellington", of The Nightmare Before Christmas fame, makes a cameo appearance as the Captain in the pirate scene. Upon seeing him, the "Centipede" says, "A skellington?" The scene takes place underwater deep in the arctic where the Captain's ship is wrecked on the ocean floor. Measuring 60 x 20 x 41 in., the ship's substructure is created of carved polyfoam with model maker's wooden slats for the hull with other wooden and resin components and rigging of string. Since the ship was shot from only the port side, the starboard side was unfinished. An attractive piece with a fine association between these two animated classics. Deck is in good condition, yet the hull exhibits some damage on the bottom. Overall, in fair condition. Special shipping arrangements are required. $15,000 - $20,000
937. Stop-motion ball-and-socket “Glow worm” puppet from *James and the Giant Peach. (Disney, 1996) Ball-and-socket “Glow Worm” stop-motion puppet from the surrealist children’s classic James and the Giant Peach, based on the classic book by Roald Dahl. “Glow Worm” (voiced by Miriam Margolyes) is a main character in the cast of singing, dancing and adventurous anthropomorphic critters who travel aboard an enormous peach. The highly detailed puppet is constructed of a ball-and-socket armature beneath a foam body that has been painted green. Being an insect of high society, her head is adorned with large faux rubies and diamonds, and she’s dressed in a floral-patterned gown, complete with a large star-shaped brooch. Her right hand holds the post for her opera-style eyeglasses. The glow bulb is wired for light, but the electronics are untested. The puppet measures approx. 13 in. long; and is in fine overall condition, with minor tears in the foam, and one eyeglass lens missing. $12,000 - $15,000
The following 51 lots are from the Warner Bros. Corporate Archive Collection, and each are accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity.

955. Mark Kubr “Hunter Morlock” Costume created for The Time Machine. (Warner Bros., 2002) In the 2002 adaptation of H.G. Wells’ landmark in Sci-Fi literature, the “Morlocks” are an underground, cannibalistic race of ape-like, humanoid creatures that feed on the human “Eloi” dwelling on the surface of the planet. This complete “Morlock” costume consists of primitive tech, sculpted hard rubber, tooled leather and metal ornamental components including armor breastplate with integral belt, quilted fabric underskirt, armor skirt, skirted cummerbund, bicep bands, lower arm bands, wrist gauntlets, shin guards and head band. All pieces have been expertly studio painted and distressed and all pieces are marked with “Mark Kubr”. The costume is in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio since the end of production. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $1,000 - $2,000
956. Penguin with rocket created for Batman Returns. (Warner Bros., 1992) Penguin figure made for the second installment in the Batman saga, 1992’s Batman Returns. In the film, “The Penguin” (Danny DeVito) summons an army of armored penguins to wreak havoc upon “Batman” (Michael Keaton) and the “City of Gotham”. This figure is constructed of rubber and foam with a black latex coating, and painted white along the head and body. It’s adorned with rubber harnesses that hold the miniature red-and-white resin rocket to its back. It is in overall good condition, exhibiting signs of paint loss and previous restoration. Measures approx. 18 x 17 x 10 in., including attached wooden display stand. It comes directly from Warner Bros. Studios, and comes with a COA from Warner Bros. $3,000 - $5,000

957. Metal “sonic” Batarang created for Batman Forever. (Warner Bros., 1995) This is a specialized “Batarang” made for 1995’s Batman Forever, designed to work in conjunction with “Batman’s” upgraded sonic suit that he uses to take down “The Riddler” and “Two Face.” This “Batarang” is made from two identical “wing” sections of machined aluminum that are joined together on a spring-loaded hinge to allow the piece to fold up to half its size and then spring open. It measures approx. 12 in. at its widest point. It’s in overall fine condition, with a small square of velcro on the verso, possibly for display purposes. It comes directly from Warner Bros. Studios, and comes with a COA from Warner Bros. $4,000 - $6,000
This complete hero “Batman” costume ensemble features a midnight blue latex Bat cowl with angular pointed ears, a midnight blue torso with sculpted muscles on the arms, stomach & back (marked within “BM-3-0-GC”) and an attached codpiece, a matching oval breast plate with a raised Bat symbol and metal mounting bracket, a black spandex leotard attached to sculpted, muscular legs marked “GC”, a full length cape marked “GC 15” attached by two Batwing-shaped cape fasteners, a midnight blue rubber belt with a scalloped buckle featuring a Batman emblem, midnight blue leather gauntlet-style finned gloves marked “GC”, and matching midnight blue leather knee-length boots marked “George Clooney”, each with an attached rubber Bat symbol. This important and iconic hero costume is in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio since the end of production in 1997. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $30,000 - $50,000
959. “Batgirl” costume created for Batman and Robin.
(Warner Bros., 1997) This complete “Batgirl” costume ensemble features a midnight blue latex bat cowl with angular pointed ears, a midnight blue torso with sculpted back, upper arms and breastplate featuring integral bat symbol marked “CP”, a knee-length cape marked “G#8” for attachment by a tie around the neck, a midnight blue sculpted rubber belt with a scalloped buckle featuring a “Bat” emblem, midnight blue leather lace-up corset marked “Christine Rodrigues / Alicia Silverstone / Rehearsal corset”, leather gauntlet-style finned gloves marked “Jennifer Caputo #1”, and matching midnight blue leather and PVC coated, knee-length boots marked “CR 1” and “CR 2”, each with bat symbol stitch-embossed at the knee. Caputo and Rodrigues served as stunt doubles on the film. This important costume is in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio since the end of production in 1997. The boots exhibit mild PVC peeling. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $15,000 - $20,000
960. “Bat-Taser” created for Batman and Robin. (Warner Bros., 1997) This “Bat-Taser” is one of the many unique tools “Batman” uses in his fight against “Mr. Freeze” in Batman & Robin. Shaped like the “Bat plane,” the Taser is constructed from hard rubber with a chrome finish. It measures approx. 10.5 x 8.5 in., and is in fair condition, with the metallic finish flaking and cracking, but structurally intact. It comes directly from Warner Bros. Studios, and comes with a COA from Warner Bros. $1,000 - $1,500

961. Metal “Bat-monitor” created for Batman & Robin. (Warner Bros., 1997) This small medallion with a “Batman” symbol at its center served as “Batman’s” mobile video screen in 1997’s Batman & Robin. In the film’s finale, with “Mr. Freeze” lying defeated on the floor, “Batman” shows him recorded video of “Poison Ivy’s” betrayal, proving to his cold-hearted nemesis that “Ivy” was using him for her own personal gain. The body is made from three separate pieces of machined aluminum that were joined together, with the background of the center section painted blue. The sides are black resin-covered with holes to resemble a speaker grille. The piece measures approx. 4.25 x 1.75 in., and is in overall fine condition, having been carefully archived by the studio since the end of production. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $3,000 - $5,000

962. Extended grapple tool created for Batman and Robin. (Warner Bros., 1997) This is one of “Batman’s” legendary tools in his utility belt, a grapple device to throw up to a ledge and pull himself up and away from harm, made for 1997’s Batman & Robin. Tool is composed of chrome metalized hard plastic with a reflective finish and is in overall very good condition. It measures approx. 21.5 in. from end to end and comes directly from Warner Bros. Studio. Item comes with a COA from Warner Bros. $3,000 - $5,000
963. "Mr. Freeze" Arnold Schwarzenegger rifle created for Batman & Robin. (Warner Bros., 1997) The eternally "cool" and pun-sewing "Mr. Freeze" terrorized the citizens of Gotham in 1997's Batman & Robin with this "ice"-looking freeze rifle in his quest to turn the city into a giant winter palace — quite a "cold" thing to do. The massive rifle is constructed of metal and resin, with a chrome finish, except the inner portion of the barrel, which is purple-tinted plexiglass designed to illuminate. Rifle features a faux-diamond jewel insert — a source of power for the weapon, and is wired for lighting effects, which are controlled by a switch on the underside of the body, and it's wired for remote input (untested). It measures approx. 38 x 15 x 7 in., and is in overall fine condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. It comes directly from Warner Bros. Studios, and comes with a COA from Warner Bros. $8,000 - $10,000
964. Halle Berry “Catwoman” costume created for Catwoman. (Warner Bros., 2004) This complete hero “Catwoman” costume ensemble features a two-piece black leather and latex Cat cowl with angular pointed ears, a black leather, zippered bustier with chain and belt ornamentation, a pair of black PVC coated mesh pants with cut-out mesh tiger stripe motif marked “Hero CW #2 silicone,” black leather belt marked “Halle,” a pair of leather gloves with integral rhinestone cat claw fingertips, a pair of black leather arm gaiters, and black leather stiletto shoes marked “Halle.” The ensemble is accompanied by “Catwoman’s” signature black leather whip with extended rope tassel. This hero costume is in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio since the end of production in 2004. One rhinestone fingernail is missing. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $15,000 – $20,000
966. Martian rifle created for Mars Attacks! (Warner Bros., 1996) The snarky martian invaders of the camp cult classic Mars Attacks! came to Earth heavily armed and looking to wipe out the human race. They enacted their plan largely with weapons such as this colorful laser rifle. It's composed of hard rubber and resin, and painted red, blue and silver, and is modeled to look retro, like the sci-fi weapons of the 1950s-1960s, with pieces that resemble bits re-purposed and cobbled together from a hardware store. It measures approx. 27 x 4 x 9 in., and is in good production-used condition, with wear visible in the paint. Special shipping arrangements will apply. Item comes directly from Warner Bros. Studios, and comes with a COA from Warner Bros.
$3,000 - $5,000
967. KEANU REEVES “NEO” MARTIAL ARTS UNIFORM CREATED FOR THE MATRIX. (Warner Bros., 1999) In the game-changing Sci-Fi action film The Matrix, Keanu Reeves plays “Neo”, a computer pirate enlisted by underground subversives and introduced to knowledge that changes him and the world as he knows it - forever. “Neo” is programmed with knowledge, including expertise in a wealth of martial arts. This is the costume created for “Neo’s” first practical test, battling “Morpheus” (Lawrence Fishburn) in a virtual fight. This two-piece uniform is based on the traditional Karate “Gi”, consisting of a loosely tailored beige silk robe with black lining, single tie at midriff and sash around the waist. The robe is lined in black, giving the garment the appearance of thin tuxedo lapels at the collar and front closure. Matching long pants feature a gathered, drawstring-tied waist and black-lined hems at the cuffs. Internal bias tags in robe and pants are handwritten “Neo”. The sheer and flowing costume was expertly designed to portray maximum movement in the exciting and unforgettable movie fight scene. This costume is in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $12,000 - $15,000
968. Carrie-Anne Moss “Trinity” costume created for The Matrix Revolutions. (Warner Bros., 2003) By the 3rd entry in the blockbuster Matrix franchise, The Matrix Revolutions, the sleek, sharp and sexy fashion of the universe of these films had permeated pop-culture. This (2) piece “Trinity” costume consists of (1) PVC coated, stretch spandex, ski-bib style jumper with front zipper closure to be worn under (1) floor-length skirted, PVC-coated spandex paneled, fitted trench coat with front zipper closure. All garments are made to have the Matrix signature patent-leather, snug-fit appearance. Both garments retain bias labels, pants with “Carrie Anne Beauty #2” and coat with “Trin Fit 2” handwritten. Due to the fragile nature of PVC coatings on stretch fabric, surviving articles of Matrix costumes are hard to find in good condition. These garments are in very fine condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $12,000 - $15,000
969. “Tank’s” Nebuchadnezzar chair parts created for The Matrix. (Warner Bros., 1999) The Nebuchadnezzar, nicknamed the “Neb,” is the main hovercraft used by “Neo”, “Morpheus” and “Trinity” in The Matrix. The character “Tank” was the operator of the craft and these parts were created for his chair. Lot includes (1) 18 x 18 in. padded rubber seat cushion back, (1) 19 x 18 in. padded rubber seat cushion bottom (2) 10 x 12 in. padded rubber headrests with steel bracket for attachment (1) extra neck strap (2) 14 x 6 in. padded rubber upper-arm rests (both right sides) (2) 9 x 6 in. padded rubber elbow rests (2) 15 x 18 in. beaded back rests and (5) scraps of blue sheepskin covers measuring between 8 x 5 in. and 29 x 23 in. In studio-distressed condition to match the gritty interior of the ship. Lot is accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $3,000 - $5,000
970. NEBUCHADNEZZAR “PLUG-IN” CHAIR CREATED FOR THE MATRIX. (Warner Bros., 1999) In the groundbreaking film The Matrix, the heroes would sit in a specially-designed chair, and the operator would insert a jack data connector into their “headjack” at the back of their head. Their consciousness would then be relayed into the Matrix artificial world. This elaborate, no-expense-spared plug-in chair was created for use on the main deck of the Nebuchadnezzar hovercraft. The padded chair and integral support structure measures approx. 291 in. long x 94 in. tall x 29 in. wide. Chair is constructed of steel tubing, cast and machined metal (stainless steel, steel and aluminum) with fiberglass components and detail wiring. This key set piece is in good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio since the end of production. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $10,000 - $15,000
971. Agent Smith life size puppet figure created for The Matrix Reloaded. (Warner Bros., 2003)

Life-size, fully costumed, free-standing figure of “Agent Smith”, super-villain from The Matrix Reloaded. This hyper-realistic figure stands a full 6 ft. 3 in. tall. Dressed in black suit with matching jacket and pants, white dress shirt, black necktie with metal tie clip, black polishable loafers and signature dark sunglasses. Created for the scene during the “Agent Smith” vs. “Neo” fight in the rain when replicated “Agent Smith’s” line both sides of the street, watching the event. Actors in “Smith” makeup would stand between two life-size puppets, operating the heads of each flanking puppet, providing the illusion that the whole street was lined with living “Agent Smiths”. The head and hands of the figure are cast in silicone with highly detailed and life-like hand-painting, painted blue eyes (concealed by glasses) and embedded hair and eyebrows. The body form of the figure is a hollow mannequin with open back, accessed through an 18 in. slit in the suit jacket. An 11 in. aluminum post extends from the figure’s head, through the neck of the body, into the cavity of the mannequin, by which the head can be puppeted to turn from side to side and to nod. The figure is in good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $10,000 - $15,000
972. Brad Pitt complete “Achilles” costume created for Troy. (Warner Bros., 2004) Brad Pitt plays “Achilles” in Troy, the epic movie about the mythical Trojan War. This is a complete set of “Achilles” armor built for the film. Including leather and metal muscle cuirass with metalized, vacuum-formed breastplates, back plates and actual copper panel ornamentation. Stamped-leather midriff and belted, integral pteryges apron with brass ornaments and leather ties on the sides. Leather undergarment with lace up front. Pleated leather lace up skirt. Leather and metal lace up arm gauntlets and leg greaves. Custom made soft leather high top boots, marked “44A” inside both boots, with laces. Includes matching vacuum-formed helmet with horse hair bristle. Lower left chin guard is broken but present. All pieces are studio distressed. Leather has been rubbed and metal elements have been antiqued to show age and use. This costume is in good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Special shipping arrangements will apply. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $20,000 - $30,000
973. Orlando Bloom “Paris” costume created for Troy. (Warner Bros., 2004) In the modern epic Troy, Orlando Bloom plays “Paris,” the handsome prince who steals the beautiful “Helen” from her home — the catalyst for the Trojan war that follows. The costume consists of traditionally-based Greek garments including a sleeveless blue chiton tunic with white bleached spots and matching blue waist wrap. This hero costume remains in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $8,000 - $12,000
975. Skeleton puppet created for Corpse Bride. (Warner Bros., 2005) This skeleton stop-motion puppet is a beautiful example of the artistic mastery exemplified in Tim Burton’s Corpse Bride. The figure is constructed of a textured and hand-painted resin skeleton body over an articulating ball-and-socket armature and stands approx. 16 in. tall. The two distal toes on the left foot are missing, but the figure is in overall very good condition, with all joints still fully opposable. Comes mounted to a custom display stand. Special shipping arrangements will apply. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $8,000 - $12,000

974. Zombie puppet created for Corpse Bride. (Warner Bros., 2005) As one of the background characters in Corpse Bride, Tim Burton’s stop-motion masterpiece and follow-up to his cult classic The Nightmare Before Christmas, this zombie stop-motion puppet is highly detailed and meticulously crafted. The figure is constructed of textured and hand-painted resin over an articulating ball-and-socket armature, and is dressed in a tattered green suit, complete with a handkerchief in the breast pocket, standing approx. 17.5 in. tall and mounted on a custom display stand. In fine condition. Special shipping arrangements will apply. From Warner Bros. Studios archives, accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $6,000 - $8,000
976. Freddie Highmore complete “Charlie” costume created for Charlie and the Chocolate Factory. (Warner Bros., 2005) A complete hero “Charlie” costume created for Charlie and the Chocolate Factory consisting of a colorful patterned wool sweater, beige and striped button-down shirt, plaid jacket with red faux-suede collar and sleeves, tan corduroy pants, black leather Rhino brand sneakers, gray socks, and brown and plaid neck scarf. All pieces have been theatrically distressed with surface fraying and threading to give the appearance of an impoverished “Charlie Bucket”. An incredible example of the high degree of attention to detail and character design found in all of Tim Burton’s movies. Bias label in pants is handwritten with “Charlie”. This hero costume remains in very good condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $2,000 – $3,000

977. Complete “Oompa Loompa” costume created for Charlie and the Chocolate Factory. (Warner Bros., 2005) In Tim Burton’s re-imagining of Roald Dahl’s beloved Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, an army of mysterious little “Oompa Loompas” run the candy works. This complete “Oompa Loompa” costume consists of blue PVC-coated spandex jumper with ornamental piping on waist, shoulders, sleeves and pant cuffs. Front zipper closure and vinyl “Wonka” icon sticker affixed to chest. A white, one-piece, stretch undersuit with black stripe-ringed collar, sleeves and cuffs. Matching blue slip-on loafers with black socks. This style and color of costume is highly visible in the scene where a team of “Oompa Loompas” row “Wonka’s” bright fuchsia boat down a chocolate river. A whimsical example of the high degree of attention to detail and character design found in all of Tim Burton’s work. This hero costume remains in fine condition, having been carefully archived by the studio. Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. $3,000 – $5,000
978. “Wonka” motorized bicycle created for Charlie and the Chocolate Factory. (Warner Bros., 2005) This quaint red “Wonka” vehicle is based on a modified Velosolex motorized bicycle featuring a small 2-stroke gasoline engine mounted on top of the front fender. Features custom metal skirt-type fenders with the distinctive “Wonka” ‘W’ painted on the rear. A compartment on top of the rear fender exposes a vacuum-formed simulated paint can with faux paint and paintbrush stuck inside. Measures 63 in. long x 43 in. tall. Created for use when “Wonka’s” employees posted advertisements around town for the “Golden Ticket” contest which awarded the winners a tour of the mysterious chocolate factory. In good cosmetic condition (mechanicals untested). Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. Special shipping arrangements will apply. $4,000 - $6,000

988. ORIGINAL “MYSTERY MACHINE” VAN CREATED FOR SCOOBY DOO 2: MONSTERS UNLEASHED. (Warner Bros., 2004) “Mystery, Inc.” must save “Coolsville” from an attack of past unmasked monsters brought to life by an evil masked figure. This “Mystery Machine” van, replete with psychedelic colors and flower-power imagery, was created for the second live-action film inspired by the popular animated television series. What started life as a 1989 Chevrolet G-Series cargo van, equipped with 4.3 liter V6 engine with automatic transmission, was heavily customized by the studio and reborn as the unmistakable “Mystery Machine.” In addition to the trademark paint scheme, custom features include: flared fenders, custom grille, chromed alloy wheels, rear bumper removed and smoothed, custom upholstered bench seating of blue and grey trim, and blue carpeting. The rear cargo area has been mostly dismantled following production. Walls are trimmed with wood cabinetry, although set dressing elements have mostly been removed. Present are two removable panels with monster-fighting gadgetry as well as non-anchored rear bench seat (matching trim as front seat), flashlight and a pair of walkie talkies. Van comes with miscellaneous extra body trim parts, including fiberglass fenders and bumpers. Van remains in good condition (needs new battery). Accompanied with an original Warner Bros. Studios Certificate of Authenticity. Special delivery arrangements will apply. $40,000 - $60,000

BY EITHER REGISTERING TO BID OR PLACING A BID, THE BIDDER ACCEPTS THESE “CONDITIONS OF SALE” AND ENTERS INTO A LEGAL, BINDING, AND ENFORCEABLE AGREEMENT WITH PROFILES IN HISTORY.

READ THIS BEFORE YOU BID: NO BID MAY BE PLACED IN ANY MANNER UNLESS THE BIDDER HAS FULLY REVIEWED AND AGREES TO ALL OF THE “CONDITIONS OF SALE” EITHER PRINTED IN THE CATALOG OR ON-LINE, AND THE TERMS OF THIS REGISTRATION FORM. BY PLACING ANY BID, THE BIDDER REPRESENTS AND WARRANTS TO PROFILES THAT HE OR SHE HAS FULLY REVIEWED AND AGREES TO BE BOUND BY ALL OF THE “CONDITIONS OF SALE” AND THE TERMS OF THIS REGISTRATION FORM. WITHOUT SUCH REPRESENTATION, WARRANTY AND AGREEMENT, PROFILES WOULD NOT PERMIT THE BIDDER TO BID.

AS SET FORTH IN THE “CONDITIONS OF SALE”, FULL PAYMENT MUST BE RECEIVED BY PROFILES NO LATER THAN SEVEN (7) CALENDAR DAYS OF THE AUCTION OR WITHIN FIVE CALENDAR DAYS OF THE INVOICE DATE, WHICHEVER IS LATER. PURCHASE PRICE IS THE SUM OF FINAL BID AMOUNT PLUS BUYER’S PREMIUM (20% OF FINAL BID PRICE IF CASH; 23% OF FINAL BID PRICE IF CREDIT CARD; 23% OF FINAL BID PRICE IF BIDDING VIA INTERNET INCLUDES APPLICABLE 3% CHARGE FROM ARTFACT.COM), PLUS APPLICABLE SALES TAXES. BID INCREMENTS ARE SET FORTH ON THE REVERSE SIDE OF THIS FORM.

For telephone bidders only: Bidding by telephone is permitted on a limited basis subject to advance arrangements and availability, at Profiles’ sole discretion. Telephone bidding is offered solely as a convenience subject to Profiles’ sole discretion and approval, and neither Profiles nor its agents or employees shall be held liable for the failure to execute bids or for errors relating to any transmission or execution thereof. For telephone bidding consideration, this form must be fully executed with all required information and attachments and received by Profiles at its office, either by delivery, mail or fax no later than 5:00 p.m. on July 26, 2013. Telephone bidders need not complete the bid amount column on this form.

For absentee bidders only: The absentee bid process is offered solely as a convenience subject to Profiles’ sole discretion and approval, and neither Profiles nor its agents or employees shall be held liable for the failure to execute bids or for errors relating to any transmission or execution thereof. The bidder hereby authorizes Profiles to enter bids on the specified lots up to the maximum price indicated on the bid form. The bidder understands that Profiles will endeavor to purchase these lots as reasonably as possible, and if the bid is successful, the purchase price will be the final bid plus buyer’s premium and applicable sales taxes. For absentee bid consideration, all bids must be in writing, fully executed including all columns on the back of this form, with all required information and attachments, and received by Profiles at its office, either by delivery, mail or fax no later than 5:00 p.m. on July 26, 2013.
